WILSON DECLARES BERLIN IS SEEKING DECEITFUL PEACE

FEAR THE PEOPLE AT HOME

FORCED WAR UPON AMERICA

"Woe to the Man or Group of Men That Seeks to Stand in Our Way," He Tells Flag Day Throng.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—In an address delivered this afternoon at the local Flag Day celebration, President Wilson told why the United States was at war with the Imperial German Government, and by indirection answered those critics who have taken exception to a statement made by him in a previous speech that the United States had no special grievance against Germany.

The President made it plain that the United States had many grievances against the German autocracy, and he read an indictment against the Imperial Government that contained specifications ranging from maintaining an extensive espionage system in America to killing innocent American men, women, and children on the high seas.

By some of the President's friends his Flag Day address is considered his most important public utterance on international affairs. They regard it as equal in its strong exposition of the American case against Germany to the address which he delivered before the two houses of Congress on the night of April 2, when he called on the nation's legislators to declare that a state of war existed. Today not only did he given the reasons for the entrance of the United States into the great world conflict, but he accused the Imperial German Government of being at present engaged in a peace intrigue, the purpose of which was to induce the Allies to suggest peace now and save the Kaiser and his lieutenants from the downfall that awaited their autocracy when the people of Germany realized how they had been duped.

The President's Address.

The President said:

My Fellow-Citizens — We meet to celebrate Flag Day because this flag which we honor and under which we serve is the emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation. It has no other character than that which we give it from generation to generation. The choices are ours. It floats in majestic silence above the hosts that execute those choices, whether in peace or in war. And yet, though silent, it speaks to us—speaks to us of the past, of the men and women who went before us and of the records they wrote upon it. We celebrate the day of its birth; and from its birth until now it has witnessed a great history, has floated on high the symbol of great events, of a great plan of life worked out by a great people. We are about to carry it into battle, to lift it where it will draw the fire of our enemies. We are about to bid thousands, hundreds of thousands, it may be millions, of our men, the young, the strong, the capable men of the nation, to go forth and die beneath it on fields of blood far away—for what? For some unaccustomed thing? For something for which it has never sought the fire before? American armies were never before sent across the seas. Why are they sent now? For some new purpose, for which this great flag has never been carried before, or for some old, familiar, heroic purpose for which it has seen men, its own men, die on every battlefield upon which Americans have borne arms since the Revolution?

These are questions which must be answered. We are Americans. We in our turn serve America, and can serve her with no private purpose. We must use her flag as she has always used it. We are accountable at the bar of history and must plead in utter frankness what purpose it is we seek to serve.

Filled Our Country with Spies.

It is plain enough how we were forced into the war. The extraordinary insults and aggressions of the Imperial German Government left us no self-respecting choice but to take up arms in defense of our rights as a free people and of our honor as a sovereign Government. The military masters of Germany denied us the right to be neutral. They filled our unsuspecting communities with vicious spies and conspirators and sought to corrupt the opinion of our people in their own behalf. When they found that they could not do that, their agents diligently spread sedition amongst us and sought to draw our own citizens from their allegiance—and some of those agents were men connected with the official embassy of the German Government itself here in our own capital. They sought by violence to destroy our industries and arrest our commerce. They tried to incite Mexico to take up arms against us and to draw Japan into a hostile alliance with her—and that, not by indirection, but by direct suggestion from the Foreign Office in Berlin. They impudently denied us the use of the high seas and repeatedly executed their threat that they would

Fleet of U-Boat Chasers Is Far Ahead of Schedule

WASHINGTON, June 14. — The submarine chaser building program is more than a month ahead of schedule. The Navy Department announced today that nearly three times the number of 110-foot chasers that had been expected would be delivered by Aug. 1, according to present indications, and that all of the large number of boats ordered were actually under construction.

The department has not announced the number of boats ordered. It is known, however, that several hundred of these swift armed craft will be in service by Jan. 1. The first vessel of the type was completed at the New York Navy Yard some weeks ago and is now under test. The little vessel proved herself stanch and capable of carrying the armament specified, which would make her dangerous to the largest German submarines.

GERMANS FALL BACK TOWARD THE LYS

BIG GUNS ARE WITHDRAWN

"Interesting Possibilities" in New Retirement Are Seen by Unofficial Observer.

LONDON, June 14.—German troops in the Messines region are again falling back before strong British pressure, having already abandoned important positions between St. Yves, a little hamlet two miles southwest of Warneton, and the River Lys.

Official word of this withdrawal was given in the day report of the War Office, which stated that Haig's men, following the retiring foe closely, had made considerable progress east of Ploegsteert Wood, and had also won ground in the neighborhood of Gaspard.

The Reuter correspondent at British headquarters adds illuminating details, suggesting that some important move may be in progress. He telegraphs:

"The enemy's withdrawal in the vicinity of Messines Ridge is extending somewhat further southward. The German heavy shells are generally reported as falling at the extreme range, which means that the enemy has withdrawn his big guns as far as possible, short of actually putting them out of action.

"The British contact patrols are harassing the enemy as much as possible and the artillery is maintaining a steady bombardment of his new positions.

"The country across which the Germans are now retiring is low and marshy and in wet weather liable to be flooded, but thanks to the long drought, it offers no particular difficulty to the British problems at the present time. Thus the strategic situation is full of interesting possibilities."

The night report of the War Office does not even mention the Messines operations, but chronicles a new raid in the Arras region east of Monchy-le-Preux, whereby positions on Infantry Hill were stormed on a front of three-quarters of a mile, and 178 prisoners were taken.

Hard Firing on Belgian Front.

Artillery encounters were vigorous on the front held by the Belgians, especially near Steenstraete, Lizerne and Boesinghe.

On the French front, gunfire was the chief feature of the day. The Germans, after heavy bombardment last night, made attacks north of Craonne, on the left bank of the Meuse, but were repulsed. Today saw the guns busy along most of the front. The firing was particularly violent in the Craonne region.

The day report of the British War Office reads:

Our further advance east of Messines, combined with the pressure of our troops south of the front of our attack, has compelled the enemy to abandon important sections of his first-line defensive system in the area between the River Lys and St. Yves. Our troops have followed up the enemy closely and have made considerable progress east of Ploegsteert Wood. We also gained ground during the night in the neighborhood of Gaspard.

We raided enemy trenches last night north of Bullecourt and south of Hooge, and captured a few prisoners in each case.

The report from British Headquarters in France, issued tonight, reads:

We carried out a successful raid this morning on the Arras battle front east of Monchy-le-Preux.

Hostile positions of considerable importance on high ground, known as Infantry Hill, the possession of which had been stubbornly contested by the enemy on a number of occasions, were stormed by our troops on a front of over three-quarters of a mile. The whole of our objectives were gained, and we captured 175 prisoners, including three officers, and two machine guns.

In the air fighting yesterday one German airplane was brought down, and three others were driven down out of control. None of our machines is missing.

The day report of the French War Office says:

The enemy carried on a violent bombardment last night in the region of Braye, north of Craonne, northwest of Rheims, and on the left bank of the Meuse, near Cumières. Attacks following these bombardments, directed against small posts in different sectors, were repulsed completely.

The French War Office statement issued tonight reads:

Moderate activity was displayed by the two artilleries over the greater part of the front, quite violent in the region of Craonne and southeast of Corbeny.

The Belgian communication reads:

There was lively artillery activity, especially in the region of Steenstraete, Lizerne and Boesinghe. Bomb fighting took place near the Ferryman's House and an engagement between patrols south of Dixmude.

ALLIES TO FORCE RUSSIA TO STATE HER INTENTIONS

CAN GET ON WITHOUT HER

PETROGRAD WELCOMES ROOT

Ambassador Francis Explains the Purposes and Aims of the Mission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Entente Powers, having expressed through Great Britain a willingness to revise the terms of the Entente Alliance as relates to war aims, are prepared to ask the Russian Provisional Government a definition of Russia's position and a declaration of her intentions. The statement was made today that the Entente Powers had carefully examined the situation and reached these conclusions:

1. That the position occupied by Russia affects the entire plans of the Allies, especially as regards military operations in the near future contemplated by England, France, and Italy.

2. That nothing Russia does can irreparably damage the cause or the interests of the Allies

3. That Japan can be counted upon to prevent Russia from forming an alliance with Germany or with giving aid to the Central Powers.

The attitude of the Entente nations toward Russia was forecast in an official communication from the Italian Government, which was received in Washington today. The communiqué, sent from Rome June 13, says:

In Italian political circles it is felt that the attitude of the Allies toward Russia warrants them in questioning the Russian Government concerning intentions of Russia.

The message of President Wilson has so thoroughly cleared the situation it is impossible honestly to connect the alleged democratic views of the Russian Government with the pacifist advances of the Central Powers.

The consent on the part of England, in the name of all the Allies, to revise the conditions of the alliance excludes every pretext whatsoever of the Russian extremists of evading the duty to fight against Germany and Austria.

In view of these declarations of the Allies, it is felt that the Russian Government cannot further delay its decision in order to render the pro-German tendencies of a part of the Russian population vain.

Russia must free herself from the dangerous position she is in now, especially for the sake of Russian freedom.

PETROGRAD WELCOMES ROOT COMMISSION

PETROGRAD, June 14.—A large delegation of Russians and Americans, including several Ministers, the Chief of the local military staff, and the entire personnel of the American Embassy and Consular establishments, greeted the Root commission on its arrival here yesterday afternoon. A guard of troops stood at attention as the special rolled into the station.

United States Ambassador Francis presented Foreign Minister Tereschtenko to the chief members of the commission, after which the Minister introduced his colleagues, N. V. Nekrasoff, Minister of Ways and Communications, and A. I. Shingareff, Minister of Finance, and several Assistant Ministers. The commission was escorted to the Winter Palace of the former Emperor, where the principals were lodged.

In the evening the French Minister of Munitions, M. Thomas, who is on a special mission to Russia, called on Mr. Root. The commission will be formally presented to the Provisional Government on Friday.

David R. Francis, the American Ambassador, issued to the press today a long statement explaining the aims of the American Mission. The statement is thus summarized by the official news agency:

"The communique states that the functions of the mission are to devise, in accord with the Russian Government, effective means to aid Russia in her efforts to defeat the universal enemy of democracy. Germany and the German standpoint are the greatest foes to the democratic ideas now cherished by America and Russia in common.

"The mission will elucidate to Russia the aims followed by America, making it clear that America is inspired by idealistic motives; also that she is devoting to the struggle all her material resources, the indications of which are the facts that the American fleet is now operating jointly with the Allies' fleets; that 10,000,000 Americans are registered, and the economic support which America can lend. Realizing that Russia must not only fight but live, America will try to reduce the burdens and privations borne by the Russian people.

"Among the members of the mission," continues the communique, "is not one person who pursues any personal, financial or commercial aims, or who desires to influence Russian internal affairs."

Robertson Praises Pershing for His Thoroughness

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 14.—General Sir William Robertson, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and a soldier whose record, no less than the post he holds, has made his name a household word throughout the world, today, in response in a request from THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent for his opinion regarding the passage of the American Headquarters Staff through England, made the following statement:

"I have had the pleasure of meeting General Pershing and several of his officers. I was much impressed by his grasp of essentials and the desire he displayed to leave no stone unturned to insure assistance being given in the most effective and rapid manner possible. I am expecting great things from the splendid men of the United States Army and I have no fear of being disappointed."

RUSSIAN COUNCIL ASSAILS THE ALLIES

Socialists of All Shades Unite In Denouncing American, French, and British Notes.

WILSON CHIEF TARGET

President's Assurances Mistrusted by Pacifists, Who Resent Our Entry Into War.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, June 12.—Clearly the Allies will have difficulty in finding common ground with the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates so long as its present frame of mind lasts. The panting, struggling world cannot pursue the Russian pacifists into the airy, inaccessible haven of their fancy. The reception of the latest British, French, and American notes should dissipate all delusions.

One had thought that the British note was clear, conciliatory, and thoroughly democratic, and in the pleasure of reading it one reflected on the beneficial effect of the Russian revolution in promoting democratic peace. On the Russian Government, according to statements of Ministers, the British note seems to have made a good impression. The way seemed open for hopeful and healthy negotiation. But now the Russian revolutionaries seem bent on undermining the good work of the revolution. The publication of the notes was the signal for an outburst of pacifist chauvinism in the greater part of the Socialist press. The Allies were included in the condemnation of the British. The notes were savagely analyzed, and an old bourgeois imperialistic contention was discovered under a new form.

President Wilson proved to be the chief offender. His careful statement of the humane objects of the war was dismissed as high-sounding phraseology, and his mention of that tabooed word victory aroused boiling indignation. But then America is a sore point with the Russian pacifists. They cannot forgive her for entering the war, and they mistrust all Mr. Wilson's assurances. But the British note gives offense because it suggests the conquest of German and Austrian Poland, and the French note because it speaks of Alsace-Lorraine.

There are variations, of course, in the criticism of the note. In the Novaya Zhizn, that organ of bitter semi-Leninite insinuation to which unfortunately Maxim Gorky continues to lend his name, pours out its venom on the Allies as it never yet has done on the Germans.

The Dyelo Naroda, the organ of the Maximalist Social Revolutionaries, works itself up into a fine fury of invective of which the meaning, as far as it is discoverable, seems to be that revolutionary Russia should arm in order to defend its pacifist position against the Allies.

The Rabochaya Gazeta, the organ of the Right, or more moderate, wing of the Social Democrats, finds itself in conflict between irrefragable doctrine and common sense, while more extremists papers simply cut the painter and drift off shouting into the unknown. The Rabochaya Gazeta ends by admitting that negotiations may be continued with the Allies on the basis of a revision of treaties, but the process by which it reaches this conclusion recalls the elaborate and herculean methods by which Tom Sawyer liberated the slave who was already free in order that his mode of release might be in exact accordance with the story books.

Today the organ of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates summarily rejects the notes, and declares that, the Governments having failed, it is now for the peoples to say their word.

This is all very depressing, the more so as the present condition of Russia hardly warrants that attitude of proud superiority which leads the council to dictate peace terms to the whole world. Full explanation of this extraordinary state of affairs would involve an analysis of the mentality of the Russian revolutionaries which must be postponed for the moment. This mentality, it should be said, by the way, is not specifically pacifist or pro-German; it is something far more complex, and it seems probable that when Ramsay MacDonald and his friends come into contact with it they will be disabused of certain misconceptions which they have evidently formed as to the character of the Russian revolutionary organization.

One palpable difference between the declarations of the Western and American Allies and that of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates is that, whereas we aim at the liberation of oppressed peoples, the council will persist in regarding such a program as an attempt to insist on a veiled form of annexation.

It is difficult to see how the Allies can make further concessions to the council without encouraging an attitude which can only wreck all reasonable hopes of democratic peace. By taking a firm stand on their present position the Allies may even contribute to that inevitable change in Russian opinion which will

PERSHING WINS GREAT WELCOME FROM ALL PARIS

No Man in the Whole War Has Had Such a Wholehearted Reception.

VISITS NAPOLEON'S TOMB

CHEERED BY THE DEPUTIES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 14.—General Pershing took all Paris by storm today, from the President of the Republic, commanders of the army and Ministers of the Government down through all ranks and grades to the humblest little midinettes, who lined his route to throw flowers and kisses in the direction of his automobile. No other man since the war began received such a magnificent, wholehearted welcome, and no man could have risen to meet it in a more splendid and dignified manner. All America should take pride in the fact that Pershing was chosen to carry her flag to Europe and lead her sons to battle. Every American who is here to witness his triumphal progress is hugging himself with joy that President Wilson, in sending him, chose a man of many parts, extraordinarly well adapted to face a very difficult situation. What the future may hold no one can foretell, but at least General Pershing has begun his career in France in a most striking manner by bringing to her people the concrete realization of what American aid means.

There is absolute confidence that the hopes raised by the coming of Pershing will not be dashed. I heard a man in the crowd at the Invalides remark this morning, as the General stood with bared head before the tomb of Napoleon, where he was invested with the sword of the great Emperor: "Behind him there are ten million more."

Probably from no man in the world is more expected today than from Pershing, and Frenchmen, after looking at his square fighting jaw, have already come to believe that he is a man who will not fail. Since the days of Murat, the beau sabreur, French crowds have always adored military leaders who have looked the part. In this respect Pershing registers 100 per cent. in Paris. They admire him also because he is no orator. Their ideal soldiers speak simply and sincerely, just as Pershing has done, and his words have gone straight to their hearts. From the emotion he has permitted himself both at the tomb of Napoleon and other points of his passage through the city, the crowd feels that he has a human side very much to their liking.

He Has Impressed French Leaders.

To leave the ideas of the crowd for a moment and listen to the opinion of France's leaders with whom I had opportunity to converse, Pershing has already been sized up not only as a soldier, but also as a philosopher. On the vast allied battle-front, comprising so many races and divergent temperaments, philosophy and soldiery must go hand in hand. Leading Frenchmen have no fear but that Pershing will "fit in."

The personal quality of Pershing that has first impressed itself on the Parisian mind is his rapidity of movement. In the first three days' program, comprising a visit to the Invalides, the Elysée, the Ministries of War and Marine, and a trip to the aviation ground at Le Bourget, the crowd has had ample opportunity to appreciate his energy. Coupled with the announcement that the American staff had already installed itself in working quarters taking up two entire buildings in the Rue Constantin, near the Champ de Mars, these lightning appearance of the General in widely separated parts of the city symbolizes the known American spirit of speed and determination.

A man on the Boulevard, watching a member of the Pershing staff swiftly treading his way across the thoroughfare, said to his woman companion: "There goes an American." She asked how he knew, inasmuch as all khaki uniforms look alike. He replied: "Because he moves so quickly and always makes way for ladies."

Personal calls and official functions are likely to keep General Pershing busy the next couple of days, but his staff, which is quartered at three hotels, has moved a force of stenographers into the Rue Constantin buildings, where its members were hard at work at 9 o'clock this morning. At present nothing can be said as to what their business is, except that it all has to do with bringing American soldiers to the French fighting line.

Such things as the location of American base cities, military headquarters, and the zone of American military operations are likely to be kept secret for a long time. Other American units are rapidly arriving, and, in fact, the entire city is taking on an appearance of American activity. The American Relief Clearing House has since become the headquarters of the Red Cross Commission, which is under command of Major Grayson Murphy, and every train from every port brings fresh arrivals of Americans in and out of uniform. All come to do their bit in one or other of the many activities which go to maintain the American expeditionary war force.

MAKES HOOVER HIS TARGET

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—A violent attack upon the Lever Food bill, putting control of the whole food system of the country in the hands of one administrator, was made by Senator Reed of Missouri today. The Missouri Senator talked for three hours against the Administration measure, which, he said, would give "some Hoover" power to dictate the menu of the whole nation.

Senator Reed said he wanted to warn the country against passing any bill that would bestow such unrestricted power as the one in question. He called it "vicious and unconstitutional," and maintained that no such power as it contemplated conferring was ever wielded by "a King, a potentate, a Czar, a Caesar, or a Kaiser."

In the course of his speech Senator Reed was interrupted by Senators Kenyon of Iowa and Sheppard of Texas, the only Senators who spoke in defense of the bill. They urged giving the President all the power he asked to handle the food problem. Senator Reed was spurred on by Senators Hoke Smith of Georgia, Smith of Michigan, Hardwick of Georgia and Gore of Oklahoma, who interposed frequent observations showing that their sympathy was with the Missouri Senator's attack.

"I do not intend to attack Mr. Hoover's integrity or his intelligence," said Senator Reed as he started out to criticise the provision for creating a food administrator.

"Out of Touch with American Ideals."

"I could not say a word against him as to that. But I do criticise him as a man who is woefully out of touch with American ideals and American principles. The trouble with Mr. Hoover is that he has lived abroad so long that he does not understand the needs of this country. Why, if we pass this bill, Hoover would have authority to say what the mothers of the land may eat and what they may feed the babe in arms."

"That would be better than not having food for the mother or the babe," suggested Senator Sheppard.

"Yes," assented Mr. Reed, "but we haven't come to that predicament yet. The country is not likely to come to it, either."

Senator Sheppard remarked that those who had looked into the food problem said that exactly such a crisis might develop unless there was ample control.

"The President seems to think so, and the Secretary of Agriculture thinks so," said Senator Sheppard.

"As to that," replied Senator Reed, "I would give the President ample power to conduct the war, but I would not give him power to take over all the business of the country and run it himself.

Unexampled Power for 'Some Hoover.'

"Why, such power as this bill gives was never exercised by a King, a Czar, a potentate, or a Caesar, or a Kaiser. The Kaiser in all his glory never used such power. No, but here we turn it over to 'some Hoover'—a Hoover who many years ago left this country and went abroad, seeking a fortune as a mining engineer. The man who proposes giving this Hoover such power should not belong to this Republic of freemen."

"Why go into personalities?" interrupted Senator Walsh of Montana.

"Because I wish to discuss a man of flesh and blood, into whose hands it is intended to give these extraordinary powers," retorted Senator Reed. "I want all the people of the country to realize the fact that a man who has lived outside the country for years is not the man to have such unqualified power to regulate their affairs. It is going too far when we are asked to substitute somebody, some Hoover, for the Constitution. I am opposed to it, and I shall do all I can to defeat this bill.

"Does the Senate realize that if this bill is passed, your housewives will be able to eat only what some gentleman working without compensation—a gentleman who has spent most of his time abroad—will allow them to eat? Your children will wear only what this gentleman from abroad says they may wear.

Invokes George III.'s Memory.

"George III. never told his subjects that they could not do their business except under license given by him. Why should Hoover have that power? If this

LOAN BILLION SURE IN THIS DISTRICT

Americans Have Done Their Duty as They Always Do, Was J. P. Morgan's Comment.

Subscriptions to the Liberty Loan received by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York amounted to $905,000,000 at noon yesterday, and it was unofficially estimated that by evening the total had reached $950,000,000. It is expected that before the subscription books close at noon today, the bank will have received at least another $50,000,000, so that the aggregate subscriptions for the New York district will total, if not exceed, $1,000,000,000, the allotment that the bankers themselves made for New York, although $600,000,000 was all the Treasury Department asked.

For the last three days subscriptions in this district have poured in at the rate of $100,000,000 a day; and bankers were confident last night that the $50,000,000 needed would come in today, and that there would be no necessity for the large banks to step in and make up a deficit. Some look for a substantial oversubscription.

Yesterday's noon total of $905,000,000 compares with $771,000,000, the figures for noon Wednesday. At 10 A. M. yesterday the records showed a total of $872,000,000, compared with $758,000,000 reported at that hour the previous day.

J. P. Morgan said last night that he was delighted with the results. "It shows," he said, "that the American people have done their duty, as they always do. They should have, and they have."

F. A. Vanderlip said he was greatly pleased. "The work for the next loan, and for any subsequent loan," he said, "is done already. The American public has demonstrated that it is educated to the needs of the situation. That is the foundation that will make it easier for us to build for future loans."

Subscriptions Exceed Facilities.

All the banks reported yesterday the receipt of many subscriptions, and all day long the headquarters of the Liberty Loan Department of the Federal Reserve Bank was crowded with messengers sent to file applications. The clerks at the bank—all of whom had been drafted from the various financial institutions in the city—did not have an idle minute, and they were still at work early this morning. Subscriptions are coming in so fast that it is impossible to keep track of the totals for the various institutions, but the following table, compiled from data obtained from several sources, gives the aggregate subscriptions turned in by some of the New York City banks, the figures including the banks' subscriptions along with those of their customers.

DEMAND FOR SMALL BONDS

FLAG DAY HELPS CAUSE

$1,843,000,000 ON BOOKS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Liberty Loan is clearly oversubscribed. Unofficially it is estimated that it will go $500,000,000 over the $2,000,000,000 called for.

Secretary McAdoo announced this afternoon that the reports up to 1 o'clock gave a total of $1,843,000,000. Unofficial reports from banking centres indicated that the remainder of the $2,000,000,000 would certainly be taken up by nightfall.

Telegrams from all the Federal Reserve Banks late in the day announced that the loan was receiving great popular support. Flag Day helped. From many cities it was reported that long lines of people had stood in line for hours to subscribe. The banks generally had announced that they would remain open till midnight to receive subscriptions.

Subscriptions May Total 2,200,000.

A strong demand for bond buttons came in from all parts of the country. The grand total of subscribers is now estimated at 2,200,000. New York alone asked for 1,200,000 buttons. Each subscriber is to receive a button—just one to each, and all the buttons alike. John D. Rockefeller, who is supposed to be the largest subscriber in the country, will get just one.

It is expected that the Treasury Department will announce tomorrow night tentative figures on the loan. There was manifest satisfaction among Treasury officials today over the popular support of the loan. England's first war loan had only 100,000 subscribers and the amount was $1,750,000,000. France oversubscribed her first loan forty-one times, but it was comparatively small.

Secretary McAdoo tonight issued this statement:

"June 15, Liberty bond subscription day, is by a happy coincidence the anniversary of Magna Charta. This great document, the very cornerstone of human liberty, was signed June 15, 1212, just 705 years ago. Again the world faces a new and supreme struggle for universal liberty and democracy. The Liberty Loan, which closes Friday, will find its successful consummation on the anniversary of the day which gave birth to the great charter of human freedom.

"General Pershing, the valiant leader of America's forces, has just arrived in France to return the visit Lafayette made to the struggling American republic 104 years ago. As gallant France then helped us win our liberty, we now join France upon her bloody fields to fight for imperiled liberty and to restore peace to a stricken world.

"To gain the victory quickly means the saving of countless invaluable lives and inestimable treasure. Every humanitarian and every lover of liberty and democracy prays for this result. Every Liberty Bond, however small the denomination, bought by a patriotic American citizen will hasten the return of peace and the re-establishment of justice and liberty throughout the world.

"I hope that no American having the means to do so will fail to make a subscription to the United States Liberty Loan before 12 o'clock noon, Friday, June 15."

Richmond's Stirring Message.

Thomas B. Smith, Mayor of Philadelphia, Penn.:

Standing in St. John's Church, where Patrick Henry delivered his immortal appeal for liberty that electrified the colonies and welded them into a unit for the common cause, I send the greetings and good-will of the city of Richmond to the city of Philadelphia, over which there hangs as a halo the undying memories of the mighty blows for liberty which were struck upon her soil. GEORGE AINSLIE, Mayor.

While Mayor Smith was ringing old Liberty Bell again in Independence Hall in Philadelphia, Mayor Ainslie was tolling the ancient church bell in St. John's Church, Richmond, standing where Patrick Henry stood when he said, "Give me liberty or give me death!"

The Liberty Loan flag day exercises were held promptly at noon, the historic bells calling Americans again to the cause of liberty. The voice of old Liberty Bell, serving to "proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof," was re-echoed throughout the United States by bells and whistles

Hon. George Ainslie, Mayor of Richmond, Va.:

Here in Independence Hall, the cradle of liberty, I am taking down the casings from Liberty Bell, whose voice has been silent for nearly a century. At this crisis of the National Government in the vindication of the Liberty Loan I have ventured to invoke once more the voice of this sacred bell, that it may again proclaim liberty through all the land from this place dedicated to independence and liberty.

I am sending this message to you in St. John's Church, where Patrick Henry offered the immortal words, "Give me liberty or give me death," that our countrymen through these holy memories will respond to the utmost, as our fathers did, to the support of the Government, pledging again their fortunes, their lives, and their sacred honor. Such a pledge, renewed with the love of freedom that animated our forefathers, would assure, beyond any question of a doubt, the entire success of the Liberty Loan bonds asked for by the Government in this hour of need.

THOMAS B. SMITH,
Mayor of Philadelphia.

Flag Day Celebrations.

Making allowance for the difference in time, Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco, by official proclamation, had all bells in the Pacific Coast metropolis rung at the same hour that old Liberty was sounded in Philadelphia.

Church and school bells were rung at noon in the Federal Reserve district, of which Kansas City is the centre and which embraces Western Missouri, all of Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, and Wyoming, and the northern counties of Oklahoma and New Mexico. These same bells have been rung nightly of late for the Liberty Loan.

Throughout New England bells and whistles re-echoed the call of old Liberty.

"Atlanta has very few bells, but we commandeered every whistle in the district, and they featured the Flag Day exercises in all our cities," the officials of the Federal Reserve Bank at Atlanta reported.

"Every bell in New York was a liberty bell for liberty bell day, in tone with the historic Liberty Bell in Philadelphia," the New York Liberty Loan Committee reported.

St. Louis participated in the Liberty Bell celebration with an elaborate program. More than 1,000 towns in the St. Louis Federal Reserve district were notified early this morning to ring all bells promptly at noon. This wide territory was covered by the efforts of 17,000 workers in St. Louis, the work being done in four hours.

"The response was general throughout the St. Louis district," the Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee reported to Secretary McAdoo. "Every bell and whistle sounded promptly at noon. Special Flag Day exercises, with Liberty Loan bond speakers, were held in every school. Bond salesmen made speeches, beginning at the stroke of twelve, from the back of an elephant which was paraded through the business district. The elephant was placarded with Liberty Loan banners. Five thousand St. Louis women began a telephone campaign asking their friends and neighbors if they had purchased Liberty Loan bonds and reminding them that in another twenty-four hours the chance would be gone."

Texas Resorts to Telephone, Too.

The Governor of the Dallas, Texas, Federal Reserve Bank sent this message to the Secretary of the Treasury:

"Operators of all telephone companies phoned to persons outside the large cities the following message: 'Federal Reserve Bank wants to know if you have bought your Liberty Bond. If not, they want you to see your banker today.'"

A message from Ruth Law, who will complete her aerial tour in behalf of the Liberty Loan by a flight from St. Louis to Chicago tomorrow morning, reported that she arrived in St. Louis in time for the Liberty Bell celebration. She flew over the city, dropping paper bombs carrying reminders of the Liberty Loan. Miss Law flew from Bartlesville, Oklahoma, to Joplin, Mo., yesterday, narrowly missing the cyclone which passed over that section. She made the trip of 110 miles in eighty minutes.

The Woman's Liberty Loan Committee announced that in Chicago Mrs. George Bass, Mrs. Antoinette Funk, and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbanks have conducted a whirlwind campaign and have booked thousands of $100 and $50 subscriptions, besides many of larger denominations, among them those of Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen and Mrs. George Sevey, $10,000 each. Mrs. Raymond Robins, President of the National Woman's Trade Union League, was another purchaser.

"The pledge of the Edison Employes' Liberty Loan Club for $300,000 has been oversubscribed $500,000, or a total subscription of $800,000, making practically $100 for every man and woman employed in the Edison interests."

In reply Secretary McAdoo sent this telegram:

"Hearty congratulations on the splendid subscription of the men and women of the Edison factories. It is highly creditable to them, and is an inspiring example to the country."

Great Demand for Small Bonds.

The loan, according to reports received by Treasury officials, is in every sense a popular one. By far the greatest issues which the Bureau of Engraving and Printing will be called upon to turn out will be of the $50 and $100 bonds. For them there has been an extremely heavy demand in every industrial section of the country and in many rural communities. An illustration is afforded in the case of Ripon, Wis., a town of 3,800, which today reported subscriptions totalling $260,700 from 839 subscribers. The City of Washington, officials estimate, will marshal 30,000 individual subscriptions, most of them for the $50 and $100 bonds. Employes of the Treasury Department alone, subscribing to the $50 and $100 bonds, have taken approximately $450,000.

Officials believe that the reserve banks will be deluged tomorrow by a flood of last-minute subscriptions which will keep them busy for hours in tabulating them. There is yet time, however, for the man or woman who wants a small bond to get it, officials said today, for the small investor is to be favored above all others, and every application for a small bond is to be granted. In case of oversubscription this would result in paring down the larger subscriptions on a proportionate basis, as announced by Secretary McAdoo. Indications are that there will be a flood of subscriptions for the small bonds tomorrow up to the closing hour.

The exact total of all subscriptions from every source may not be known for some time after the closing of the books because of the tremendous amount of clerical work involved in assembling returns and making tabulations. New York estimates that it will be able to report its total not later than 8 o'clock tomorrow night. In the case of other reserve banks the delay may be greater.

RUSH FOR LOAN NATION-WIDE.

Philadelphia Talks of a 50 Per Cent. Oversubscription There.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 14.—In the last thirty-six hours Liberty Loan subscriptions have poured into the Federal Reserve Bank here. The clerks had to work all last night to count them.

Charles J. Roades, Governor of the bank, at 1 o'clock tonight, reported the tabulation of $140,000,000, or $100,000 in excess of the $140,000,000 allotment for this district, and stacks of blanks from three to six feet high lay piled on the floor untouched. During the day $42,100,000 was counted.

Late in the afternoon, when subscriptions of from $500,000 to $5,000,000 began to rain in those who had predicted $150,000,000 jumped their estimates. Walter C. Janney, Executive Chairman of the committee, said it would be $200,000,000.

In aid of the loan a peal from the Liberty Bell in Independence Hall reverberated, with the aid of the telegraph, from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coast today when Mayor Smith struck America's most revered relic with a golden hammer to call last-minute subscribers to the service of the nation. A group of the city's most prominent bankers, who have been in the forefront of the campaign to dispose of bonds in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware, participated in the exercises in connection with the ringing of the Liberty Bell.

The du Pont Powder Company today took $2,500,000 more of the Liberty Loan, bringing its total subscriptions to $7,500,000.

Among the large individual subscriptions announced today were $1,000,000 each by John Wanamaker and Rodman Wanamaker. Sailors and employes of the Philadelphia Navy Yard took $200,000 of the bonds.

Cleveland District Oversubscribed.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 14.—Liberty bonds subscribed for here today total $5,000,000, bringing the subscriptions to date up to $55,000,000. Cleveland's quota is $45,000,000. The Cleveland Federal Reserve district subscriptions to date are $210,000,000. The district's quota is $180,000,000.

Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, in this district, are away over their quota; Lexington, Ky., is 40 per cent. oversubscribed; Wheeling has $200,000 over its quota, and Toledo, Akron and Dayton, Ohio, have their quota or more.

Kansas City District $63,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 14.—The Kansas City district Liberty Loan subscription is estimated tonight at $63,500,000 at the lowest. The allotment was $100,000,000.

Muskogee, Okla., had subscribed to more than seven times its allotted share of bonds at 6 o'clock tonight and there still were many subscriptions to be counted. Muskogee's quota was $495,000, and its total counted purchase of bonds is $3,571,950.

Chicago $10,000,000 Short.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Chicago tonight had not fully made good on the Liberty Loan. Fully 30 per cent. of the population is Teutonic. At 8 o'clock subscriptions for the day totaled $30,000,000, with an estimated $2,000,000 yet to be tabulated. This, added to the previous subscriptions, would indicate a total of $250,000,000, or $10,000,000 short of the $260,000,000 minimum allotment.

Tremendous forces were at work today, and there will be a great spurt at the finish tomorrow. Those in charge of the "drive" believe Chicago will "put it over."

Officers and enlisted men at the United States Naval Training Station at Lake Bluff, of whom there are 9,000, have taken $100,000 of the bonds, mostly the $50 and $100 lots. One man bought $5,000. In the city small subscribers fairly swamped the banks. Up to noon employes of the Central Group of Bell Telephone Companies had subscribed $652,850, with $700,000 set as their mark. Of this $370,250 came from Chicago telephone employes. There were 5,891 subscriptions for $50 bonds. The subscription of the Central Group is in addition to the $5,000,000 taken by the Bell System for its own account.

Morris & Co. employes have taken $400,000 of bonds from the packing firm on deferred payments. The largest purchasers were employes of foreign birth. Cudahy Packing Company employes have subscribed for $352,900. About 8,000 Chicago school teachers have subscribed for $380,000, probably for $400,000.

Montgomery Ward & Co. subscribed $900,000, and employes took $95,000 additional. One hundred employes of the Hub clothing store have taken $17,000. With a few exceptions the 1,500 employes of the Corn Products Company at Argo have subscribed, the total being in excess of $100,000.

Employes of Sears, Roebuck & Co. subscribed $1,000,000. Every one of the 200 employes of the Economy Shoe Company subscribed, the total being $80,000. The Drovers National Bank reported $395,000 in subscriptions in addition to its own; the amount representing subscriptions from employes in plants in the vicinity of the stock yards.

C. F. Childs & Co. subscribed $1,000,000, and the American Radiator Company $750,000, of which $500,000 was taken by the company and $250,000 for employes. S. B. Chapin & Co. turned in $275,000. The Knights of Pythias bought $10,000, in addition to the insurance department's purchase of $50,000, and nearly 8,000 subordinate lodges throughout the country are buying freely. The Chicago Athletic Association "drive" totals $126,700. James A. Patten has subscribed $250,000 and H. J. Patten $25,000.

The Loop "Flying Squad" reported having obtained 44,627 subscriptions for a total of $13,917,440, with every indication that the final figures would exceed $15,000,000.

Exclusive of any purchases by corporations, Gary, Ind., was reported to have doubled its allotment of bonds, taking $1,200,000. Workmen at the Illinois Steel Company plant took $400,000 and street sales of bonds have realized $66,000.

To the Liberty Loan John Eldred, a printer of Laporte, Ind., has given all he had, $10,000, his savings since boyhood.

Subscriptions to the loan in Detroit have passed the $40,000,000 mark, and it officially was estimated today that the total amount would probably be $45,000,000. Detroit's allotment was $33,000,000.

New England to Exceed Quota.

BOSTON, June 14.—New England, apparently lagging in its contribution to the Liberty Loan up to today, gathered strength at the eleventh hour and virtually assured subscriptions in excess of $240,000,000, the minimum allotment of this section. With the tabulators still at work on the figures late today, it was estimated by the Federal Reserve Bank officials that the subscriptions reported up to this evening aggregated $213,600,000. This, it was said, represented at least 700,000 individual subscribers, with a possibility that the number would reach 1,000,000.

The American Woolen Company today raised its subscription to $1,250,000. The United Fruit Company subscribed for $1,000,000 in addition to $125,000 taken by its employes. Worcester reported a subscription today of $1,250,000 by seventy-nine individuals, bringing the city's total above $8,300,000.

Hartford, Conn., believes that it has exceeded its $12,000,000 allotment. From the ancient belfry of the old State House, where more than a hundred years ago the first Constitutional Convention in the world wrote the model for all democratic governments, the historic bell clanged tonight, starting a great bond-selling drive from an open-air booth presided over by Mrs. Morgan G. Bulkeley. Governor Holcomb bought the first bond and Senator Bulkeley took $100,000 for his Aetna Life Insurance Company. The State Treasurer raised the State's purchase to $2,500,000. Seven convicts in the State prison, including four lifers, contributed $900.

New Haven's subscriptions totaled $6,299,850 late today. Waterbury reported $7,300,000, and New Britain $2,067,000.

Providence, R. I., has subscribed $16,938,000, or $800,000 above its quota.

With an allotment of $1,400,000, Newport has subscribed $1,301,400, including $41,950 which the Coast Defense naval force subscribed tonight through the office of Rear Admiral Thomas J. Cowie, U. S. N.

St. Louis Likely to Exceed Allotment.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, June 14.—Up to tonight the St. Louis district had subscribed $60,000,000 to the Liberty Loan out of its allotment of $80,000,000. It is believed certain that an additional $25,000,000 will be received before the books close tomorrow noon.

Memphis, Tenn., which is in the St. Louis district, was allotted $3,300,000 of the loan and has taken $4,500,000, with a prospect of an additional $500,000.

Northwest Nearing Its Allotment.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 14.—The estimated Liberty Loan subscriptions in the Ninth Federal Reserve District total $65,000,000, as against the district's quota of $80,000,000.

Montana has oversubscribed its quota by 100 per cent. In the last two days $6,500,000 has been subscribed. Helena, with a population of only 18,000, pledged $1,000,000. Montana's quota was $7,000,000. The subscriptions reported to date total $14,000,000.

North Dakota, South Dakota, and Minnesota, outside of the Twin Cities and Duluth, are still far below their quota. It is estimated, however, that the totals to be reported by the banks tomorrow will bring the grand total to more than $70,000,000, making the Ninth District's deficit less than $10,000,000.

Minneapolis, having already oversubscribed, is still increasing its total. Duluth likewise is coming to the front. Subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation subscribed to $1,000,000 worth of the bonds in Duluth.

Pacific Coast Subscribing Heavily.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 14.—San Francisco subscribed more than $3,000,000 for Liberty bonds today, leaving less than $500,000 to raise in order to meet the allotment of $42,000,000. This sum will be raised, according to campaign heads. Ex-Senator W. A. Clark of Montana subscribed $100,000 today, as did the Honolulu Consolidated Oil Company. Southern Pacific employes increased their subscriptions to $950,000. Many centres of population report oversubscriptions, and this district, it is expected, will subscribe its full quota of $140,000,000.

Oregon has oversubscribed her quota by $1,500,000, the total having passed the $10,000,000 mark.

Dallas Expects Oversubscriptions.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Tex., June 14.—It is estimated that the Liberty Loan subscription of the Dallas Federal Reserve district, up to noon Friday, will reach $32,500,000. The allotment is $40,000,000.

The Mayor's Committee, through Controller William A. Prendergast, Chairman, subscribed yesterday for $2,300,000 Liberty Loan bonds. This subscription is for employes of the city to the number of about 25,000. About $300,000 additional from the same source is expected today.

The Railroads Liberty Loan Committee, which is conducting the country-wide canvass of railroad employes for sale of bonds on the installment plan and of which President Alfred H. Smith of the New York Central is Chairman, announced last night that a total of 30,324 individual subscriptions by railroad employes, aggregating $3,054,200, were added yesterday. The subscriptions reported up to date number 105,151, totaling $9,803,050. This does not include any part of the bond subscriptions made in blocks by the railroad companies, which aggregate more than $40,000,000. The Lehigh Valley Railroad, with a record of $524,800 of bonds taken by 6,864 employes, and the Lackawanna, with $1,003,450 subscribed by 13,721 employes, were among the new reports of yesterday. The Delaware & Hudson came forward with $442,200, subscribed by 6,994 individuals, and the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh showed $230,150 by 2,737 employes. The Erie reached $310,000 by 3,903 individuals.

Subscriptions collected by the Boy Scouts of America now aggregate $4,134,400, with more than 7,000 cities to be heard from.

Takings of Public Service Employes.

Public Service Commissioner Travis H. Whitney, Chairman of the Committee of Public Services, announced that a total of $4,315,800 of Liberty bonds had been subscribed by 57,874 employes of utility companies in New York City. On the average more than half of the total number of employes have subscribed, but in the case of some companies the percentage of subscribers is very high. The average subscription is nearly $80. The companies, with the number of employe subscribers and the total amounts, follow:

A large number of banks, including savings institutions, remained open late last night for the purpose of receiving subscriptions to the Liberty Loan.

Many persons availed themselves of the opportunity to subscribe at these banks. The Hudson Trust Company kept open until midnight to accommodate late workers in its district. At one time in the evening there were a score or more in line waiting to sign up. The Plaza Branch of the Union Trust Company reported a large number of subscribers. One of the last minute subscribers at that institution was Miss Marie Doro, who put her name down for $50,000 worth. Branches of the Corn Exchange Bank in the Bronx and Harlem were quite busy until 9 o'clock. The banks in the financial district did little business after the downtown offices closed.

Figures received at the headquarters of the committee up to noon yesterday, indicated that Brooklyn had failed to reach the total allotted to it by the committee. Only $11,906,000 on an assignment of $54,168,000 has been received from Kings County. Undoubtedly many subscriptions from Brooklyn men have been made in New York as would naturally be the case where a man subscribed where he was employed. Another encouraging feature of the Brooklyn subscription list is, that while small, it contains the names of more individual subscribers in proportion than Manhattan.

Shortage Outside the City.

While New York City has exceeded its $717,000,000 allotment of the $1,000,000,000 fixed for the New York Federal Reserve District, the rest of the Empire State and parts of New Jersey and Connecticut have not come up to their allotment of $283,000,000. Last night's unofficial estimate that gave $950,000,000 for the district, credited cities and towns outside of New York with only $123,000,000. A number of out-of-town bankers have complained about the figures given out by the Liberty Loan Committee and published in the newspapers, many of them calling attention to the fact that subscriptions of residents of their towns have been filed through New York banks.

Franklin Q. Brown, Chairman of the Fairfield County (Conn.) Liberty Loan Committee, says that many of the published returns of amounts contributed by cities and towns, sent to him as Chairman of the committee, do not agree with the returns sent to the Federal Reserve Bank, the latter returns invariably being much less. For example, Bridgeport returns to the Federal Reserve Bank $2,400,000, while Mr. Brown's return is $3,467,000.

With subscriptions totaling nearly $18,000,000 out of their $20,500,000 allotment, the Loan Committee in Rochester predicted to the New York City committee that Rochester would raise its quota. At the time the message was sent, Harold D. Bentley of the Rochester committee declared that subscriptions were coming in so fast that the staff was actually swamped in tabulating the returns.

Henry T. Noyes, Chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee of the Rochester Liberty Loan Committee, wired last night that Rochester had individual subscriptions to the Liberty Loan from approximately 20 per cent. of the entire population, of which subscriptions more than three-quarters were from employes.

A banker of Beacon, N. Y., telephoned to THE TIMES yesterday to say that while the Liberty Loan Committee's figures showed no subscriptions for Beacon, the people of that town had actually subscribed for more than $90,000 on an allotment of only $86,000. He said that the applications had been filed through the National Park Bank.

Word was received yesterday that Malone, N. Y., had actually subscribed $134,050, while the figures given out by the committee credited it with only $35,000. Dobbs Ferry has subscribed for $182,000 and Great Neck, L. I., for $80,000.

Following are letters received by THE TIMES from bankers and others:

Naples, N. Y., June 13, 1917.

Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES: I notice in your paper today that our town has no designated quota; why is this? Also note we have credit for $1,000 in subscriptions. Now I personally know of $25,100 being subscribed to the Liberty Loan from the town of Naples, and I wonder why it is that we do not get our proper credit.

One banker here bought $10,000 of the 3 per cent. temporary certificates, another $10,000 of the 3½ per cent. Liberty bonds through the National Bank of Commerce, New York. The balance has been sent into the Treasurer of the United States direct. It is a small matter, but I can hardly see how they have got a very good check on this if they are all so far off as Naples.

J. GORDON LEWIS,
Assistant Cashier, the Hiram Maxfield Bank.

Mohawk, N. Y., June 13, 1917.

Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES: In your list of subscriptions to the Liberty Loan I note that Mohawk, N. Y., is allotted $90,000 and credited with nothing. For your information I wish to state that this village—the best in the Mohawk Valley—had subscribed for more than $50,000 before the application blanks were printed, and has every expectation of taking its allotment. This can be corroborated by the Chase National Bank of New York City.

FRANK C. DAVIS.

THE TIMES, New York:

In today's and yesterday's issue of THE TIMES, under the heading of "Subscriptions to the Liberty Loan Received from the Eastern Division of New York State," you have reported the village of Bronxville as expected to subscribe $189,000, with no subscriptions received to date. While it is true that the actual subscriptions have not yet been turned into the Federal Reserve Bank, there has been subscribed locally to date, through the Gramatan National Bank, approximately $325,000, or over 70 per cent. in excess of Bronxville's allotment, and all of the subscriptions received will be officially reported before noon tomorrow. Our committee feels that it is only fair that you should give publicity to this statement.

WARREN J. HOYSRADT,
Member Liberty Loan Committee.

New Brunswick, N. J., has subscribed $1,702,000 to the Liberty Loan, which is more than the city's allotment.

EXPLAINS BOND POLICY.

Reserve Governor Here Takes Exception to Controller's Statement.

Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, issued a statement yesterday regarding bank investments in Liberty Loan bonds in which he took exception to the suggestions made by Controller of the Currency John Skelton Williams in a public statement. Governor Strong asserted that so far as the policies of the New York Federal Reserve Bank were concerned, they would be "determined by its Directors, subject only to the approval of the Federal Reserve Board." Governor Strong's statement follows.

> The Directors of this bank have established a rate of 3½ per cent., which will apply to discounts made for its members where the proceeds are employed for the purchase of Liberty Loan bonds, and a circular to that effect has recently been mailed to our members.
> We understand that the statement issued by some as a suggestion to member and State banks that this rate was established in order to enable the banks to purchase Liberty bonds for their own account to the extent of 6 per cent. of their resources, even though they must borrow from us to do so. But the policy of this bank, which is determined by its Directors, has been to urge upon all banks the importance of placing the bonds as widely as possible among individuals and corporations in their communities, believing that the interests of the Government, as well as the business of the country, will be best served by a wide distribution of these long-time bonds, thus leaving the resources of the banks free to take care of the requirements of business and industry and the temporary financing of the Government.
> We feel that each bank should use its own judgment, governed by its obligations to its depositors, as well as to the Government, as to the amount of Liberty Loan bonds to be subscribed for its own account.
> The response of the banks, individuals, and corporations throughout the whole of this district has been so extremely gratifying that it is clear the banks have all used their best efforts, each according to its own circumstances and local conditions, to insure the success of the loan.
> In the matter of accommodation to its member banks this bank also wishes to make its position clear, as follows:
> All proper requirements of its members will be taken care of, but the bank's policy in making loans and rates will be determined by its Directors, subject only to the approval of the Federal Reserve Board.

The Controller's statement, besides announcing that a "roll of honor" would be published of banks subscribing 5 per cent. or more of their total resources to the Liberty Loan, declared that the Controller's office believed that banks "could reasonably and conservatively" subscribe, on their own account, to the extent of 6 per cent. of their total resources.

"No bank need be concerned about its ability to reimburse itself from its Federal Reserve Bank for advances made by it on Liberty bonds," continued the statement. "The Reserve Banks have all given notice that any member bank in good standing can receive any reasonable accommodation which it may desire from its Reserve Bank against Liberty bonds or loans made on Liberty bonds, at from 3 to 3½ per cent. interest."

A SONG TO HELP THE LOAN.

"Buy a Bond" Sung in Most of the New York Theatres.

Co-operating with the Liberty Bond Committee, the managers of most of the shows now current last night sprung a surprise on New York theatregoers by having the principals in the various companies sing "Buy a Bond," a new patriotic song, between the acts. The ballad, which came out of the supposedly war-torpid West, was written by Clarence J. Marks and set to music by Herman Timberg. The chorus is:

Buy a bond if you're fond of your old
Uncle Sam,
Think what he's done for you—
will fit—
Just what you think's his due.
If you can't lug a gun you can help pay for one.
It's the cash that will count, so respond,
If you love your old flag, get that old money
bag,
And invest in a Liberty Bond!

At some of the playhouses, however, it was not convenient to have the song sung because to do so would disarrange the regular schedule. At these houses the over-the-footlights bond campaign was conducted by speakers.

JAPANESE HELP THE LOAN.

More Than Half a Million Taken by Local Subjects of the Mikado.

Following a recent resolution of the Japanese Association, which called upon members to subscribe to the Liberty Loan, as well as to lend financial support to the Red Cross and to co-operate in providing dressings and bandages for war relief, large subscriptions have been received from the Japanese residents of New York.

The Yokohama Specie Bank of 120 Broadway has subscribed $500,000, Japanese business houses have made a number of contributions, and the individual members of the Japanese Association have subscribed more than $50,000. I. Hamaoka of 120 Broadway is the head of a committee of thirty-three to push the sale of Liberty bonds among Japanese in New York, and Dr. T. C. Takami of 176 Washington Park, Brooklyn, is head of the Red Cross committee.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—An additional $25,000,000 was loaned by the Government to Great Britain today, bringing the total British loan up to $500,000,000 and the total for all the Allies up to $948,000,000.

PERSHING VISITS NAPOLEON'S TOMB

French poilus and British Tommies. They are on the friendliest terms, and, despite the difference of language, nothing can keep them from getting anything they want. There have been many funny incidents, and soon America may expect her share of strictly American humor stories pertaining to the war.

Naturally there has been nothing in Paris papers today but the arrival of the Americans. Three great reasons seem paramount for the enthusiasm of their welcome. The first is that it is felt that America is not fighting for selfish or material gains. The second is the rapidity of American action, and the third the gigantic resources the Americans will bring.

Herve Sees England Outdone.

Gustave Hervé says in La Victoire: "Don't forget that the fundamental quality of the American genius is rapidity of decision. Do not think that this young and vigorous people will take two years, like England, to bring a formidable army to our front. They will do in six months what England did in two years and astonish old Europe, not only by their gigantic strength, but by the rapidity with which that strength is set in motion. We now have on our side the most powerful nation in the whole world."

To sum up press opinion, the French now feel that they can breathe freely, that their ports will be developed, their railway systems unblocked, their food supply assured, their factories in full motion, and, to crown all, that before the end of the year the poilus will be made young and strong again by the great army of youth and chivalry from the United States.

Pershing at Napoleon's Tomb.

PARIS, June 14.—It was an impressive scene as General Pershing stood this morning with uncovered head at the tomb of Napoleon and paid silent tribute to one of the world's greatest commanders. The General, accompanied by his staff, was received at the Hôtel des Invalides by General Niox, the military commander of the historic monument, and General Malterre.

As the American party entered the spacious grounds leading to the building they encountered a number of veterans of the French wars who have their home at this institution. One of these was a grizzled soldier of the Crimea, who still wore the ancient uniform and carried on his breast decorations of the old days. As the veteran saluted General Pershing the General stopped and extended his hand, saying:

"It is a great honor for a young soldier like myself to press the hand of an old soldier like yourself, who has seen such glorious service."

Passing into the Invalides, General Niox conducted the American commander within the vast rotunda, with its walls hung with battle flags, and thence the party proceeded below to the crypt where the sarcophagus of Napoleon reposes. Entrance to the crypt is rigorously restricted, and it is seldom that any one is admitted except crowned heads or former heads of States, as in the case of ex-President Roosevelt when he visited Paris.

Inspects Napoleon's Sword.

General Pershing stood for some moments gazing at the impressive spectacle. He was then conducted to the Artillery Museum, where precious relics of Napoleon are preserved. The General was particularly interested in Napoleon's sword which the great commander brought from the battle of Jena. He examined it closely and marked its difference from the modern weapon. He then took up Napoleon's Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor and examined that also with care. The Americans spent an hour in the building.

After his visit to the Invalides General Pershing made a formal call on Ambassador Sharp, and was then escorted with military honors to the Elysée Palace to be presented to President Poincaré. At 1:30 o'clock the President and Mme. Poincaré gave a state breakfast in honor of the American commander. Other guests were Premier Ribot, Paul Painlevé, Minister of War; Marshal Joffre, René Viviani, Minister of Justice, and Ambassador Sharp.

French Chamber Acclaims Him.

General Pershing attended this afternoon's session of the Chamber of Deputies. When he entered the diplomatic gallery with Ambassador Sharp all the Deputies arose and cheered for several minutes. After the General had bowed his acknowledgments Premier Ribot made a statement on the abdication of King Constantine, and M. Viviani addressed the Chamber on the results of the French mission to the United States.

The first day spent in Paris by General Pershing was a continuous succession of enthusiastic popular demonstrations, given wherever the American commander made an appearance. Great throngs filled the Place de la Concorde early in the day, hoping to catch a glimpse of him. Hundreds of French soldiers on leave from the front mingled in the throngs and gave hearty greetings to the troopers of the Second Cavalry who accompanied General Pershing. A large American flag waved over the General's hotel, and everywhere the French and American colors were intertwined.

Yesterday's demonstration in honor of General Pershing was remarkable not only for the warmth of the welcome accorded to the American commander, but for its extension, with almost equal enthusiasm, to his compatriots. From hundreds of windows American flags were waved by men, women, and children. Sellers of American flags had improved the hour preceding the arrival of the party by distributing thousands of tiny Stars and Stripes. French shopgirls, with flags pinned to their breasts and their arms filled with flowers bought from their scanty savings, fairly fought for a chance to get near enough to the machines to hurl their offerings into the laps and on the shoulders of the astonished American officers, and every person recognized as an American was made the recipient of similar floral greetings. Boys, men, and girls, and even some old women, struggled to jump on the running board of General Pershing's car and shake hands with him.

He's General "Peurchigne" Now.

In their columns of description of the arrival of General Pershing and his staff the Paris newspapers find room today to enlighten the public on the proper pronunciation of the General's name—a name which, as the Figaro says, is "not one easily enunciated in the accent of Montmartre."

There was much diversity in the pronunciation among the populace, the favorite rendering being "Pareshang." But, adds the Figaro, "it will be common knowledge today that the name of the American General who comes to fight beside our soldiers is pronounced 'Peurchigne.'"

[Which orthography, the Figaro might have added, means in old French: "The folly of fear."]

Arrival Cheers British at the Front.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, June 14, (via London.)—The news of the arrival of General Pershing spread through the British armies today and was received with the utmost satisfaction. While Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig was represented in the welcoming of the vanguard of the American Army at the port of landing, more elaborate British honors await their visit to this section of the western front.

General Pershing will be a valued member of the allied war councils in the future, and will have the opportunity to study and witness the various offensive actions before his divisions arrive.

On his journey to France the General was enabled to see the efficiency of the British transport machinery in operation and was much impressed by it. Later he expects to go more thoroughly into the British system of handling supplies and men at the various bases, for the problems of the American forces with the overseas expedition will be largely similar to those which the British have so successfully solved.

JOFFRE'S EYES GIVE GREETING TO PERSHING

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 14.—The special train bearing General Pershing and his party to Paris arrived at the Gare du Nord. I happened to be where I had a close view of the details of his reception. General Pershing appeared in the doorway of the car. Immediately in front of his was the guard of honor, in gray uniforms, and at the left the Garde Republicaine band. The General's figure filled the small door of the car as he stood erect, motionless, and expressionless, his eyes fixed above the heads of the reception party, which occupied the clear space of the platform. The band immediately struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner." The General's right hand was instantly at salute and remained so until our national air and "La Marseillaise" were finished. He was a statuesque figure there—the very impersonation and incarnation of West Point training and tradition; as fine a speciment of American-style physical manhood as could be found in a month's search from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

When the music stopped General Pershing stepped abruptly down the car steps to the platform. Ambassador Sharp introduced himself and welcomed him; then Viviani. After the latter's effusive welcome Pershing turned a little to the right, and there stood "Papa" Joffre. I never want to see anything finer than the meeting of those two. Both hands of each went out to the other. They stood face to face without a word. I have never seen such a smile as wreathed the fact of the great Marshal. It did not change in the course of the salutation. His eyes were so fixed in their gaze on the American General that they had the expression of blindness. There was no need for a word from Joffre. What he was saying was as plain as if he were shouting it: "You have come, God bless you! a splendid soldier from a people unconquerable in their greatness, to help save France—my France! I know your country and I know you, and the salvation of France is sure." After that the handshaking with Painlevé, with the representatives from the Elysée, and even with Foch, seemed perfunctory.

As the party moved toward the gate there was a shout—a real rebel yell. It had not only the volume, but the tang in it—it smote one's tympanum. It took me back to New York and the shouting for Joffre that rocked the Woolworth Tower. This rebel yell was repeated over and over again. It was even more tremendous when the party reached the street and it was taken up and spread as by an electric current from square to square until it became faint in the distance.

I was able to get a taxi and rode down the Rue Lafayette behind the military party. I have often seen Paris in a gala mood before, but today it was an entirely different Paris. The people on the street were either old or very young. The females greatly outnumbered the males. Literally every face wore a smile—not the happy, care-free smile of the old fête days, but a smile that clearly came out of a suffering heart. The world had turned so bad that hope had almost died. The only good thing left was to meet whatever befell with patience and courage. Then suddenly there was good in the world, after all; there were chivalrous hearts, generous impulses, kinship among men. Now succor had come from far off, beautiful America. Here were the actual soldiers, who were to be followed by hundreds of thousands of others, bringing warm flesh and blood to help France.

Some such feeling was written on every upturned, grateful face, vibrated in every joyous shout.

General Pershing has a soldier's aversion for public statements and couldn't be drawn out on his visit to England, though possibly he may issue a statement later on or express himself in the course of some future speech. From what I learned of him on this voyage, and from what I have seen of the London reception, I feel no hesitation in saying that he and the whole staff are deeply pleased with their English experience. As one officer put it to me: "It was so fine and sincere that for any of us to speak would spoil it."

The English welcome is characteristically much less noisy than the American, but it was evident that the British had thrown off all reserve in the acceptance of the American partnership. There are no secrets; all the cards are down on the table. They appreciate that America has brought to the Allies assurance of victory at a moment of uncertainty in Russia. This situation was frankly faced by the British before the arrival of the expeditionary force. To clinch it, Pershing has won them. I heard on all sides the statement that no man from any quarter had come to England since the war and had met with such an immediate and cordial acceptance.

And, as a matter of fact, no American could have passed those four days in London without satisfaction and pride in the kind of representation Pershing and his staff have given. While their entertainment formed the chief subject of newspaper notice in London, I can say that most of their time was spent in good, hard work. The results of English experience were placed at the disposal of the heads of departments of the American Army. General Pershing and General Sir William Robertson had an opportunity of getting acquainted and exchanging views. In London Colonel Bradley, who will be in charge of all army medical and surgical work, joined the staff and came to France after spending some months in London and on the Continent studying his subject in the light of war conditions.

'ENFORCING PEACE' IS BEGUN.

Baker Says Pershing's Arrival Marks Our Active Participation.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Secretary Baker said in a formal statement issued late today that General Pershing's arrival in Paris signalized America's active participation in the war "to enforce peace with justice."

"The arrival of General Pershing and his staff in Paris," he said, "marks the beginning of America's active participation in the war. The splendid reception given these American officers, as well as the officers of our destroyer squadron, in England and France shows the harmony of spirit with which three great peoples are pursuing a common end. Our combined armies from now on will represent a league to enforce peace with justice."

'NO LONGER AN OCEAN.'

French Journalist Says America Is Now Fused with Europe.

PARIS, June 14.—Although this was one of the days when the popular Paris one-cent newspapers are restricted to two pages, because of the necessity of economizing on newsprint paper, they devote the greater part of one of these pages to descriptions of the arrival of General Pershing and his staff—this despite the demands of other important happenings.

Every fact obtainable about the General is set forth in the articles. His military record is dwelt upon, his family record traced, and his personal appearance descibed, these descriptions being reinforced by photographs of the American officer.

Typical among the graceful introductions to such articles is that by Maurice de Waleffe, who writes in the Journal:

"'There are no longer any Pyrenees,' said Louis XIV. when he married a Spanish Princess. 'There is no longer an ocean,' General Pershing might say with greater justice as he is about to mingle with ours the democratic blood of his soldiers. The fusion of Europe and America is the enormous fact to note. Henceforth there is but one human race, in the Old World as in the New, and we can repeat the words of Goethe at the battle of Valmy: 'From today a new order of things begins.'"

ENTENTE TROOPS OCCUPY ATHENS

EX-KING LEAVES CAPITAL

His Pro-German Politicians and Military Leaders to be Sent Into Exile with Him.

LONDON, June 14.—Former King Constantine's departure from Athens on Tuesday to embark on a British warship has been followed by the landing of Entente forces at Piraeus and Castella. Some of the troops, a dispatch from the Greek capital says, are occupying the heights near Phalerum Bay, while others are marching to Athens. The landing at Piraeus was effected in perfect order. At the suggestion of Premier Zaimis the Greek superior officer was placed at the disposal of General Sarrail to facilitate the housing of the disembarked troops.

High Commissioner Jonnart, in a letter to Premier Zaimis, said that for reasons of health it was impossible to keep the Entente troops and horses aboard the transports and, therefore, he had ordered them to land. The troops, Senator Jonnart said, would remain ashore pending their return shortly to resume the struggle against "Greece's traditional foes."

French Army Headquarters in Paris today gave out the following statement:

> Thessaly.—Our cavalry has occupied Trikala. A battalion of chasseurs has been transferred to Volo. Local incidents which marked the entrance of our troops into Larissa yesterday have not recurred. The advance of our detachments has been effected without difficulty.

The former King with the former Queen and Crown Prince and other members of the family left Athens by motor car. Professor Georgios Streit, former adviser of the Greek Foreign Office, accompanied Constantine as his secretary, according to dispatches from Athens. The deposed monarch's proclamation announcing his abdication was posted throughout the streets of the capital. It read:

"Obeying the necessity of fulfilling my duty toward Greece, I am departing from my beloved country with the heir to the throne and am leaving my son Alexander my crown. I beg you to accept my decision with calm, as the slightest incident may lead to a great catastrophe."

It is said here that all the members of the royal family, except the new King, will leave the country accompanied by the most prominent pro-German politicians and military leaders who formed Constantine's entourage.

The correspondent at Athens of the Exchange Telegraph Company says he understands that High Commissioner Jonnart informed Premier Zaimis that when the war was over and order which the Allies would exact had been reestablished, Constantine would be permitted to resume his throne if such was the will of the Greek people.

No indication has yet reached London as to the line of policy Eliptherios Venizelos intends to adopt regarding the change in sovereignty in Greece, but he already has declared that at the end of the war he intended to leave to a Greek national convention a revision of the Constitution which would aid in depriving the sovereign of the possibility of again interfering with the wishes of the people as expressed by their representatives in Parliament.

LUGANO, Switzerland, June 14.—One of the private secretaries of former King Constantine of Greece arrived here last Sunday and began a search for a large villa suitable for a royal personage. Prince von Bülow, the former German Imperial Chancellor, and several other German diplomatists are staying here. It is reported that ex-King Constantine will likely cross the Swiss frontier early next week and go to Berlin, afterward returning to Switzerland, where he will make his home.

WANT CONSTANTINE HELD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, June 15.—The Daily Chronicle, after pointing out that the chief credit for Constantine's deposition belongs to Lloyd George and Painlevé, who realized its urgent necessity, says no great enthusiasm will be felt anywhere for the arrangement which places the King's second son, the German Emperor's nephew, on the vacant throne, and urges the Allies not to deal with the pro-German clique which surrounded the former King.

"General Dusmanis and Colonel Metaxtas of the General Staff; Georgios Streit, the King's diplomatic mentor, and M. Gounaris and some others of his political puppets are personages whose past conduct and future plans are not a purely Greek affair. It was they, no less than King Constantine, who made difficulty for the Allies during the last one and a half years, and will continue to make it if left at large. The least that we should do is to secure their expulsion from Greece. An alternative preferable on many grounds would be to keep them in custody for the duration of the war."

The Morning Post, taking the same line, says:

"It is necessary to remember that as long as the clique which directed the King's policy remains, so long will there be trouble. The King may or may not have been a figurehead, but it is certain he would have been impotent for mischief without the men who surrounded him, whereas, if they are left, no change of Kings will make much difference. It would be a crime against the interests of Greece and the Allies if such men were left at liberty."

The Morning Post concludes with a demand that Constantine and his advisers shall not be permitted to join the Central Powers, where they would renew their intrigues from a secure basis. They should, it says, be kept as hostages until after the war.

KAISER GREATLY CHAGRINED.

Constantine's Fall Causes "Painful Impression" to German Staff.

THE HAGUE, June 14.—A Cologne dispatch says that the news of King Constantine's abdication created a painful impression at German headquarters. The Kaiser expressed great chagrin and sent his brother-in-law and Queen Sophia a message of sympathy.

BERLIN, June 13, (via London, June 14.)—The absence of adequate telegraphic connections with Greece has left Berlin without authentic information regarding events there since the news of the abdication of King Constantine was received. The Greek Legation has been cut off for several weeks from all communication with its Government, receiving only occasional perfunctory instructions of a routine nature by way of Switzerland.

The impression prevails here that the new state of affairs will have no bearing on the military situation in Macedonia. The evening papers publish copious comments and retrospects lauding Constantine. The Lokal-Anzeiger says:

"The news indicates the final chapter in one of the moving tragedies of the world war. This is not a tragedy with a single hero; this is the story of the ravishment of a whole people, and in vain will one search history for a parallel.

"It is plain as sunlight that Constantine laid down his crown only because he had not the heart to deliver up his people to starvation at the command of England and France. Russia and Italy appear to have been pushed aside in the recent Entente undertaking. The newly created and extraordinary envoy Jonnart has forced the King to abdicate, under pain of the confiscation of the harvest of Thessaly. Because the King was deprived through thumbscrew methods of every weapon with which he might effect his escape from such a predicament he was forced to decide to give up his throne."

The Tageblatt suggests that it is possible that the rôle Constantine played in Greece is not yet concluded. "If for the moment," this paper says, "Constantine was forced to retreat in the face of overpowering opposition, a source of comfort left to him, outside the consciousness of duty well done, is the knowledge that the new turn of things has disposed of his worst enemy, the man who has been opposing him in his own country.

"Venizelos and his movement, as is now plain, are but episodes in the progress of the tragedy of which we have been the spectators. Venizelos, a willing tool, is the grave digger of Greek independence. The pit, however, is also prepared for him, since the scope of his power and influence has proved a disappointment."

The Vossische Zeitung does not believe that active participation in the war on the part of Greece will have any decisive bearing on the final outcome. It says:

"Will Greece, in defiance of her most important immediate and future interests, be forced to send her sons to the French and English shambles? The answer must be forthcoming within a few days. However it may read, it will not have a decisive bearing on the final result.

"The sad contemplation with which we follow the progress of this Hellenic tragedy is unmixed with selfish thoughts or fears. It is purely of an ethical nature. It is the pain which every righteous thinking man must feel as he observes how hypocritical mendacity unites with force to drag down a small and valiant nation. Whatever may come, we Germans will not forget the high moral courage with which Constantine and his royal people persistently refused to take up arms against us."

RIBOT DENOUNCES EX-KING.

French Premier Says Venizelos Has Born Aloft Greece's Real Flag.

PARIS, June 14.—Premier Ribot, addressing the Chamber of Deputies today concerning the abdication of King Constantine, said conditions in Greece had become intolerable; that the attitude of Constantine had nullified the Constitution of Greece and amply justified the protecting powers in intervening in such manner as to secure the indispensable unity of the country.

"Greece," said M. Ribot, "was divided into two hostile camps, one hostile to the Allies and the other supporting them courageously with Eliptherios Venizelos bearing aloft the real flag of Greece."

Great applause greeted the mention of the name of M. Venizelos. M. Ribot then proceeded to explain to the Chamber the advantages which would arise from the new régime in Greece.

ITALY WISHES GREECE WELL.

ROME, June 14.—"The measure against King Constantine could not be avoided," said a semi-official statement given out here. "Constantine placed himself in a position which left him no other issue but to have the country compromised by his personal policy. Any further resistance on his part would have forced the protecting powers to adopt more radical measures and to treat Greece as an enemy.

"Everybody in Italy wishes Greece to enjoy absolute independence in harmonious accord with the right in the Mediterranean of the protecting powers. The hope is entertained that the new King will prevent the monarchy from being a disturbing element in the Allies' policy to inaugurate a régime of loyalty."

SAYS THE PEOPLE MOURN.

Greek Foreign Office Tells of ex-King's Fall—Attitude of Italy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Entente Powers are counting upon the adoption by King Alexander of Greece of a policy of loyalty toward the cause of the Entente. At the same time, it is believed that they will seek to induce the Greek Government to join the alliance against the Central Powers.

The Greek Legation received today the following dispatch from the Athens Foreign Office:

"The Government informs you with great sorrow that the King, under pressure of supreme political necessity, following the steps taken by three of the great powers, was obliged to leave Greece, accompanied by Queen Sophia and the Crown Prince George, leaving on the throne his son, Prince Alexander.

"The sorrow of the Greek people at the departure of their King is immense."

A semi-official dispatch received here today from Rome said:

"In political circles it is believed that the measures taken by the protecting powers (Great Britain, France, and Russia) against King Constantine could not have been delayed or avoided in any way, both in the interest of the Allies and of Greece herself.

"King Constantine had put himself in a position which made it impossible for him to save his country, which he had so unwisely and so utterly compromised with his personal policies. A futher resistance on his part would have obliged the protecting powers to take even more radical measures; that means measures that would have put Greece in the position to be treated as an enemy by these same powers, with serious prejudice to the monarchy.

"So far as Italy is concerned, it is emphatically stated that nobody in Italy has ever denied Greece the right to exist as a completely and absolutely independent nation. If there is a nation that is interested in having Greece enjoy not a formal, but a real and effective independence, this nation is Italy.

"Italy hopes that the young King Alexander will be able to get rid of the perturbing pro-German elements which have been for so long such serious dangers for the Allies. It is hoped that through a policy of loyalty toward the Allies, Greece will prepare for herself the future to which she has the full right.

"Under these conditions, Greece can count upon the disinterested and sincere friendship and collaboration of Italy to enable her to avoid the serious consequences of a policy not responsive to the legitimate aspirations of the country."

BRITISH WARSHIPS WIN FORT IN THE RED SEA

94 Turks, Machine and Mountain Guns Captured When Fort Saliff, North of Aden, Falls.

LONDON, June 14.—Fort Saliff, on the east shore of the Red Sea, has been captured by British warships, it was officially announced this evening. The announcement says:

> The Commander in Chief in the East Indies reports that Tuesday morning his Majesty's ships under his command captured the fort at Saliff after a resistance of three hours.
> The Fort is situated on the eastern shore of the Red Sea in the Kamaran anchorage, 180 miles north of Perim, between Loheiya and Hodeida.
> Ninety-four prisoners, three machine guns and two mountain guns, and military stores, camels and the harbor plant were captured.
> One Britisher was killed.

Fort Saliff is on Kamaran Bay, in Yemen Province, southwestern Arabia. Large rock salt works are located there.

The captured fort lies about 175 miles north of the Gulf of Aden. A force of Turks to the north of Aden has been long in the way of the British in attempts they have made to advance from that city. The purpose of the seizure of Fort Saliff may be in facilitation of a movement to work in behind this force and capture or disperse it.

MAY FREE IRISH PRISONERS.

Bonar Law Promises Early Announcement of British Decision.

LONDON, June 14.—The British Government is considering the granting of amnesty to the Irish prisoners arrested at the time of the rebellion last year.

Chancellor Bonar Law made this announcement in the House of Commons today. He said the Government's decision would be made known immediately.

NOT A SOLDIER HIT IN THE LONDON RAID

Lord Derby Reports That All Victims of German Attack Were Civilians.

REPRISALS ARE DEMANDED

Press Shows Revival of Demand for Air Attacks on German Cities—Death List Now Totals 104.

LONDON, June 14.—The Earl of Derby, Secretary of State for War, announced this afternoon that not a single soldier had been killed or wounded in Wednesday's air raids over England, which had been simply a killing and wounding of civilians, men, women and children, and from the German military viewpoint had absolutely no value whatever. He thought that no German airplane had been brought down yesterday.

He added that a notification had been received during the day that hostile aircraft were again approaching the country, but apparently there was no truth in the report.

Sir George Cave, Home Secretary, announced in the House of Commons this evening that the latest reports of the casualties in Wednesday's air raid showed that 104 persons had been killed and 134 seriously and 269 slightly injured. Altogether, he said, 120 children were killed or injured.

James I. McPherson, Parliamentary Secretary for the War Office, said that the air raiders crossed the Channel in twelve minutes. He said he understood it to be true that one of them was brought down near Shoeburyness, near which is the practicing grounds for heavy ordnance and where there is an extensive artillery barracks.

Yesterday's raid has greatly strengthened the hands of those who so long have advocated a reprisal against German towns, and the Government, which heretofore has been opposed thereto, will again be urged in Parliament to take this step.

The Westminster Gazette, which opposes reprisals, suggests that the best way of stopping raids on open towns is for the Entente Allies to intimate to the enemy that they are determined after the war to use their economic power against all who practice frightfulness in the air or under the sea, or accumulate instruments of war and destruction.

Referring to the seamen's refusal to carry pacifists because of the cruelties inflicted by the German unlimited submarine war, the newspaper says the same feeling has been aroused in the East End of London, where the demand is not for ending the war. On the contrary, thousands of working people vow, the newspaper says, they never again will handle German goods or have dealings with the people who they hold responsible for these outrages.

Firemen, ambulance workers, physicians, and nurses, assisted by the police, were engaged throughout the night in the search for the bodies of victims in the areas which suffered most heavily. There were pathetic scenes in hospitals and police stations, where women and men waited for hours in the hope of receiving more favorable news regarding missing relatives.

BERLIN, June 14, (via London.)—Today's German official statement says:

"A fleet of our large airplanes reached London yesterday afternoon and dropped bombs over the fort. Good hits were observed during the clear weather. In spite of a strong defensive fire and numerous aerial engagements, during which a British airman fell down over the Thames, all our airplanes returned unharmed."

ZEPPELIN IS BROUGHT DOWN.

The L-43 Is Destroyed by British Naval Forces in the North Sea.

LONDON, June 14.—Zeppelin L-43 was destroyed this morning over the North Sea by naval forces, Chancellor Bonar Law announced today in the House of Commons. The Admiralty reports that no survivors of the Zeppelin were seen.

Soon after being attacked the L-43 burst into flames fore and aft and fell into the sea.

NORTHCLIFFE FOR REPRISAL.

Says Germans Will Continue Raiding Until Similar Attacks Are Made.

Lord Northcliffe wants the British Government to permit reprisals for German air raids. He read of Wednesday's raid in London in the papers yesterday and, just before his departure for Washington, said:

"Air raids over London and other English towns will continue as long as the British Government declines to allow reprisal raids over German towns and population centres."

Lord Northcliffe will pay his respects to President Wilson and will call on the British Ambassador in Washington. Then he will return to this city to open offices from which to direct his work in supervising the undertakings of the various British commissions here.

FRANCE LOOKS TO US FOR AIRPLANE INCREASE

Semi-Official Statement Tells of Co-operation Against Germany's Big Spring Offensive.

PARIS, Wednesday, June 13, (Delayed.)—A semi-official note concerning the strengthening of the flying branch of the allied service and the co-operation of America in this effort says:

"Fantastic figures have been published regarding the increase of the Aviation Corps; but to realize what a great effort confronts us it is only necessary to see what the enemy is doing. Germany purposes to bring in line for the Spring of 1918 machines to the number of 3,500.

"In comparison with the thousands and millions with which certain writers have juggled, this seems feeble. It is, nevertheless, considerable, for it is not only a question of having so many machines. The number must be maintained, and, to maintain it, drafts calculated at 50 per cent. for the light, fast machines and at 30 per cent. for the heavy machines must be furnished monthly.

"Without giving the French figures, it may be said that they are considerable and comforting, and that construction will be powerfully helped by American co-operation, which will enable France to maintain the mastery of the air."

"The help asked of the United States has already been arranged for in accordance with precise, exact plans and consists: First, of the dispatch of a first contingent of trained pilots who will complete their instruction in France and the dispatch to America of a contingent of French instructors sent at the request of the United States; secondly, increased shipments from America of half-finished parts and the co-operation of American industry with French industry in certain French plants capable of vast development, and, finally, the production of engines and complete machines by America according to her own means and methods.

"This program has been thoroughly worked out by the aeronautical authorities, and its application in America has been intrusted to Captain André Tardieu, (the French High Commissioner to the United States.)

"It is a formidable enterprise which, developing rapidly, will be carried through methodically."

SOCIALIST IN REICHSRAT DEMANDS PEACE MOVE

Wants Proclamation on Basis of No Annexations or Indemnities.

LONDON, June 14.—According to a Vienna dispatch, Karl Seitz, a Socialist, in a discussion of the budget in the Austrian lower house made a strong plea for peace on the basis of no annexations or indemnities. He said the aim of the Stockholm conference was to remove misunderstandings and that if successful in this the Socialists hoped to be able to start in all countries a great uniform movement in the interest of peace.

"We demand from the Government a frank and unreserved statement that it is ready to do everything to put an end to this terrible slaughter by a solemn proclamation on a basis of no annexations and no indemnities," he said. "Such a proclamation would be a sign of strength, not of weakness."

A Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam quotes a Vienna dispatch as stating that in the upper house of the Reichsrat the Premier said the Government, while it was emphatically maintaining the foundations of the Constitution, recognized the necessity of enlarging constitutional institutions with the idea of doing more justice than previously to the wishes and needs of the people, according to their national cultural development and activity, while preserving the historical structure of the State.

NORTHCLIFFE AT CAPITAL.

Head of British Commission Probably Will Call on Lansing Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Lord Northcliffe, head of the British War Commission, arrived in Washington tonight, accompanied by his secretary, and they were met at the station by Captain Guy Gaunt and Thomas Spring-Rice, Secretary to the British Ambassador. Lord Northcliffe refused to comment on the purposes of his visit here until he had presented his credentials to the State Department. He probably will call upon Secretary Lansing tomorrow, and it is said that arrangements will then be made for a conference with President Wilson.

It is understood that during his stay here Lord Northcliffe will get in touch with the various Government officials and will endeavor to arrange for a complete system of co-operation with them on all matters pertaining to the wartime activities of Great Britain and the United States. It is probable that he will have permanent headquarters in New York and may also have offices here.

FIRE SCATTERS AUSTRIANS.

ROME, June 14.—Today's War Office statement says:

> On the Asiago Plateau last night the enemy made a surprise attack on the position we recently took on the Moye Origia. The attack failed, owing to our vigilance. The enemy then attacked in force and with extreme violence, but the defenders, resisting firmly, drove him back in disorder with heavy loss.

Crown Prince Rupprecht—Both in Flanders and in the Artois the artillery duels were intense only in isolated sectors. East of Ypres we exploded several mines, which played havoc with the British position. South of the Douve minor engagements in front of our position developed. The position remained unchanged.

Army Group of the German Crown Prince—After several hours of preparatory fire, the French attacked near Vauxaillon, northeast of Soissons. They were repelled. Otherwise the artillery activity was generally unimportant.

The evening communication, issued by the War Office, says:

WON MESSINES BY GUNFIRE.

Every Object Attained by This Offensive, Says Maurice.

LONDON, June 14.—The Messines offensive was the most successful attack which the British have yet made, every single objective that was marked in the preliminary plans having been attained, said Major Gen. F. B. Maurice, Chief Director of Military Operations at the War Office, in his weekly talk with The Associated Press today.

Comparing this assault with the Somme battle, General Maurice stated that the British gained on the first day more than twice the ground captured in the first four days of the conflict along the Somme, while the British casualties at Messines, using the same periods for comparison, were only one-fourth what they were in the Somme fighting.

General Maurice was optimistic in his talk today. Remarking that the British successes were steadily growing, he added:

"We still have the undeveloped resources of America behind us, which gives us complete confidence in the future."

Discussing the British method of attack at Messines, General Maurice said the impression had got about that the success in this assault was due to the great mine explosions, but that this was a false idea.

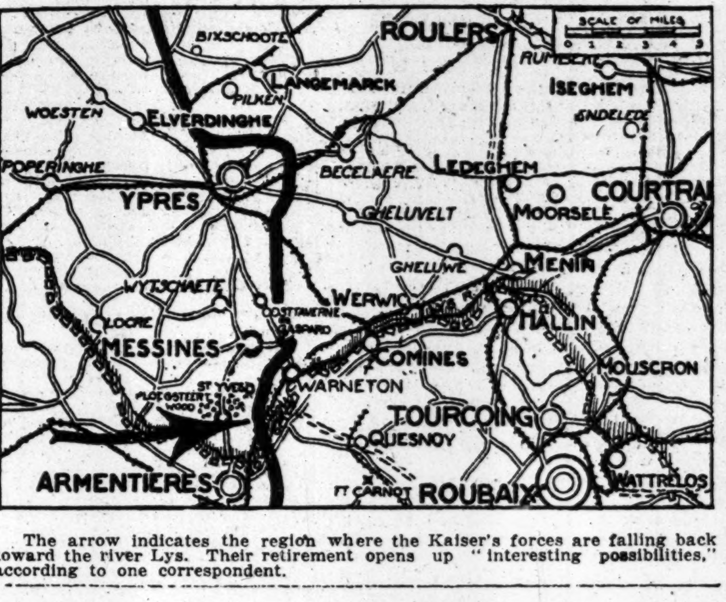
"Our real success was due to the arrangement of our artillery fire and the superiority of our artillery over the Germans'," he said. "This artillery superiority in turn was due mainly to our superiority in the air service which directs the artillery.

"The million pounds of explosives set off certainly was an aid in the attack, since it caused a panic among the Germans and permitted our men to get through more easily. But our mines were under the German front line trenches, which were not held strongly, so I believe the explosions caused only a small proportion of the casualties which the Germans suffered.

"Our success in attaining everything we set out to get in this battle is the more striking because the Germans knew an attack was impending. I have just obtained some German orders which were captured from prisoners, and these show the enemy was conversant of what was going on. One order, dated May 31, gives the approximate time of the British attack, stating that it would take place between June 3 and 9. Another order stated that the Messines-Wytschaete ridge would be the objective, and pointed out to the German troops holding this section that this position was most important and must not be given up. A further order said that the British aviators were becoming increasingly daring, and that the British practice of swooping down low over the German trenches must be stopped by machine-gunners.

"The destruction caused by our artillery in this battle was terrific. I have toured the section since the attack and found every dug-out, every observation post, every trench, and every machine-gun emplacement smashed. This means very heavy German casualties."

Scene of the New German Retirement.



The arrow indicates the region where the Kaiser's forces are falling back toward the river Lys. Their retirement opens up "interesting possibilities," according to one correspondent.

REPAIRING GERMAN RAVAGES.

French Soldier-Peasants Accomplish Wonders by Cultivating Land.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT, May 30, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Wonders have been done by the French soldiers in assisting nature to repair the ravages committed by the Germans during their retreat from the lines held for two years and a half from Soissons to the Somme.

The Associated Press correspondent, when he followed with the pursuing French troops immediately on the heels of the retiring enemy, found the country one vast waste, with all the fruit trees cut down ruthlessly, agricultural implements twisted and distorted, houses burned or blown to rubbish heaps, wheat fields trodden down—in fact, everywhere there was evidence of the passage of the destroyer.

Today when the correspondent on his way to a part of the front on the new French lines passed over the same territory there were signs of healing of the wounds inflicted on the earth. Roads which had been full of gaping holes caused by mines had been leveled, fields had been cleared of rubbish and planted with grain and vegetables, fruit trees in hundreds of cases had been doctored by grafting or had been bound with clay and tar where their bark had been hacked away and were in full bloom; plows, harrows, and rollers were at work in the charge of peasant soldiers, and the whole countryside had been revivified through the joint efforts of willing workers and the Spring weather.

The only jarring features in the landscape were the ruined villages, the inhabitants of which have disappeared either by being deported by the Germans or having taken refuge in other parts of France to be cared for under less harrowing circumstances than are to be found in the devastated districts. Much of the territory is still within range of the German guns, and this fact, together with the difficulty of furnishing provisions to civilians in a country where the usual resources had been destroyed and the military authorities have their hands full in supplying the troops, decided the Government to send the remaining civilians away until a more convenient period.

A considerable portion of the land had been sown with grain by the Germans before their departure, their intention being to use the produce to replenish their own reduced stocks. The French and British pressure, however, forced them to retreat before they were able to benefit from their labor. They did their utmost to make the land they had cultivated useless to their pursuers, but evidently forgot that the French soldiers were mostly farmers and peasants.

The French authorities soon recovered from their first shock over the destruction and organized a system by which everything possible should be saved from the wreck. Advantage was taken of the fact that every unit engaged in the fighting line was entitled to a short period of repose at stated intervals and was then sent to the rear. Those among the men accustomed to farm work were during this period asked to volunteer to cultivate the land, and it was found that large numbers of them were only too eager to do so. This made it possible to undertake extensive farming operations. Within a few weeks large tracts of land had been brought into productive cultivation. All along the main roads and country lanes may be seen boards at the edges of fields bearing the words "Cultivated by the Army," and tens of thousands of acres which the Germans thought they had rendered unproductive will the coming Fall bear large crops.

lead to Russia's resuming her proper place in the ranks of those who are fighting for the establishment of permanent peace.

PETROGRAD, June 14.—The Cabinet has decided to suggest a conference with the Allies to examine the various treaties among the several allied powers.

COUNCIL ANSWERS ALLIED LABOR ENVOYS

Explains Its Position Regarding Call for International Socialist Peace Conference.

PETROGRAD, June 14.—The Executive Committee of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council, in a statement replying to a joint letter addressed to it by Albert Thomas, the French Minister of Munitions; Arthur Henderson, British Minister without portfolio, and Emile Vandervelde, Belgian Minister of Munitions, expressing surprise that a call had been issued by the council for an international conference to consider peace before the negotiations between the British, French and Belgian delegations and the council had been concluded, explains its position regarding the impending international Socialist conference.

"The Russian revolution," says the statement, "which is a revolt of the people not only against the tyranny of Czarism, but also against the horrors of the world war, the blame for which falls upon international imperialism, has placed before all countries, with extraordinary acuteness, the urgent need of concluding peace.

"At the same time the Russian revolution has indicated to the nations a way for realizing this problem, notably a union of all the working classes to combat all attempts of imperialism to prolong the war in the interests of the wealthy classes and to prevent peace without annexations or indemnities.

"The working classes of all countries can easily come to a speedy solid agreement only if they are inspired with their own interests and remove the aspirations of imperialists and militarists, who often hide their true face under a seductive mask. It is evident that the conference can become the turning point in the terrible epoch of fratricidal war only if the members of the conferences are imbued with these ideas. And it is no less evident that all the questions you have raised cannot be the subject of discord or a motive for a continuation of the war.

"Having recognized the right of nations to dispose of their destiny, the members of the conference will come to an understanding without difficulty regarding the future of Alsace-Lorraine and other regions. Moreover, the working classes, relieved of the mutual distrust with which the imperialists have envenomed them, will agree regarding the means of granting compensation and the amount of such compensation to the countries devastated by war, like Belgium, Poland, Galicia, and Serbia. But it goes without saying that such compensation must have nothing in common with the contribution which is imposed on the conquered country.

"Regarding your statement that it is impossible for you to break the secret union—this statement evidently is based on a misunderstanding, for the Council of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates claims from no party as a preliminary condition the renunciation of the policy already pursued by it. The council expects from the conference of the Socialists of the belligerent and neutral countries the creation of an Internationale, which will permit all the working classes of the whole world to struggle in concert for a general peace and break the bonds which unite them by force to the Governments and the classes imbued with imperialistic tendencies which prevent peace.

"The Council of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates also considers it futile for parties to make it an absolute condition of their taking part in the conference that the preliminary consent of other parties shall be obtained to any obligatory decision, for that would give rise to irreconcilable contradictions on questions an amicable discussion of which might lead to a solution acceptable to both parties.

"Regarding your desire to obtain a previous complete agreement between the allied Socialists, the way in which we put the problem renders futile any such understanding. We consider that the conference can succeed only if the Socialists consider themselves, not the representatives of the two belligerent parties, but the representatives of a single movement of the working classes toward a common aim of a general peace."

CABINET WARNS ARMY.

Decrees Severe Punishment for Acts of Insubordination.

PETROGRAD, June 14.—A Government decree has been issued declaring all acts of military disorder to be insubordination, including refusal to fight and also incitement to fight against the Government. Such acts, says the decree are punishable by long sentence to servitude in the penitentiary and the deprivation of rights to property and also the right to receive land under the coming land redistribution.

General Denikine, former Chief of Staff, has been nominated to succeed General Gurko in command of the armies on the western front.

The conflict caused by Finland's claim that the rights of the former Emperor as Grand Duke of Finland did not pass automatically to the Provisional Government has been satisfactorily settled by a new law which will be valid until Russo-Finnish relations are permanently regulated by the Constituent Assembly. The right to decide all State transactions, excepting affairs affecting Russian subjects, and also the right to fill the date for the opening and closing of the Finnish Diet is conceded to the Finnish Senate.

Finland also gets the right of legislative initiative, the right to confirm the budget, revoke administrative decrees, summon the Ecclesiastical Council, and, finally, the right to pardon offenders, counted in almost all countries as a sovereign prerogative. The law practically confers on Finland complete internal autonomy.

The Minister of Finance is preparing a law creating a State sugar monopoly on the general lines of Count Witte's great vodka monopoly. Henceforth all home-produced sugar will be purchased by the State at a price based on the cost of production. It will be sold at prices fixed by the Ministers of Supplies and Finance.

Retail sale will be carried on by State stores, by co-operative societies and also by private dealers, to whom a fixed commission will be paid. The price to the purchaser will be the wholesale price plus the trader's outlay and commission.

STOCKHOLM PLANS AWRY.

Russians Report Difficulties in Way of Socialist Conference.

PETROGRAD, June 14.—The semi-official news agency says it understands the convocation of the conference at Stockholm proposed by the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates is encountering serious difficulties of a technical and political character.

STOCKHOLM, June 14.—The delegation sent by the German Social Democratic Party and the German trades unions to the International Socialist Conference conferred on Monday and Tuesday with the permanent Dutch-Scandinavian Committee, which submitted to it questions which have been or will be placed before all the other delegations. The arrangements to be reached regarding Alsace-Lorraine and Belgium were discussed at length. The Germans replied in writing to these questions, and their answers will be published shortly.

The delegation also renewed its declarations of agreement with the resolutions adopted by the international conference at Copenhagen regarding international arbitration, limitation of armaments, abolition of the prize law and suspension of secret diplomacy. It proclaimed itself hostile to prolongation of the present struggle by economic war after the cessation of military operations. The delegation unconditionally declared itself in favor of a general conference, regarding it as the elementary duty of the Socialist Party to work for the establishment of permanent peace.

BERLIN, June 14, (via London.)—The delay in the departure of the delegates of the German Independent Socialists for the Stockholm Socialist Conference is explained by Eduard Bernstein as due to their desire to arrive at the seat of the conference when the real sessions are about to begin and the presence of the various international groups is assured.

ASSAILS WILSON NOTE.

Berlin Paper Professes to See British Inspiration in It.

BERLIN, June 14, (via London.)—The newspapers continue to comment on President Wilson's note to Russia. The Tageszeitung says:

"The text of this note appears to have been formulated in collaboration with Mr. Balfour (the British Foreign Secretary.) In its various terms it reminds one strongly of the communication the Englishmen addresed to Washington last Winter elucidating the Central Powers' note to neutrals.

"We welcome this note because we hope it will destroy several illusions in Germany respecting the United States, and put an end to the fable about the 'cloistered solitude and scholarly nature' of President Wilson, as well as shatter impressions of his alleged idealism.

"President Wilson's politics is aiming at nothing more or less than an achievement which would mean a dominion of Anglo-Saxon capitalism. The accomplishment of this purpose would be an event of graver consequence than all the issues of annexation or no annexation. The Russians undoubtedly already are experiencing the effects of this Anglo-Saxon capitalism."

WITHOUT DELAY.

WAR DELAY A STAIN, ROOSEVELT ASSERTS

CALLS PACIFISTS TRAITORS

Declares They Cared Nothing for National Honor So Long as Their "Feet Were in the Trough."

LINCOLN, Neb., June 14.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who arrived here today to deliver the principal address on this, the closing day of the celebration of the semi-centennial of Nebraska Statehood, was welcomed by a great crowd, which paraded and sang and cheered. He held a reception at a hotel "for personal friends only."

"I wanted to go to the war," he said, "and the people wanted me to go. But now I am feeling fine. I keep my good health by having a very bad temper, kept under good control."

Colonel Roosevelt, in his address on "Americanism," criticised the policy of the United States for failure to protest promptly against German ruthlessness and brutality, deplored national failure to prepare for war, pleaded for undivided loyalty to the American flag, denounced the pacifists, and asked for generous support and for the use of the Red Cross in caring for American troops on European battlefields.

One of Colonel Roosevelt's digressions from his written address was directed at the German language newspapers. "These newspapers printed in German are a fit subject for the attention of the censor," he said. "I think the English language, seeing it is our language, does pretty well without the assistance of the German or any other tongue. I might have been Sheriff of my county, but I never would have been President if I had learned and only spoke Dutch, the language of my ancestors."

In the course of his address Colonel Roosevelt asserted that "the clergyman who does not put the flag above the church had better close his church and keep it closed. He urged farmers to buy Liberty Loan bonds, and said:

"We permitted our national policy," he said, "to be swayed by the national devotions and national antipathies of men who exercised the rights of American citizens, but showed themselves traitors to America by the way in which they prostituted our citizenship to the interests of Germany or to their hatred of England. It would be impossible to overstate the damage done to the moral fibre of our country by the professional pacifist propaganda, the peace-at-any-price propaganda. The professional pacifists during the first two and a half years of the war have occupied precisely the position of the copperheads during the time of Abraham Lincoln.

"The fact that sheer cowardice was more potent than the love of peace was proved by the fact that the leading pacifists dared not condemn a single specific act of wrongdoing when such act was committed by the powerful and brutal foe they most feared—Germany. They clamored for neutrality between Germany and Belgium. They denounced war in language which reflected as heavily on the fathers who were defending their wives and daughters from outrage as upon the aggressors who systematically practiced rape and torture. By their failure to protest against the inhuman torture of the poison gas they made it necessary hereafter to accept this as an ordinary instrument of warfare; just as, by our failure to take immediate action in connection with the murder of innocent noncombatants by submarines, we committed an offense against humanity the effects of which cannot be completely eradicated by any subsequent action on our part.

Denounced Policy of Delay.

"All this meanness and abandonment of duty was championed by the professional pacifists on the plea that thereby we should be 'kept out of war.' And by their political pressure they prevented us from preparing, and kept us utterly unprepared, on the ground that preparedness invited war; their motto was 'Safety first,' not 'Duty first.' They cared nothing for righteousness. They cared nothing for humanity. They cared nothing for our national honor or interest. All they asked was a 'peace' that would permit us to get all four feet in the trough while we strove to distract attention from the squalid baseness of our materialism by the shrill clamor of a sham sentimentality.

"And nevertheless we have not been kept out of war. Our avoidance of duty simply invited such cumumlative repetition of insult and injury that finally war was forced on us. It merely resulted in our drifting into war stern foremost, in a condition of such complete unreadiness that we owe an ignoble safety exclusively to the protection of the exhausted nations to whose help we have announced that we intend to come.

"From this time on let us insist on an absolute and undivided Americanism in this land, untempered by any self-allegiance to the countries from which our ancestors may severally have sprung and untainted by any unworthy national animosity toward any other country. Let us prepare ourselves spiritually, economically, and in all military and naval matters—including as a permanent policy the policy of universal military training and service—so that never again shall we be utterly unready, as we now are, to meet a great crisis. Finally, in the present war, a war for liberty and democracy against the ruthless militaristic tyranny of the Prussianized Germany of the Hohenzollerns, let us as speedily as possible train our giant, but our soft and unready, strength, so that we may use our hardened might to bring the slaughter to a real and final end in the only way honorably possible, by securing for ourselves and our allies the peace of justice, based on overwhelming victory.

Appeal for Red Cross.

"The most important thing is to send abroad at the earliest possible moment a great fighting army. Second only to the army in the work of winning this war comes our Red Cross. Indeed, the importance of this work is so great that the President of the United States has set apart next week—from June 18 to 25—as a period for sacrifice and unselfish generosity, a week in which the whole American people will be asked to join in raising funds to enable our Red Cross to perform its vast and indispensable duties in this war.

"The President has also commissioned several of the ablest business men of the country as a War Council of the Red Cross, to administer this service on behalf of a stricken world. This War Council tells us that a fund of $100,000,000 must be raised at once, in order to meet even the most urgent needs. Here, indeed, is a summons to every American. It is an enormous sum of money; but what comfort can we take in withholding that or any other sum of money if it is needed to relieve the suffering of our own sons or the sons of our allies who are fighting for all that makes life worth living?

"Into our Red Cross without stint should be poured a heartfelt offering of thanksgiving that we are permitted to join in this great service to all mankind. Our soldies and sailors will do their part without flinching; we may rest assured of their courage and fidelity. The Red Cross offers to us who are not allowed to fight the opportunity for sacrifice and for help.

"Our Red Cross must not only care for the shattered bodies of our wounded men; it alone can become a foster parent to them in the trying conditions they are sure to face when they are convalescent from wounds or recovering from exhaustion. We shall soon have an army of a million soldiers. When they go to France they must have homes in which to rest and to be cared for and to recover. The generosity of our whole people must make it possible for our Red Cross to provide for them.

"In no previous war have the innocent noncombatants had to bear so terrible a share of its physical suffering. And it is through our Red Cross that we can show to the nations of the world how the great heart of the American people goes out to them in their distress. France—proud, brave, bleeding from ghastly wounds—needs us sorely. To Russia, too, we must reach out our helping hand. We little know what she has suffered and is suffering. Russia, long obedient to autocracy, has not flinched in this conflict."

FLIERS CAN WIN WAR, SENATORS ARE TOLD

Navy of the Air to be the Decisive Factor in the Conflict, Howard E. Coffin Says.

NEED THOUSANDS OF PLANES

Head of Aircraft Board Confident That Germany Cannot Keep Pace with Us in Turning Out Machines.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—"The Allies must create a new navy—the navy of the air—if we are to win this war," said Howard E. Coffin, Chairman of the Aircraft Production Board, in testifying today before the Senate sub-committee which is considering the Sheppard-Hulbert bill providing for an aeronautical department, with a Cabinet minister at its head.

"The airplane is going to be the decisive factor in this war," Mr. Coffin said. "Of that war experts are beginning to be more convinced every day."

Mr. Coffin, who backed up Admiral Peary's testimony of Monday, said the United States should rush work on airplanes so that thousands of them could be shipped to France in the next few months. The work ought not to stop, he declared, until the war is won.

It is becoming evident to those who are studying this situation that, whatever factor aircraft may play in the ultimate decision of the fight, it is a certainty that neither side can win without the supremacy of the air.

"That supremacy comprehends a strip of territory from fifty to sixty miles behind the fighting front," said Mr. Coffin. "As matters stand now the productive capacity is practically balanced in Europe. It is a grave question whether or not the German machines are not superior machines, but it is a certainty that the personnel of the Allies' service is superior, man for man.

"There is a difference in airmen. The German is a more methodical type of airman, who acts under orders, while the British, French, and American airmen use their own initiative. The airman must of necessity act largely upon initiative, and as ours do and the Germans seldom do, we have the advantage.

"As a matter of historical fact, the fighting in France is now practically all behind the German lines, and this gives the Germans one advantage in the fighting in that when one of the Allies' machines is brought down, it is on enemy territory. But the greater advantage is with the Allies, in that they are helping, little by little, to push the enemy back. We have to lose machines and men, but we gain ground in doing it.

"The last movements of the allied forces, about which we have been reading for the last few days, was largely dependent upon aircraft at every stage of its move. There were three distinct strata of aircraft in the air—the light one-seater, the fastest fighting machines fifteen to twenty thousand feet in the air. These machines were protecting the wireless. The communication machines were flying at an intermediate altitude and controlling every move of the troops, telling them where to advance and where to wait until machine guns had been cleaned out by artillery. Beneath these two were bombing machines flying low enough to use machine guns with deadly effect. I believe the result of this battle has clinched the statements which we have heard in many directions for many months that aircraft must ultimately be a deciding factor in the war.

"Training fields are already under construction and several more authorized. The program of construction of machines is well under way. We have producing facilities here to make unlimited numbers of machines, when once started on a definite program. We cannot jump into this thing and produce unlimited quantities within a few months."

Senator Beckham asked how long it would be before the United States could create an adequate "air navy."

"We ought to be far advanced by Jan. 1," replied Mr. Coffin. "We will have to convert different factories for the various phases of the work. Motor concerns could be converted easily to such uses. But we must have co-ordination, and the way to get it is to create the department of aeronautics with its head a member of the Cabinet. We must bring the army and navy air operations under one head. We need money to do the work."

Mr. Coffin explained that there was co-ordination now in the air activity, but that it needed even more concentrated management. The joint tactical committee, composed of three technical army and three navy men, he said, decides upon the type of machines desired and all matters pertaining to the construction of aircraft. They arrive at their decisions, he said, and submit them to the Aircraft Production Board, which is responsible for co-ordinating the industrial activities required for the service.

Only recently, Mr. Coffin said, at a conference of Canadian, British, and American air experts at Buffalo, a type of training machine had been agreed upon, so as to have a standard type for the three forces. The French have worked independently. One important development by American air experts at the front, he said, had been that of a high-speed machine used for scouting and attack.

"Some of these high-speed machines are now in this country," said Mr. Coffin. "Others will soon be here, which our manufacturers will standardize with the French machine of the same type."

Asked by Senator Brady if he thought the $54,000,000 carried in the bill before the committee would be enough to do the work mapped out, Mr. Coffin replied:

"Decidedly not. We need much more than that, but we can do a good deal with it."

Mr. Coffin felt confident, he said, that Germany would not be able to compete with the Allies in the air if America pushed the work of building the airplanes.

"Germany's manufacturing resources are already strained to the breaking point. If she attempts to produce aircraft she must weaken somewhere else. We can have the air supremacy and win the war if we go at the work in dead earnest now and don't stop until the war is over," Mr. Coffin concluded.

50 KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

Great Property Damage by Blow-Up at Ashton-Under-Lyne.

LONDON, June 14.—Fifty persons were killed and many persons were injured by an explosion at Ashton-under-Lyne, Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today. Ashton-under-Lyne is a manufacturing town near Manchester.

In giving the House this statement on the casualties at Ashton-under-Lyne the Chancellor said the figures represented the facts as far as ascertained. The explosion was in a privately owned plant. Much damage, he added, was done neighboring works, mills, and dwellings.

A considerable number of the victims were children, who were on their way home from school at the time, and were killed or wounded by fragments of débris of all kinds, especially parts of the framework of gas tanks, which were hurled in every direction.

100 MEN ROUNDED UP FOR DODGING DRAFT

COLUMBIA DROPS SAMSON

Unable to Countenance Activities of Youthful Goldman Follower—Court Probationers Disappear.

Policemen and Federal agents brought to the Federal Building yesterday about 100 men of draft age who had failed to register for service under the selective draft law. One of the men, Reuben Bergstrom, a porter employed in the Public Library, was held in $5,000 bail to await the action of the Federal Grand Jury. The others, all of whom were penitent, readily agreed to register.

Three of the men arrested at the anti-draft meeting held in Harlem on Tuesday night were indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday. They were Philip Levine, Herman Woslow and William Herrguth. Until yesterday Levine and Woslow had been among the most defiant of draft law offenders, but yesterday morning they suddenly changed their views and pleaded with the Federal authorities for permission to register as required by law. They were informed that the time to register willingly had passed so far as they were concerned and that they would have to stand trial.

Bergstrom, the Public Library porter, is 26 years old and a native of Sweden. When he was arraigned before Commissioner Hitchcock a last chance to register was given to him, but he remained obdurate. He said that he was opposed to war. So far as is known he has no anarchistic or I. W. W. leanings.

Leon Samson, the former City College student, one of the chief speakers at the Emma Goldman meeting in Harlem a few nights ago, who, when taken into custody, swore that he was not 21 years of age and was therefore not subject to draft, has been expelled from Columbia University, to which he was admitted on probation following his dismissal from City College. Samson said yesterday that he was going to hold Columbia to strict account for its action. He is the same young man who said a few nights ago that the German Kaiser was not hated so much by people of his kind as was "the American Kaiser."

This is the letter announcing his dismissal, which Mr. Samson says he received from Columbia:

> Columbia University, Office of the Dean.
> Dear Sir—Inasmuch as you were admitted on special probation at the request of the authorities of the College of the City of New York, and also, inasmuch as your activities at this time in opposition to the Government are not such as can meet the approval of the authorities of Columbia University, I wish to inform you that your continued attendance upon Columbia University will not be acceptable hereafter.
> Acting Dean.

Edward J. Cooley, chief probation officer of the Magistrates' Courts, has ordered the probation officers in the five boroughs to investigate the status of the 2,500 men now on probation as regards registration. He has received information from several sources that many probationers of draft age have failed to appear at the regular probation periods to report, and he believes that many may have fled the city to avoid conscription.

MANY GERMANS LOSE JOBS.

Authorities Advise Farm Work for Those Barred from Zones.

The strict enforcement of the enemy alien zone regulations is causing large numbers of Germans who are employed on harbor craft and in factories and warehouse along the waterfront to lose their employment. Because of this many Germans who have good records, and therefore are not fit subjects for internment, have appealed to the Federal authorities for advice. The matter was considered at a conference held yesterday in the office of United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey.

As there is to be no relaxation of the zone regulations, at the conclusion of the conference it was said that it would be suggested to the Germans affected to seek employment on farms in this and other States.

CONGRESS DELAYS AIR PREPAREDNESS

Manufacturers Contemplating War Needs Now Ready to Turn Out 600 Airplanes a Month.

Although nearly a month has passed since the Aircraft Production Board announced its program for building 3,500 airplanes and training 5,000 aviators this year, few orders for aircraft have been placed by the Government and, among experts in aviation, the fear is growing that continued delay may defeat a program which was capable of fulfillment at the outset only by concerted effort on the part of the whole aircraft industry.

Repeated conferences have been held among the manufacturers and the Production Board and, in addition to some immediate orders, assurances have been given that the Government would enter into continuing contracts which would permit of the necessary expansion of manufacturing facilities, both in materials and personnel, to insure the success of the increasingly ambitious projects which the Production Board contemplates for coming years.

But the appropriations necessary to turn these proposals into contracts have not been voted by Congress and, in the hope of speeding this action, Alan R. Hawley, President of the Aero Club of America, sent a letter yesterday to Senator George E. Chamberlain, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, and to Chairman H. S. Dent, Jr., of the House Committee, urging immediate action. The manufacturers say they can now turn out 600 airplanes a month.

BERLIN SCHEMING, WILSON DECLARES

send to their death any of our people who ventured to approach the coasts of Europe. And many of our own people were corrupted. Men began to look upon their own neighbors with suspicion and to wonder in their hot resentment and surprise whether there was any community in which hostile intrigue did not lurk. What great nation in such circumstances would not have taken up arms? Much as we had desired peace, it was denied us, and not of our own choice. This flag under which we serve would have been dishonored had we withheld own hand.

But that is only part of the story. We know now as clearly as we knew before we were ourselves engaged that we are not the enemies of the German people and that they are not our enemies. They did not originate or desire this hideous war or wish that we should be drawn into it; and we are vaguely conscious that we are fighting their cause, as they will some day see it, as well as our own. They are themselves in the grip of the same sinister power that has now at last stretched its ugly talons out and drawn blood from us. The whole world is at war because the whole world is in the grip of that power and is trying out the great battle which shall determine whether it is to be brought under its mastery or fling itself free.

The war was begun by the military masters of Germany, who proved to be also the masters of Austria-Hungary. These men have never regarded nations as peoples, men, women, and children of like blood and frame as themselves, for whom Governments existed and in whom Governments had their life. They have regarded them merely as serviceable organizations which they could by force or intrigue bend or corrupt to their own purpose. They have regarded the smaller States, in particular, and the peoples who could be overwhelmed by force, as their natural tools and instruments of domination. Their purpose has long been avowed. The statesmen of other nations, to whom that purpose was incredible, paid little attention; regarded what German professors expounded in their classrooms and German writers set forth to the world as the goal of German policy as rather the dream of minds detached from practical affairs, as preposterous private conceptions of German destiny, than as the actual plans of responsible rulers; but the rulers of Germany themselves knew all the while what concrete plans, what well-advanced intrigues lay back of what the professors and the writers were saying, and were glad to go forward unmolested, filling the thrones of Balkan States with German Princes, putting German officers at the service of Turkey to drill her armies and make interest with her Government, developing plans of sedition and rebellion in India and Egypt, setting their fires in Persia. The demands made by Austria upon Serbia were a mere single step in a plan which compassed Europe and Asia, from Berlin to Bagdad. They hoped those demands might not arouse Europe, but they meant to press them whether they did or not, for they thought themselves ready for the final issue of arms.

Austria-Hungary a Pawn.

Their plan was to throw a broad belt of German military power and political control across the very centre of Europe and beyond the Mediterranean into the heart of Asia; and Austria-Hungary was to be as much their tool and pawn as Serbia or Bulgaria or Turkey or the ponderous States of the East. Austria-Hungary, indeed, was to become part of the Central German Empire, absorbed and dominated by the same forces and influences that had originally cemented the German States themselves. The dream had its heart at Berlin. It could have had a heart nowhere else! It rejected the idea of solidarity of race entirely. The choice of peoples played no part in it at all. It contemplated binding together racial and political units which could be kept together only by force—Czechs, Magyars, Croats, Serbs, Rumanians, Turks, Armenians—the proud States of Bohemia and Hungary, the stout little commonwealths of the Balkans, the indomitable Turks, the subtile peoples of the East. These peoples did not wish to be united. They ardently desired to direct their own affairs, would be satisfied only by undisputed independence. They could be kept quiet only by the presence or the constant threat of armed men. They would live under a common power only by sheer compulsion and await the day of revolution. But the German military statesmen had reckoned with all that and were ready to deal with it in their own way.

And they have actually carried the greater part of that amazing plan into execution. Look how things stand. Austria is at their mercy. It has acted, not upon its own initiative or upon the choice of its own people, but at Berlin's dictation ever since the war began. Its people now desire peace, but cannot have it until leave is granted from Berlin. The so-called Central Powers are in fact but a single power. Servia is at its mercy, should its hands be but for a moment freed, Bulgaria has consented to its will, and Rumania is overrun. The Turkish armies, which Germans trained, are serving Germany, certainly not themselves, and the guns of German warships lying in the harbor at Constantinople remind Turkish statesmen every day that they have no choice but to take their orders from Berlin. From Hamburg to the Persian Gulf the net is spread.

Is it not easy to understand the eargerness for peace that has been manifested from Berlin ever since the snare was set and sprung? Peace, peace, peace, has been the talk of her Foreign Office now for a year and more; not peace upon her own initiative, but upon the initiative of the nations over which she now deems herself to hold the advantage. A little of the talk has been public, but most of it has been private. Through all sorts of channels it has come to me, and in all sorts of guises, but never with the terms disclosed which the German Government would be willing to accept. That Government has other valuable pawns in its hands besides those I have mentioned. It still holds a valuable part of France, though with slowly relaxing grasp, and practically the whole of Belgium. Its armies press close upon Russia and overrun Poland at their will. It cannot go further; it dare not go back. It wishes to close its bargain before it is too late, and it has little left to offer for the pound of flesh it will demand.

Power May Crumble at Home.

The military masters under whom Germany is bleeding see very clearly to what point fate has brought them. If they fall back or are forced back an inch their power both abroad and at home will fall to pieces like a house of cards. It is their power at home they are thinking about now more than their power abroad. It is that power which is trembling under their very feet; and deep fear has entered their hearts. They have but one chance to perpetuate their military power or even their controlling political influence. If they can secure peace now with the immense advantages still in their hands, which they have up to to this point apparently gained, they will have justified themselves before the German people; they will have gained by force what they promised to gain by it—an immense expansion of German power, an immense enlargement of German industrial and commercial opportunities. Their prestige will be secure, and with their prestige their political power. If they fail, their people will thrust them aside; a government accountable to the people themselves will be set up in Germany as it has been in England, in the United States, in France, and in all the great countries of the modern time except Germany. If they succeed they are safe and Germany and the world are undone; if they fail Germany is saved and the world will be at peace. If they succeed America will fall within the menace. We and all the rest of the world must remain armed, as they will remain, and must make ready for the next step in their aggression; if they fail the world may unite for peace and Germany may be of the union.

Do you not now understand the new intrigue, the intrigue for peace, and why the masters of Germany do not hesitate to use any agency that promises to effect their purpose, the deception of the nations? Their present particular aim is to deceive all those who throughout the world stand for the rights of peoples and the self-government of nations; for they see what immense strength the forces of justice and of liberalism are gathering out of this war. They are employing liberals in their enterprise. They are using men, in Germany and without, as their spokesmen whom they have hitherto despised and oppressed, using them for their own destruction—Socialists, the leaders of labor, the thinkers they have hitherto sought to silence. Let them once succeed and these men, now their tools, will be ground to powder beneath the weight of the great military empire they will have set up; the revolutionists in Russia will be cut off from all succor or co-operation in Western Europe and a counter-revolution fostered and supported; Germany herself will lose her chance of freedom, and all Europe will arm for the next, the final struggle.

The sinister intrigue is being no less actively conducted in this country than in Russia and in every country in Europe to which the agents and dupes of the Imperial German Government can get access. That Government has many spokesmen here, in places high and low. They have learned discretion. They keep within the law. It is opinion they utter now, not sedition. They proclaim the liberal purposes of their masters; declare this a foreign war which can touch America with no danger to either her lands or her institutions; set England at the centre of the stage and talk of her ambition to assert economic dominion throughout the world; appeal to our ancient tradition of isolation in the politics of the nations, and seek to undermine the Government with false professions of loyalty to its principles.

But they will make no headway. The false betray themselves always in every accent. It is only friends and partisans of the German Government whom we have already identified who utter these thinly disguised disloyalties. The facts are patent to all the world, and nowhere are they more plainly seen than in the United States, where we are accustomed to deal with facts and not with sophistries; and the great fact that stands out above all the rest is that this is a people's war, a war for freedom and justice and self-government among all the nations of the world, a war to make the world safe for the peoples who live upon it and have made it their own, the German people themselves included; and that with us rests the choice to break through all these hypocrisies and patent cheats and masks of brute force and help set the world free, or else stand aside and let it be dominated a long age through by sheer weight of arms and the arbitrary choices of self-constituted masters, by the nation which can maintain the biggest armies and the most irresistible armaments—a power to which the world has afforded no parallel and in the face of which political freedom must wither and perish.

For us there is but one choice. We have made it. Woe be to the man or group of men that seeks to stand in our way in this day of high resolution when every principle we hold dearest is to be vindicated and made secure for the salvation of the nations. We are ready to plead at the bar of history, and our flag shall wear a new lustre. Once more we shall make good with our lives and fortunes the great faith to which we were born, and a new glory shall shine in the face of our people.

Storm Mars Ceremony.

The Flag Day celebration at which the President spoke was held under trying cricumstances. It was an open-air meeting in the grounds near the Washington Monument, but the thousands who had assembled there were driven to shelter by a heavy, steady rain that followed one of the worst thunder and hail storms that Washington ever experienced. About a thousand men and women remained, however, and heard the President deliver his notable address. While the platform from which he spoke was covered, the driving rain made it necessary for the President to wear a raincoat. Mrs. Wilson, who accompanied him to the monument grounds, remained in her closed motor car at the President's suggestion. It had been intended to transfer the celebration to the nearby building of the Pan American Union, but the President would not consent to this, because he felt that it would be unfair to restrict the attendance to the limited number that could be crowded into the structure.

FLAG SPEECH IN THE HOUSE.

Representative Hicks Traces the History of the Stars and Stripes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The House halted in its legislative program today to observe Flag Day by listening to a speech in eulogy of the Stars and Stripes by Representative Frederick C. Hicks, Republican, of New York. In an address of more than an hour, which received the attention and applause of his colleagues, Representative Hicks traced the history of the American flag and illustrated his speech by bringing into the chamber and displaying upon a large panel painted designs of the earlier and present day flags of the nation.

At the close of Mr. Hicks's speech the House adjourned out of respect to the flag.

As he concluded, Representative Hicks said:

"I would digress here from my set speech to say that there is a way by which every member of this Congress can show his love and respect for the American flag today. Before the books close every member of Congress should subscribe, to the best of his means, to the Liberty Loan."

This advice was greeted with applause.

"The voice of the flag," in the present world war was the keynote of Mr. Hicks's speech, which was, in part, as follows:

"On this, the one hundred and fortieth anniversary of the ordination of the Stars and Stripes by the Continental Congress, it is fitting and proper to make reference to its wondrous history. The flag held in reverence by 100,000,000 of our people is a modern standard. There are no myths or legends associated with its origin; it tells no story of crushed liberties or violated rights; it sprang neither from the sorrows of the oppressed nor the moans of the conquered. In its majestic beauty it expresses the independence of a thoughtful, courageous, conscientious people; the faith, the lofty aspirations, and the high ideals of representative democracy; the advance of a new nation dedicated to liberty, to law, to justice and to the cause of human rights.

"While it is not pertinent to the origin of the flag, it is of the utmost importance in maintaining the flag in its exalted position that the Government war loan now being financed be fully subscribed, and I am therefore going to urge upon every member of Congress the great necessity of subscribing for the Liberty Bonds.

"The flag of America does more than proclaim mere power, or declare a great and glorious history. Its folds wave a benediction to the yesterdays and beckon the tomorrows with hope and confidence. It heralds the noble purposes of a great people; it carries a message of hope and inspiration to all mankind. Its glowing splendor appeals to us to demand international justice and arbitration; it commands us to self-sacrifice and universal obligation of service, which alone can maintain equality of rights and fullness of opportunity in our republic.

"Its stars and its stripes voice the spirit of America calling to a nation of indomitable courage and infinite possibilities to live the tenets of Christianity, to teach the gospel of work and usefulness, to advance education, to demand purity of thought and action in public life, and to protect the liberties of free government from the aggressions of despotic power.

"That is the call of the flag of the Union in the hour of crisis and turmoil, when civilization, and the laws of nations and of humanity, are being engulfed in the maelstrom of death and destruction."

In conclusion Mr. Hicks quoted from the late Justice Harlan of the Supreme Court these words:

"To every true American the flag is the symbol of the nation's power, the emblem of freedom in its truest, best sense. It is not extravagant to say that to all lovers of the country it signifies government resting on the consent of the governed, liberty regulated by law; the protection of the weak against the exercise of arbitrary power, and absolute safety for free institutions against foreign aggression."

GUARD OFFICERS IN REGULAR ARMY TESTS

NOW NEAR WAR STRENGTH

Ten Branches of the Military and Naval Service Will Parade Tomorrow to Aid Recruiting.

The examination of between 400 and 500 National Guard officers who have received their commissions in the last year was begun yesterday at National Guard division headquarters in the Municipal Building. All Guard officers who were commissioned or promoted since June 3, 1916—Majors, Captains, First and Second Lieutenants—must take the regular United States Army examinations, mental and physical, before becoming eligible for commissions in the army when the National Guard mobilizes on July 15.

Lieut. Col. H. H. Randholtz and Captain Albert T. Rich of the United States Army and Major Humphrey of the Medical Department are in charge of the examinations. The examination records will be forwarded to Washington to be acted upon. The results will be made known before July 15. The examinations will continue from day to day until all the new officers have been examined. Those who took the tests yesterday were:

Brig. Gen. John H. Foote, commanding Brooklyn Infantry Brigade; Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt, Twenty-second Regiment Engineers; Colonel James W. Myers, Quartermaster's Corps; Colonel Merritt H. Smith, First Field Artillery; Colonel Reginald Foster, Twelfth Infantry; Colonel James R. Howlett, Fourteenth Infantry; Colonel William Hayward, Fifteenth Infantry; Lieut. Col. Edward V. Howard, Adjutant General's Department; Lieut. Col. J. Mayhew Wainwright, Inspector General's Department; Lieut. Col. Frederick M. Waterbury, Ordnance Department; Lieut. Col. Henry S. Sternberger, Division Quartermaster; Lieut. Cols. Thomas W. Hislop and Lloyd Collis, Quartermaster's Corps; Lieut. Col. William S. Conrow, Twenty-second Engineers; Lieut. Col. Lorillard Spencer, Fifteenth Infantry, and Lieut. Col. Latham R. Reed, Sixty-ninth Infantry.

The men to be examined received their commissions from Governor Whitman, subject to the examinations. Because of many changes in the guards in some of the regiments the men who have to undergo the examinations number forty out of the fifty officers.

Guard Near War Strength.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commanding the National Guard of New York, said yesterday that recruiting for the guard was going along well, and that he did not believe it would be necessary to make any special efforts to get the regiments up to war strength by July 15. Several of the regiments, including the Twenty-third and the Fifteenth, a negro regiment, are up to the full strength. A regiment of infantry numbers 56 officers and 2,058 men; one of cavalry, 59 officers and 1,520 men, and one of field artillery, 47 officers and 1,220 men. Following is the present strength of the regiments below war strength quota:

Infantry—First of Binghamton, 45 officers, 1,918 men; Third, of East Rochester, 56 officers, 1,835 men; Seventh, of New York, 57 officers, 1,833 men; Tenth, of Albany, 49 officers, 1,554 men; Twelfth, of New York, 48 officers, 1,312 men; Sixty-ninth, of New York, 51 officers, 1,503 men.

Cavalry—First, of New York, 42 officers, 1,059 men, (405 already in Federal service;) Squadron A, 19 officers, 411 men, (full strength 500 men.)

Field Artillery—First, of New York, 41 officers, 1,199 men; Second, of Brooklyn, 45 officers, 1,308 men; Third, heavy, of Buffalo, 39 officers, 853 men.

Catain George Robertson, who is in charge of recruiting at the State Armory for the division supply train, said yesterday that in the last two days 400 men had applied for enlistment and 102 had been accepted.

Recruiting generally took a slump yesterday because of the rain. Major Frank E. Evans, in charge of the United States Marine Corps recruiting office, said he was working hard to get New York's quota of 250 for "Marine Recruiting Week." He said that 4,000 men needed for the service, allotted to various parts of the country, would be obtained.

"Perfect Marine" Re-enlists.

First Sergeant Fernando Birrer, who lost a leg recently at Santo Domingo, has been assigned to Major Evans's staff at 24 East Twenty-third Street. Sergeant Chester Allen Weller, known as "Poster Weller," because he posed for the picture used in Marine Corps advertising posters, re-enlisted yesterday. He had been employed by J. P. Morgan & Co. Weller is exactly six feet tall and weighs 170 pounds. Major Evans called him "the perfect Marine." In explaining the recruiting for the Marines this week, Major Evans said that since New York's quota was only 250 men, the requirements have been made more difficult for the time being. Men must be 20 years old, instead of 18. He said that fully twenty-five men applied every day who came within the old requirements, but did not meet the new.

The Second District, Coast Defense, opened an office for recruiting in the Woolworth Building yesterday. This district extends from Chatham, Mass., to New London, Conn. Service is for the duration of the war, and men enlisting will be assigned to submarine chasers, patrol vessels, and supply vessels. Radio operators, gunner's mates, machinists, cooks, ship fitters, firemen, and ex-service men are wanted.

It was announced yesterday from the office of the Attending Surgeon, U. S. A., in the Whitehall Building, that it is desired to enlist forty-five men for sanitary units, to serve with the three regiments of engineers to sail soon. Men who have had training as nurses, orderlies, pharmacists, &c., will have preference.

Military Parade Saturday.

The Mayor's Committee on National Defense announced last night that opportunity to size up the men in ten different branches of military and naval service would be given by the parade to be held tomorrow under the auspices of the Recruiting Committee of the Mayor's Committee. The parade will start from Washington Square at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. With the exception of a détour at Fourteenth Street to take the line by the "Recruit," the parade will move along Fifth Avenue and end at Fortieth Street after the Grand Marshal, Major Edward Olmstead, had reviewed the line at Thirty-eighth Street.

General J. F. Fotheringham, head of the Medical Service of the Dominion of Canada, and Major E. Trump of the Adjutant General's branch of the Canadian forces, arrived in New York yesterday to assist Brig. Gen. W. A. White, in charge of the British recruiting office at 280 Broadway. General Fotheringham expressed gratification at the standard of the British subjects who are enlisting here. The first batch of British recruits left yesterday afternoon for Canada. Colonel Stevens had charge of the men. The number was about 100. They will go into training in Canada.

Harmon Cheshire, son of the late John Cheshire, the harpist, has enlisted in the Royal Army Medical Corps of the British Army.

NEW HAVEN, June 14.—The Supreme Board of Directors of the Knights of Columbus announced today the appropriation of $1,000,000 by the order for the establishment and maintenance of recreation centres at all of the principal army concentration camps. This action, it is said, is the result of a general appeal from members throughout the country urging that the work inaugurated along the Mexican border last year be continued and enlarged to meet present conditions.

"Of the million men soon to be in concentration camps preparing for war," says the statement, "Thirty or forty per cent. will be Catholics, many of them members of our order. Plainly, then, our society is confronted with the proposition of opening up recreation centres at all of the principal concentration camps and of furnishing moral and material aid, comfort, and support to our soldiers. Our centres, of course, will be open to all, regardless of creed or membership in the order.

"The Supreme Board of Directors has appropriated $1,000,000 for the purpose, and has issued a nation-wide appeal to our membership for contributions to this war camp fund."

HEAVIEST CITY RAIN FOR AN HOUR HERE

TORRENTS RUN IN STREETS

Lightning Causes One Death, Burns Out Wires, and Strikes Several Buildings.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the Weather Bureau issued the prediction: "Probable local thunder showers this afternoon." In the light of what happened later this forecast may be regarded as conservative, for between 1 and 2 o'clock a storm began which lasted, with a few lulls, till late in the afternoon, and included the heaviest hour's rain that has been recorded since the local office of the Weather Bureau was opened in 1871.

The total rainfall for the day was 3.86 inches—very far below the twenty-four-hour record of 9.40 inches on Oct. 8 and 9, 1903—but between 2 and 3 o'clock yesterday exactly two inches fell—the record for any single hour authentically recorded by the oldest inhabitant. There was a brilliant display of lightning and loud thunderclaps, but the wind was light, never attaining more than twenty-five miles an hour, and, although the downpour caused much discomfort to millions of people and practically abolished walking in the streets for most of the afternoon, the damage was not very severe. Sewers overflowed and gutters ran with torrents everywhere. Considerable damage, as yet not estimated, apparently was done to crops, but there was comparatively little destruction by wind, lightning, or water.

All over the city, while the storm was at its height, the streets were inches deep in water churned to a foam by the raindrops, with taxicabs, motor trucks and street cars plowing through the wash and not a person on foot in sight. For hours the exits of the subway and elevated stations were packed with people unwilling to venture out, and the crowds in the lobbies of big downtown buildings looked like those in hotels at convention times. Telephone and light wires were burned out in many places, and there was interminable confusion caused by attempts of commuters and dwellers in the further parts of the city to communicate with their homes when they were delayed by the storm, but while inconvenience was almost universal, actual harm was little.

One Death Due to Storm.

So far as known last night, only one death was caused by the storm. Mrs. Sophie Fisher, aged 64, was asphyxiated by smoke in her room on the third floor of a frame tenement at 74 South Sixth Street, Williamsburg, which was set on fire by lightning. Other tenants were brought out of the house without injury and the damage was small.

The most serious material damage was done in the towns of the Jersey waterfront.

A tank containing 30,000 barrels of lubricating oil, at the plant of the Eagle Oil Company on Caven Point, Jersey City, was struck by lightning. The company's fire-fighting force set to work without calling on the Jersey City Fire Department, and much of the oil was let out of the tank while it was on fire. Nearby tanks of the hundreds at the plant were also emptied and the blaze was confined to the tank in which it started, doing damage unofficially estimated at $20,000. All through the evening it continued to burn, and now and then flared up for a few minutes with a flame that lighted all Jersey City.

Three other fires were started by lightning in Jersey City. Public School 2 in Erie Street was struck just as the children were leaving. There was no panic, and the damage done was slight. G. H. Waldman's bakery at 28 East Central Avenue and the plant of the Labritz Carpet Renovating Company at 89 Fairmount Avenue were also set on fire, but not much damaged.

Bolt Strikes Church.

A bolt struck the spire of All Saints' Catholic Church at Communipaw and Pacific Avenues and knocked down three of the four small pinnacles. A hole was broken in the eastern end of the church and much damage was done to plaster caused by the rain blowing in.

At Fourth and Washington Streets, one of the principal centres of Hoboken, a washout through the tunnel for a sewer caused a cave-in from curb to curb more than 200 feet long and 40 feet deep. At about 8 o'clock four large gas mains were broken by the continued subsidence of the soil, and a broken electric light wire set the escaping gas on fire. It shot up in a pillar of flame far overtopping the nearby buildings, and calls were sent for the police and fire departments. After a short time the gas was turned off in three of the mains, but the flame from the last one continued to leap far into the night. No harm was done to the buildings near by.

Lightning Strikes Wagon Tongue.

On Staten Island the rapid transit line was blocked at Mariner's Harbor for half an hour by the water. A truck driver named Mulligan was stunned when the pole of his wagon was struck by lightning which did no damage to the vehicle except to rip a tire off a rear wheel.

There were three casualties in the Bronx. Abraham Jackson of 1,468 Wilkins Avenue and Abraham Gottlieb of 1,295 Bristow Street were knocked down and badly hurt by lightning while at work in the New Haven yards. Clifford Crosse, who was driving an electric engine in the Westchester yards of the New Haven, was badly burned when his engine was struck by a bolt.

The flagpole of the Hotel Wellington, at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, was struck and flung into the street, but no damage was done to the hotel.

In Brooklyn stoppage of surface car traffic and switchbacks due to high water were general, and the Fourth Avenue subway was interrupted for a few minutes by a collection of two feet of water. Edward Presley, a lineman for the New York Telephone Company, was knocked off a forty-foot pole in front of 800 Jamaica Avenue by lightning and received dangerous injuries. The Shults Bread Company's plant at 77 Harrison Avenue was set on fire, but not much damaged.

A Sumner Avenue car was struck at Myrtle Avenue and a De Kalb Avenue car at Throop Avenue. Both were badly damaged, but no one was hurt.

The forecast for today is "Partly overcast with a somewhat lower temperature." Saturday should be fair.

TO BUILD THEATRE AT CAMP

3,000 Will Be Accommodated at Plattsburg's Outdoor Performances.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., June 14.—An outdoor theatre capable of seating 3,000 persons is being constructed near the New England training camp under the direction of Major Reginald Barlow, a New York actor, who saw service in the Boer war, and who is now instructor of the Eighth New England Company. The theatre will be opened Saturday night with a minstrel show given by the students at the camp, and on succeeding Saturday nights it is planned to obtain the best vaudeville performers. Moving pictures, including British war films, will be shown later.

The stage of the theatre has a natural proscenium arch composed of two pine trees, while the space for the audience is clear of trees. The new theatre also will be used for regimental conferences and other gatherings.

No men will be allowed to leave the training camp Saturday without leave of their company commander. On that day the student and reserve officers will be reassigned to companies for the two months' course of specialized work beginning next week. Each camp, in addition to the field artillery, which remains temporarily in Plattsburg, will have nine infantry companies and one dismounted troop of cavalry.

A telegram was received at camp headquarters today from the Adjutant General's office in Washington in response to Colonel Wolf's inquiry as to where the field artillery would train. The artillery will remain in Plattsburg until arrangements can be made to accommodate the men at Syracuse, N. Y.

BOGUS NOTE ON CHINA TO BE INVESTIGATED

SUSPICION ALLAYED, HE SAYS

Charge Renewed That New York Correspondent Sent Incorrect Version, but He Denies It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—It became known tonight that the State Department has ordered an investigation to ascertain the facts concerning the dispatch from his country of a telegram to the Asahi, an influential Japanese newspaper, which printed a fabricated account of the recent United States note to China. The bogus text, it was said here, was sent to the Asahi from its New York correspondent and has produced a complicated situation in Tokio.

The State Department has received extensive reports on the adverse criticism by the Japanese press of America's action in sending to Peking a note recommending the settlement of China's internal difficulties. The genuine note was dispatched to Peking June 4, and its only purpose was to show the American Government's solicitude for China herself. Officials here say it is difficult to say how this communication to the Chinese Government could be construed in the light of glaring interference, as, according to press reports, it has been referred to in Japanese newspapers. Nor does it indicate any departure from America's Chinese policy, which still concerns itself only with upholding the integrity of China and a desire that China shall prosper.

The complete text of the note to China was not published in Japan until June 13, although it was published in the American press June 8. When the note was published in Tokio, and the full truth thus became known, the comment showed decided improvement.

"In the far East China is the centre of power. Should the quarrels of political parties lead to disturbances of a revolutionary character Japan will be obliged to dispatch troops to China to protect her interests. It is feared that Russia and Germany will conclude a separate peace. Japan will sooner or later be obliged to send troops to Manchuria in behalf of her allies. Peace is necessary in the Far East in order to check Russia's separate peace movement. Japan maintains a large army at home and does not dare to move because she wishes to prepare for any eventuality in the Far East. If Japan takes advantage of disturbances in China to send a large army to Manchuria, it may cause misunderstandings with the Entente Powers. The preservation of peace is, therefore, a most urgent necessity. America is so deeply concerned for the reason that she wishes to allow Japan to reserve her freedom to mobilize at any time."

Secretary Lansing said today:

"Whatever comment has arisen has been due entirely to the publication of a bogus note purporting to have been cabled to Tokio from New York. Since our attention was called to it, the correct note has been published in Japan, and whatever suspicion was aroused by the bogus note was removed when the accurate text was received."

Fear is expressed in unofficial quarters that the campaign begun by the Japanese press to insist that America shall consult Japan before undertaking any important negotiations with Peking affecting China's policies in future may be maintained. Japan is said to feel that due recognition of her special interest ought to be made by the United States, as well as by other nations, and that the Root-Takahira agreement, while answering the purpose for which it was framed, might well be supplanted by another agreement or formal treaty more specifically defining Japan's special interests in China.

Denies Sending False Version.

Japanese and American students of the situation in the Far East expressed divergent opinions yesterday of the Japanese resentment of the American note to China, reported in dispatches from Tokio, and of statements made in Washington that an inaccurate version of the note had been sent, "ostensibly from New York," to the Tokio Asahi. It was suggested that this was another evidence of a propaganda in this country designed to injure American interests in Japan, but this theory did not find much favor among either American or Japanese commentators in New York.

Keishiro Kamaka, New York correspondent of the Tokio Asahi and Osaka Asahi, said that he had "cabled no text of such note, perverted or unperverted." The only dispatch dealing with the matter which he had sent, he said, embodied the subject of a Washington dispatch to an evening paper in New York on the anxiety felt in official quarters as to the Far Eastern situation, and duly credited to the paper in which it was published here.

"The Asahi," he said, "has three correspondents in America—New York, San Francisco, and Seattle. I feel confident that none of them sent the garbled version of the note and do not think there is much likelihood that any outside correspondent, whether a news agency or some one acting in the interests of such a propaganda as has been suggested, sent anything of the sort. Certainly if the Asahi printed a 'false' version it must have been sent from some other quarter than New York.

"It remains possible that such information may have been received from Peking. Our bureau there is very efficient and is usually able to obtain news which nobody else can get. It is possible that our correspondent there may have obtained from some quarter a version of the text of the note which was somewhat inaccurate. This, of course, is purely a hypothesis, I have no information to support it.

"As to the possibility of the existence of a propaganda, no one is so far from it as I, if there exists any. I can honestly say that faithfully conveying the sentiments of the American people toward Japan, I am always serving the cause of real friendship between the two peoples."

An American who has held high official position in the Far East doubted the possibility of German machinations conveying to Japan a wrong impression of the American note. "It seems to me," he said, "that the present crisis has been seized by the Japanese as an excellent opportunity to exact official recognition by the United States of the paramount position of Japan in the Orient. The extracts from Japanese newspapers quoted in this morning's dispatches indicate that Japan is eagerly desirous of such recognition, and the present time is a good one to press the issue. Our efforts are tied up with the war in Europe and Japan knows that there is no chance that America could or would offer any opposition except diplomatically to such a claim."

Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga, head of the East and West News Bureau, thought that the whole trouble arose from a misunderstanding by the Japanese newspapers and public of the intent of the American note. "The activities of the American Minister to China, Dr. Paul Reinsch, and of other Americans in China," said Dr. Iyenaga, "have created the fear in Japan that America was seeking to control the foreign policy of China. The situation there at present is much complicated by many different factors, both of internal and foreign politics, but it is known that the American Minister was influential in leading China to the breaking off of diplomatic relations with Germany.

"The present note, it seems to me, is an indication by the United States Government that such is not its purpose—a notice to the world that its interest in the tranquillity of China and of the situation in the Orient is greater than the immediate desire to see China enter the war, and that in consequence suspicions as to its desire to dominate Chinese policy are unfounded. But it seems to me that that the note may, perhaps, have been somewhat hastily understood by some sections of Japanese opinion as meaning that the United States was pressing forward still further in its interest in the Chinese situation and was doing what in reality the note was intended to deny.

"There is no subject on which Japanese feeling is more sensitive than on relations with China, for these touch closely the vital interests of the empire. Sentiment there over what is regarded as unusually active American influence on Chinese affairs is much the same as that which America might feel if there were unusual Japanese activity in Mexican affairs. But while the whole Japanese nation eagerly desires recognition by America and by the world of Japan's paramount interests in the Far East, I do not think there is any ground for believing that the present international situation is to be taken as an opportunity for asserting these interests.

"On the other hand, one of the leading features of the situation at present is the oneness of American and Japanese interest in some of the gravest international problems. Japan's interest in the success of Mr. Root's mission to Russia is as vital as that of America, and his activity there will be accompanied by the good wishes of all Japanese. Disturbance of feeling in Japan over the present situation seems to me—of course, I express a personal opinion and am in no way an official spokesman—to be due to the fear on first reading of the note that it meant more active American interest in Chinese affairs, and not a disclaimer by the United States of any attempt to direct the policy of China."

LI YUAN-HUNG LOSES GROUND.

Peking Gazette Denounces Him as Move for Revolt Grows.

PEKING, June 13, (Delayed.)—President Li Yuan-Hung's unconditional method of dismissing Parliament is strongly condemned in the southern provinces, where attempts are being made to unite for the purpose of offering military resistance. It is believed here that the President's action will precipitate civil war.

The Peking Gazette, which heretofore has been the strongest supporter of the President, now denounces him, declaring that he is using the country for his own ends.

PROSECUTOR ORDERS ARREST OF KENNEDY

RECEIVER TO OPEN VAULTS

Will Search for $2,500,000 Worth of Railroad Bonds Which Kennedy Agreed to Sell.

After the Grand Jury had completed its investigation of the affairs of Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., yesterday afternoon, an order was issued by the District Attorney for the arrest of William A. Kennedy, who was due to land yesterday at Vigo, Spain, on the steamer Alfonso XII., on the charge of grand larceny.

The Grand Jury will make its report today. An application will be made today by Daniel W. Blumenthal of 35 Nassau Street, attorney for the receiver, to the United States District Court for permission to examine witnesses to discover more about the affairs of the company. Evidence will be introduced at this investigation to show that William A. Kennedy issued a signed statement to the effect that $5,000,000 worth of stock in his company had been purchased by concerns and individuals in Europe.

The investigation which has so far been made into the affairs of Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., showed that about 150 banks and 2,500 individuals had either purchased stock in the company or attempted to send money to Hungary through it. Most of these banks are conducted by Hungarians and other aliens. The total amount of stock taken by small banks is said to be above $200,000.

Very few Hungarian banks or individuals in this city intrusted money to the bank because of warnings by Morris Cukor of 68 Park Row, Alexander Konta, and others influential among Hungarians against the concern. Morris Cukor said yesterday that the firm had sent out between ten and fifteen expert salesmen to Hungarian banks throughout the country, and had represented in pamphlets and verbally that 10 per cent. dividends would be paid on the stock, and that Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., stood ready at any time to repurchase the stock at par. This and other methods alleged to have been employed by the firm are being investigated on behalf of the Post Office Department.

It could not be learned yesterday whether the Grand Jury had confined its investigation to acts of Kennedy. Vice President Peter Nemeth, who was active in establishing connections between Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., and small Hungarian institutions, has co-operated with the District Attorney in the investigation of the affairs of the firm. John Mitchell, Jr., a partner, whose name is used in the title of the firm, is said to be now in Cuba. He has been separated from the Wall Street firm for months. Kennedy told several persons that he had caused Mitchell to leave because of business troubles in which Mitchell had been involved in Washington, D. C.

W. H. Griffin, the receiver of the firm, expects to open the vaults at 35 Wall Street today, when a former employe of the concern who has the combination of the vaults will appear there. A search will be made here for $2,500,000 worth of bonds of the Illinois Southern & St. Louis Railroad, a projected line, whose bonds Kennedy agreed to sell. Wilbert Ward of 61 Broadway, has brought suit in behalf of W. Irving Young for $100,000 commission on the sale of these bonds. Before he departed, however, Kennedy insisted that none of the bonds had been sold and that they were still in the vaults at his offices.

ROYAL GOWNS BRING $20,500

MUNICH, June 14, (via London.)—The public auction of the wardrobe of Princess Louise of Belgium, daughter of the late King Leopold, for the benefit of her creditors, netted 82,000 marks, (at nominal exchange rates about $20,500.) The sale was staged in a theatre and extended over several days. A bewildering array of gowns, lingerie, parasols, and millinery, the contents of seventy-two trnuks, were sold.

Princess Louise is the eldest daughter of the late King Leopold and the divorced wife of Philip of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. Her love affairs, extravagances, and family quarrels have kept her constantly in the limelight.

JAPAN WANTS A NEW PARAMOUNTCY STATUS

Seeks Recognition from America Like That Claimed from Other Allies.

TOKIO, Tuesday, June 12, (Delayed in transmission.)—The question regarding China, as it exists between the United States and Japan, has been brought sharply to the surface by the note of the American Government to China expressing regret over the dissension in that country and the desire that tranquility and political co-ordination be established. Regarding the future of China as interwoven intimately with her own, Japan has long observed a fundamental policy, the goal of which is to procure recognition by the powers of a special and paramount position for Japan in China.

The impression prevails in Tokio that Great Britain and France since the outbreak of the war have tacitly extended a measure of recognition of special privileges to Japan, and the present issue appears to involve the question whether the United States will abandon the prerogative of independent action in China, and henceforth consult Japan. The following statement of Japan's position is furnished to The Associated Press in well-informed quarters:

"When Japan and the Allies were about to urge Yuen Shih-kai (the late President of China) to postpone restoration of the monarchy, the United States was consulted beforehand and invited to participate. The United States replied that it favored a republic that could not interfere in the internal affairs of China. The recent American note, which virtually was interference, and was sent without consulting Japan, caused surprise. It was not until afterward that we were notified and invited to participate. We are making efforts to assure the people that the United States had no intention of slighting the Japanese, but they are extremely sensitive to anything touching China, which they deem a supremely vital question of Japan's future."

Attorney General's Staff to Present Evidence in Murder Case.

An extraordinary Grand Jury was impaneled yesterday by Justice Tompkins to consider the evidence which Deputy Attorneys General Alfred Becker and James O'Malley have been collecting in their investigation of the murder of Barnet Baff, the West Washington Market poultry dealer, who was shot on Nov. 14, 1914. Neither Mr. Becker nor Mr. O'Malley was willing to discuss the nature of the evidence.

Addressing the jury, Justice Tompkins said:

"I have been informed by the Attorney General that your work will be of the gravest importance to the community. It is your sworn duty to file indictments against those accused, no matter how high their position or their standing in the community, provided the evidence justifies such indictments."

The Grand Jury will begin its work today and 261 witnesses have been subpoenaed.

Governor Whitman recently removed District Attorney Swann from the prosecution of the Baff case and designated the Attorney General as the prosecuting officer. Complaint had been made to the Governor that the District Attorney's office was delaying the trials of the men already under indictment.

LEO ARNSTEIN RESIGNS.

Finds New Law Interferes with Management of Board of Education.

Leo Arnstein, executive manager of the Board of Education, announced his resignation from that place yesterday in a letter to William G. Willcox, President of the board, in which he said:

> When I accepted appointment as executive manager of the Board of Education, I did so in the belief that certain important constructive reforms in the business management of the department could be effected.
> Within the past week, however, the State educational law has been amended, as a result of which the situation has been materially changed. Instead of leaving the Board of Education free to place the business management of the department under the executive manager, as heretofore, this portion of its work has been specifically assigned to the City Superintendent, and the executive manager will in future be subject to his supervision and direction.
> Furthermore, the feature of this new legislation which makes the law become effective immediately but defers the appointment of the new Board of Education until Jan 1, 1918, creates a situation which would militate against a successful functioning of this new office.

Mr. Willcox said last night that he agreed with Mr. Arnstein that it was a mistake to put all of the departments under one man. "I will accept the resignation," he said, "but I think the law is a mistake."

SAYS A FEW PAPERS IMPERIL OUR FORCES

Information Bureau Asks for Suppression of News of Assembling or Movement of Troops.

MOST PAPERS ARE HELPING Request Again Made That Names of Ships Fighting U-Boats Be Suppressed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Committee on Public Information, of which George Creel is Chairman, issued a statement today, stating that one per cent. of the newspapers in the country were not observing the voluntary censorship, although the other 99 per cent. were doing so "scrupulously." An appeal was made anew for the suppression of all information concerning train or boat movements of troops and the assembling of military forces at seaports.

Tonight a second statement was issued by the committee, urging the suppression of the names of armed merchant vessels that might engage in fights with submarines, and requesting of the press "the restoration of the agreement to its original force."

No statement was made of what newspapers were offending against the general spirit of voluntary censorship.

The first statement issued by the committee read:

"While 99 per cent. of the newspapers of the country are scrupulously observing the rules of voluntary censorship, a certain few are printing daily information that may expose American soldiers and sailors to deadly peril.

"Not only is announcement made of the passage of troops through the communities in which these papers are published, but the names and equipment are given in detail, also exact information as to destination and date of arrival, together with speculation as to probable sailing.

"It does not matter that the Government's plans for concealment of troop movements across the water have failed in any particulars. Absolute secrecy still remains the object of the strenuous efforts. The press of the country, realizing the necessity, has pledged its aid and co-operation. The one newspaper that breaks this faith undoes the work of all those that keep the faith. Attention is again called to these specific and repeated requests of the Government for suppression of news with respect to

"1. Information in regard to the train or boat movements of troops.

"2. Information regarding the assembling of military forces at seaports from which inference might be made of any intention to embark them for service abroad."

The second statement, which was a request to newspapers not to publish the names of armed merchant vessels that encounter U-boats, said:

"A prime concern of the voluntary censorship, imposed upon itself by the press, has been the suppression of the identity of the armed merchant vessels that may engage in defense encounters with submarines. The Captains of these vessels, not being a part of the recognized naval organization of the United States, are outside the protection of laws of war as the German Empire interprets them. In event of their capture, death would be their fate. The judicial murder of Captain Fryatt makes clear the German attitude to these men.

"The peril of the destruction of the vessels themselves in subsequent voyages also is intensified by establishing the indentity as the destroyer of a submarine. The added danger to the picked gun crews of fine young Americans is equally apparent.

"The agreement of secrecy was shattered last week by cable dispatches from France, naming the Silver Shell as the victor in a submarine combat. The act was unintentional, and the Government of the United States has since been assured that both the French and British Governments will co-operate in the future for the protection of our merchant ships and their Captains.

"In the case of the encounter of another merchantman with a submarine, recorded Wednesday, the voluntary agreement was broken, a few New York evening newspapers printing the name of the ship and the name of the Captain. In spite of this, all but three of the morning newspapers of New York City kept the faith, though aware that in this particular instance the damage of publicity was done. The effort was to prevent error from establishing a precedent.

"The agreement must be restored. In no other way can there be lessening of the danger of future attacks upon the ships that fire on submarines, or their Captains saved from ignoble death in event of capture. It is a Fryatt horror that is being guarded against.

"The Navy Department of the United States makes formal request upon the press for restoration of the agreement to its original forces. No matter from which side of the ocean comes the news, it is asked that the names and identities of Captains and ships damaging or sinking submarines be withheld from publication."

SUES G. D. MORGAN ESTATE.

Spanish Woman Says Financier's Nephew Gave Note for $200,000.

A claim by a Spanish woman for $200,000 against the estate of George Denison Morgan, nephew of the late J. P. Morgan, was filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday by her attorney, Max Schenckman. The claimant is Señorita Josefa Ruiz of Madrid, Spain, who submitted through her attorney a promissory note drawn by the decedent on May 12, 1912, in which he promised to pay her $200,000 six months after his death. He executed a codicil to his will on Aug. 7, 1913, in which he referred to the note and asked that it be paid. He directed that, if by any reason the note should not be paid, a bequest of $200,000 be given to her. Mr. Morgan died suddenly at Seville, Spain, on July 10, 1915.

Counsel for Señorita Ruiz contends that the note represents money borrowed by the decedent and investments she intrusted to him.

He was brought here from England by Frank Gould to take care of his kennel at Lyndhurst. When Mr. Gould gave up his kennels his sister, Mrs. Shepherd, gave Johnson a place on her estate near Elmsford, where he conducted the kennel for eleven years.

WOMEN HIDE AGES? NO, CRY REGISTRARS

'FRESH,' SAYS MISS MORGAN

She Declares Men Tried to Conceal Years, but Cook Was Only Woman Citizen to Parley.

Women who have been aiding in the taking of the State military census took up arms last night in defense of women from the charge made by E. P. Goodrich, Director of the census in New York City, that it was women's unwillingness to reveal their ages and other personal information to registrars near their homes that had been partially responsible for the confusion and tangle over the distribution of blanks. It was Mr. Goodrich's theory that women who didn't want neighbors to know their age went in large numbers to distant districts, or to department stores, to register, thus upsetting the careful calculations of the State Government.

"That's the freshest thing I ever heard," said Miss Camilla Morgan last night. Miss Morgan is a suffrage leader, who has entire charge of the registration in the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, and is doing efficient work.

"I am furious over this," she said. "The idea, the idea of the men in charge of the census blaming their troubles on women not wanting people to know how old they are. The women in the Twenty-ninth District have registered in their home precincts and haven't been ashamed of their ages. They gave them willingly. And I've got this to say—we have had men who were bashful about giving their ages—I suppose they were afraid of the militia law, but we have had no trouble with women, with the exception of a cook, and she didn't want her mistress to know her age. That's the only one.

"Let me say this about the blanks: At my headquarters, at 44 West Fifty-seventh Street, I was to have received 25,000 blanks for my district. I got 2,500. Imagine! They soon gave out, and I hired a taxicab, went downtown, and grabbed what I could to keep my registration places going. Is that the fault of women and their ages or of some of the men supposed to be running this thing? It's no sort of way at all to blame it on a supposed trait of women, a trait that is imaginary, that some one messed up the registration blanks.

Denies Women Caused Delay.

"I want Mr. Goodrich to know just how I feel about this thing. I want him to know that his excuse is not good. The women of New York City have not confused the census because they were afraid some one they knew would find out their ages."

Mrs. Raymond Brown, a leading suffragist, who has a registration place at 2,488 Broadway, couldn't agree with Mr. Goodrich. She said that the women who registered at her booth were from her district, for she knew them. Consequently they couldn't have gone some place they didn't belong to register. She said women didn't mind giving their ages these days.

An assistant for Mrs. John Humphrey Watkins, Chairman of the Manhattan Borough Branch of the New York City Woman Suffrage Party, said Mr. Goodrich didn't know what he was talking about, and had better spend a day in one of the registration booths to get the facts.

Several other women census workers were resentful of Mr. Goodrich's statement, not so much that they regarded the alleged age-bashfulness as a thing against the women, but that they would put the blame in the right place. They said they intended to convey their sentiments to the officials at census headquarters in person.

The statement issued at 261 Broadway by Mr. Goodrich yesterday said:

> It may seem strange, yet it is true, that the shortage of blanks and consequent temporary interruption of our schedule, is due to the desire to make things easier for the people. We sent blanks to schools, to churches, and like places, in which it was natural to assume that the people in the neighborhood would register. Instead a great many of them, such as women who do not want their neighbors to know their age or business, have flocked to other parts of the city, creating in many places a shortage never expected.

It was said yesterday that the shortage of blanks was mostly due to their having been sent to a large number of business houses, with the result that a sufficient number did not go to many official registration places. Furthermore, the blanks were put up in packages of 500; if a business house asked for 300, it got a package of 500. One of the striking features of the census results has been that employes have seen fit in a large number of cases to register at some other place than where they are employed.

A State Confessional.

The criss-cross of many lives has turned the headquarters of the census at 261 Broadway into a confessional. Not less than a score of women called at the offices yesterday to say that when the police came around to their homes to take the census recently they gave wrong ages, some saying that they had given wrong ages in their marriage certificates. They wanted to know if six months in jail confronted them if they gave the wrong age to the State census taker. They were all advised to tell the truth this time, and that only State officials would be able to inspect the records.

Three men came with the confession that they were leading double lives, and wanted to know if one registration card would protect them against all consequences. They were told it would. There have actually been several cases when a woman has asked what age another woman gave. No information was forthcoming.

It was announced by Director Goodrich that the New York City figures had passed the million mark. The registration had been going along at the rate of 200,000 a day, but the rain and other causes cut the figures yesterday to 100,000.

Most of the hundreds of registration places closed Wednesday when the blanks ran out were reopened yesterday after the receipt of 364,000 blanks from Albany. These were distributed in express wagons, starting before daybreak.

"Please instruct your Captains at all stations that they may receive and accept blanks which have been filled out at home, provided the forms are signed by the person registering in the presence of the registrars. If the signature has been subscribed at home, let the person sign again underneath the first signature in the presence of the registrar so that the signature may be verified. Do not give under any circumstances any blanks to be filled out at home."

Conundrums for Registrars.

Many perplexing questions are asked of the registrars. One man went to the headquarters yesterday and, saying that he was a native of the Danish West Indies, recently purchased by the United States, wanted to know if he was a citizen. No definite answer was given. Another question that recurs almost every day is the status of a man who took out first naturalization papers and never got his second papers.

A man who has taken out his first papers, which are valid, is subject to military duty. The answer to the problem is that a law was passed in 1906 fixing the term of validity of first papers at seven years. The law provides a period of two years between the taking out of first and second papers. It has been held that if a man took out his first papers prior to 1906 they are still valid. Since 1906 the validity of first papers alone is measured by a period of seven years. Thus, the man who took out first papers in 1909 and didn't get his second papers is not liable; if he took out his first papers in 1911 he is liable.

Professor Charles A. Beard of Columbia University is aiding in the solution of the knotty problems presented to the census officials.

It is expected that additional blanks, which are now being printed, will reach New York City before Monday and that there will be no further serious hitch in the taking of the census because of a lack of blanks.

EXTENDS EXEMPTION RIGHTS.

Failure to File Affidavits Not a Bar Against Draft.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 14.—A decision that failure of a citizen of the State to file affidavits now with the County Clerk asking exemption does not constitute a bar to the right to claim exemption when the time for drafting is at hand, was returned tonight by Attorney General Merton F. Lewis in a letter to Adjutant General Louis W. Stotesbury.

All males between 18 and 45 years, inclusive, are being enrolled on the State Militia lists by census enumerators, and on the back of their enrollment cards is printed a section of the State military law requiring those who desire to claim exemption to file affidavits to that effect with the County Clerk of their county within fifteen days of the time they are enrolled. The Attorney General's opinion held that the National Defense act supersedes Section 3 of the State military law, which demanded the filing of exemption claims with the county clerks.

ACTORS HEAR SUNDAY PREACH ON 'HEAVEN'

PERKINS LAUDS EVANGELIST

Actors and actresses had an opportunity last night to see how Billy Sunday "fills his house," as some 500 men and women of the stage and the "movies" accepted his invitation and were part of an audience of 14,000 in the Tabernacle. Daniel Frohman, his daughter, and his sister sat with the evangelist's guests on the platform. It was said the theatrical clubs and societies represented at the meeting included the Lambs, Players, Screen Club, Twelfth Night, Professional Women's League, Gamut Club, and the Actors' Church Alliance. The player-folk heard Sunday preach an orthodox sermon on "Heaven," and he abbreviated that to some extent to permit other speakers to make pleas for the Liberty Loan.

William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue, had this to say for the war bond sale:

"The Liberty Bell, as well as other bells throughout the country, are ringing out today an appeal for men and women to buy a Liberty bond. This investment is richly colored with red, white and blue. It is full of patriotism. Its value as an investment can never fade away. The American Government is behind it. We must make this bond issue a successful one; it is a matter of national pride that it be one grand success. If it is to be successful it can only be made so by the loyal backing of every red-blooded American from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

"Do not forget that all of this money and all the moneys we have recently loaned our Allies is spent in this country; that in itself is a great incentive for every man and woman to be behind this bond. Your own sons going to France and you neglecting to give Uncle Sam money to buy a gun and blanket for him? Is that you? Not on your life. If the Kaiser gets to New York—and he will if you don't put up the cash to stop him—he will take every cent every one of you has. You won't get any 3½ per cent. interest on that.

"You all know today what a fleet of airships the Kaiser sent over London—you know the lives that were lost. Let us guard against the possibility of such a thing happening to this country. You can't carry out the command of peace on earth, good-will to men, unless you take away the earth from Prussia. Good-will is not in Prussia. There will never be any peace for the common people until you help God Almighty make the world free. You can't be a good Christian and a bad American. Tomorrow at 3 o'clock will show that every loyal American is behind this bond issue."

George W. Perkins, seaking from the platform, praised Sunday's work here. Then Sunday said a word for the Liberty Loan. In the course of his sermon he declared that there "is only one way to reach Heaven." He said:

"I want to show you the absolute and utter futility of pinning your hope to a lot of fool things that will damn your soul to hell. There is only one way. 'As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in Him shall not perish, but have eternal life.' Search the annals of time and the pages of history, and where do you find promises like that? Only upon the pages of the Bible do you find them."

Despite the heavy rainfall, Sunday had more than 5,000 persons at the Tabernacle in the afternoon. The storm, however, frequently silenced the evangelist. He couldn't make himself heard at times, so paused frequently while the rain thumped on the low roof, through which water trickled at intervals and forced some of his hearers to move to dry spots. There were 1,970 trail hitters at the two services.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

A dramatization of Gene Stratton Porter's story, "Freckles," will be presented at Hammerstein's Lexington Theatre next week by the Lexington Players. Paul Porter will play the title role.

George Harcourt, who has acted in American productions for a quarter of a century, has passed his examination for a Captaincy in the United States Reserve Army and has been ordered from Madison Barracks to Syracuse.

Robert P. Gleckler, who acted in Brooklyn stock companies for a number of seasons, will make his Broadway debut next season in "Mother Carey's Chickens."

Gloria Goodwin, who has one of the principal roles in "Love o' Mike," learned yesterday that she had won the pearl necklace raffled off at the recent Actors' Fund Fair. She has announced her intention of selling it and investing the money in Liberty bonds.

Virginia Fissinger has been added to the cast of "My Lady's Glove," which will come to the Lyric next Monday night. She is a dancer who once appeared with the Chicago Opera Company.

An entertainment for the benefit of the Bronx Maternity Hospital will be given Sunday night at the Bronx Opera House. A part of the program will consist of selections rendered by stars of the Aborn Opera Company.

"CHU CHIN CHOW" COMING.

The American rights to "Chu Chin Chow," an Oriental fantasy that is one of the current successes in London, have been acquired by Messrs. Elliott, Comstock, and Gest, and the play will be presented here in the early Fall at the Manhattan Opera House. "Chu Chin Chow" has passed its 350th performance at Sir Herbert Tree's His Majesty's Theatre, where it was produced last Winter by Oscar Asche, who plays the principal rôle. Several American managers bid for the rights, and it is said the successful bidders paid $50,000 in advance royalties.

Lyle Sweet, Mr. Asche's stage director, will come to New York to supervise the staging of the play at the Manhattan, and representatives of the American managers will leave for London shortly to complete the details of the transaction. The settings and costumes will be made from the original designs of Percy Anderson. The Manhattan engagement will follow the brief revival of "The Wanderer" early next season.

bill goes through, we will all be marching in a Hoover procession, and we will have to thank Heaven for what he allows us to do."

Senator Gore spoke in an aside to Senator Reed, and the Missouri Senator went on:

"The Senator from Oklahoma reminds me that it was resistance to the King's arrogant assumption of the right of search and seizure that started onr fight with Great Britain. It inflamed the spirit of revolution. Here we have in this atrocious Food bill precisely the same right of search and seizure. What is the country coming to if we are to allow such a vicious thing as this? I am bitterly opposed to this legislation, and I am going to oppose it with all my strength."

"I would like the Senate," he said, "to consider the powers this bill contemplates in the Governmental control of necessities. The bill recites that its power shall extend to and include all processes, methods, activities of and the promotion, manufacture, procurement, storage, distribution, sale, marketing, pledging, financing and—now note this language—'consumption of' necessities. It provides that all such necessaries, processes, methods and activities 'are hereby declared to be affected with the public interest.' Yea, in order to afford some shadow of pretense of the exercise of a constitutional power, the bill falsely declares that all of these things are affected with a public interest, intending, of course, to plant the exercise of this power upon the ground that the Government has the right to control activities affected with the public interest.

Assailed as "Impudently False."

"And yet the most casual reading of the language will show that the things to be affected are not affected with the public interest within the legal meaning of that term at all, and have no other relation to the public interest save that the life and happiness of every man, woman and child in the Republic and every dollar's worth of property affect the public interest. It is an impudently false and fraudulent recital.

"Under Section 4 it is proposed to punish and make illegal the acts of any person who allows any necessities under his control to deteriorate if he can prevent it, and that power is extended to the article when produced and to the production of the article. Under that section every man is made a violator of the law who may have any article whatsoever that suffers deterioration or waste, if he can prevent it.

"In Section 5 this remarkable power is extended to the President, so that these various agencies, Mr. Hoover and others, may license the importation and exportation, the manufacture, storage, or distribution of any necessaries. So there is given to these gentlemen the power to compel any person producing or importing or manufacturing or storing these necessities, to take out a license. Under that section, by the mere issuance of an order the President could compel every manufacturer in the United States and every dealer and shipper to secure from Mr. Hoover or some other unnamed gentleman a license to transact his business, to manufacture his product, or to import into this country, or to export from it the prime necessities of life."

"Now, just notice that the language contained in Section 1 is, as I understand it, enlarged by the language of Section 3. 'That there is hereby established a Governmental control of necessaries which shall extend to and include all these processes, methods, activities of and for the production, manufacture, procurement, storage, distribution, sale, marketing, pledging, financing, and consumption of necessaries.'"

"The Senator has omitted the words on page 1, line 8, 'of food, seed, fuel, and articles required for their production,'" interposed Senator Borah of Idaho. "The words 'and articles required for their production' would cover practically everything."

"I thank the Senator," said Senator Reed.

Emphasizes Control of Manufactures.

"Those particular words vastly enlarge the preceding clause. When we take Section 3 in connection with that, the language is plain that we have put within the control of this board every manufacturing process that has anything to do with the production of the articles mentioned, which, I think, would include the manufacture of steel and of iron or agricultural implements. It would include, in my opinion, the cotton gin and the cotton mill. It would include the sheep, and, in my opinion, it would include the wool and the processes of manufacture. It would include beyond question the packing establishments of the country, big and little. It would include every butcher shop in the country. It could be made to include every railroad, for it includes all transportation facilities. The movement from place to place is clearly covered, but above that it includes the right to say what the people shall eat and to regulate the bill of fare of every home in the United States."

GOMPERS BACKS LEVER BILL.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—A countrywide appeal to organized labor to throw its support to the Lever Food Administration bill was issued today by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor. In it Mr. Gompers gave full sanction to the Administration's plan to cope with the wartime food problem, and sounded a warning that the danger of actual hunger faced the American people. He asked that workers in every section get in touch immediately with their Representatives and demand definite action on the legislation, now pending in Congress, before July 1.

The appeal was sent to 28,000 local unions, to all international officers, State Federations, city control bodies, reform press and local lodges of the railroad brotherhoods. It was addressed to "all workers," and read, in part:

"Legislation to administer the distribution of the necessities of life must be enacted before July 1 if the prices of food necessities are to be reduced to something near normal.

"After July 1 the new crops will be moving to the markets, food speculators will have cornered crops, prices will be forced up, and the people will feel actual want.

"The proposed bill does not set up a food dictatorship or methods that infringe upon the liberties of the citizens. It does not purpose to ration the people, but attempts to protect the people against speculation by rational, practical means.

GORE BILL IS REPORTED.

Senate to Take Up the War Prohibition Measure Next Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Gore bill to prohibit the use of non-perishable food products in the manufacture of alcoholic beverages during war time was reported to the Senate today and will be pushed for consideration next week. The measure comprehends the prohibition of whisky distillation and the brewing of beer, while it would authorize the President, if emergency should dictate, to prevent the making of wine. The principal provisions of the bill are as follows:

"That whenever the President shall ascertain that it is necessary to conserve the food or feed supplies of the army, navy, and people of the United States he is empowered to give public notice of the fact so ascertained, and thereupon to restrict or prohibit the use of any perishable food or feed product in the manufacture of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes.

"When the question is raised as to whether any particular product is perishable or non-perishable, or as to whether it is suitable for food or feed, the question shall be certified by the Secretary of the Treasury to the Secretary of Agriculture, whose finding in the premises shall be conclusive for the purposes of this act.

"That the President is authorized and directed to commandeer any or all distilled spirit, in bond at the date of the approval of this act for redistillation, in so far as such redistillation may be necessary to meet the requirements of the Government in the manufacture of munitions and other military and hospital supplies, or in so far as such redistillation would dispense with the necessity of utilizing products and materials suitable for feeds and foods in the future manufacture of distilled spirits for the purposes herein enumerated.

"The President shall determine and pay any just compensation for the distilled spirits so commandeered; and if the price so determined be not satisfactory to the person entitled to receive the same, such person shall be paid the amount prescribed by the President and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum as, added to the amount so paid, will be just compensation for such spirits, in the manner provided by Section 24, Paragraph 20, and Section 145 of the Judicial Code."

Violations of the provisions of the act is to be punished by a fine of not more than $2,000 or by a prison term ranging from ninety days to a year.

PAY $500 MORE AND GET A RUGGED, THRIFTY CAR WHOSE FIRST NAME IS QUALITY AND LAST NAME IS CHALMERS

A well known man said the other day: "I have owned three kinds of cars. One was a low priced small car that was uncomfortable to ride in and costing me money right along in repairs.

"One was a high priced great big car that kept me in hot water much of the time paying the gas and tire bills.

"I found relief in a Chalmers. It just suits me. I get all the room and all the car I want, and I find because of its inbuilt quality that it is far more economical than the smaller, cheaper car with which neither I nor the Mrs. was ever pleased."

We feel that as a whole the Chalmers car fits in just between the two in a way that gives just about what nine out of ten want—a sensible car with a sensible price.

Sensible because it has a quality backbone and ribs, and sensible because it is thrifty. Which is interesting in war times and important. For, as the Scotch say, "A dollar saved is a dollar earned."

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1917.

THERE WAS BUT ONE WAY.

We find it exceedingly hard to believe that any intelligent American can be ignorant of or in doubt about our reasons for going to war with Germany. There may be such. Let us make all charitable allowance for impermeable minds. Whether they be few or many, none of them can resist the force and lucidity of President WILSON's Flag Day speech. It is not a long address. Every American should read it, the vast majority for refreshment of memory and firmer resolution, the hypothetical few to whom we have alluded for information or for the ending of their false pretenses.

First, the President sets forth our provocations, the wrongs and outrages and insults which left the United States no choice but to make war. Then he presents the broader grounds: our duty to fellow-members of the family of civilization, to the cause of human freedom, our obligation alike to ourselves and to the cause of democracy in the world to put an end to the swaggering and dangerous pretensions of the common enemy. Although the President's address is printed in full elsewhere, we reproduce a notable passage here for the benefit of the small class who have raised their voices unseasonably in a demand for a restatement of our motives in entering the war. It is good reading for all Americans:

> It is plain enough how we were forced into the war. The extraordinary insults and aggressions of the Imperial German Government left us no self-respecting choice but to take up arms in defense of our rights as a free people and of our honor as a sovereign Government. The military masters of Germany denied us the right to be neutral. They filled our unsuspecting communities with vicious spies and conspirators and sought to corrupt the opinion of our people in their own behalf. When they found that they could not do that, their agents diligently spread sedition among us and sought to draw our own citizens from their allegiance—and some of these agents were men connected with the official embassy of the German Government itself, here in our own capital. They sought by violence to destroy our industries and arrest our commerce. They tried to incite Mexico to take up arms against us, and to draw Japan into a hostile alliance with her—and that not by indirection, but by direct suggestion from the Foreign Office in Berlin. They impudently denied us the use of the high seas and repeatedly executed their threat that they would send to their death any of our people who ventured to approach the coasts of Europe. And many of our own people were corrupted. Men began to look upon their own neighbors with suspicion and to wonder, in their hot resentment and surprise, whether there was any community in which hostile intrigue did not lurk. What great nation in such circumstances would not have taken up arms? Much as we had desired peace, it was denied us, and not of our own choice. This flag under which we serve would have been dishonored had we withheld our hand.

The President has been deeply stirred by the crimes of Germany. It would appear that the more he reflects upon her transgressions the deeper becomes his resentment. In this address he uses language of unwonted serverity. He no longer deplores, protests, or remonstrates, he delivers against Germany shafts of downright denunciation barbed with just anger. He recites again the story of the German ambition to dominate the world, her design to "throw a broad belt of German military power and political control across the very centre of Europe and beyond the Mediterranean and into the heart of Asia." He says that in the attempted execution of this monstrous plan the German military power has made servile puppets of Austria-Hungary, of Bulgaria, of Turkey. If the military masters of Germany and of these subject Powers succeed, then the German people and the world are undone; "if they fall, Germany is saved and the world will be at peace," but "if they succeed, America will fall within the menace." Here again it was of national obligation, for our own defense and preservation, to take up arms against Germany.

Mr. WILSON addresses some needed words of warning to those agents of the Imperial German Government who are still actively conducting a "sinister intrigue" in this country. They have grown prudent, they do not preach open sedition, but covertly they are still carrying on their German propaganda. They still "seek to undermine the Government with false professions of loyalty to its principles." But we have made our choice, we must "break through all these hypocrisies and patent cheats and masks of brute force and help to set the world free." "Woe to the man or group of men that seeks to stand in our way in this day of high resolution." It was in every way appropriate that on the national Flag Day the President of the United States should speak these words to the people, exhorting them to an unflinching performance of their duty in an undertaking which will bring new lustre to the flag.

THE LAST CHANCE.

The last moment for enlistment in the first American Army of Liberty ends at noon today. Every buyer of a Liberty bond is a soldier in that army. Every subscription is a shot at Germany, an effective blow for the liberation of the world from that military and economic servitude to Germany which a German triumph would mean.

Every Liberty bond is a rampart and warder of that lasting peace under liberty which the world longs for, which can come only with the smashing of the German military machine and caste, of the German idea of the State, whose citizens exist only to serve a monstrous, pitiless organism, beyond morality and pity, whose aim is dominion.

That force, whose long savageries reach from the ruin of Belgium to the latest massacre from the air or from under the sea, must be beaten if any civilization tolerable to free peoples is to survive.

Help arm free civilization. Help arm the United States, fighting for the rights of its citizens, for liberty, democracy, and peace. The greater the multitude of subscribers to the Liberty Loan, the more impressive will be the enthusiasm and solidarity of the United States in this battle for democracy.

This morning brings the last chance to respond to a great duty of citizenship. Don't miss that chance. Buy a Liberty bond!

MAKE THE LEVER BILL LAW.

It is understood that the Food Administration bill will be taken up in the House of Representatives next Monday and will not be laid aside again until final action is taken upon it. Time enough has already been wasted. The enactment should not be delayed beyond next week. The representatives of organized labor, who approve the bill, demand that it should be made a law by July 1. Their demand is echoed all over the country. The labor men also demand that the powers granted to the President by the bill in its present form shall not be appreciably diminished. They are not afraid of any abuse of those powers by Mr. WILSON. This is exclusively a war measure designed to meet the present abnormal conditions. The food production of this country must be conserved to feed the people of the United States and their allies in the war. Neutral countries cannot be supplied if all that is produced is needed by the belligerents opposed to the Central Powers. The shipment of food to Germany must be made impossible. Speculation in all provisions must be suppressed. It is believed that prices of most foodstuffs will be nearly a third lower after the passage of the Lever bill.

HERBERT C. HOOVER, chosen by the President for the new office of Government Food Administrator, possesses every qualification for the place. With the food administration law in operation and Mr. HOOVER in charge, a most important step will have been taken toward the successful prosecution of our part in the war. Opposition to the bill, except on the part of persons who see future profit in unrestrained speculation in the necessaries of life, is almost wholly confined to the theoretical opponents of the concentration of power in the hands of the President. But theorists must hold their theories, however cherished, in abeyance when war conditions make new methods imperative.

REGULATION OF REGULATION.

It is astonishing that it should have been necessary to take to the Supreme Court the question whether public utility undertakings should be taxed like other property. Necessarily the decision is that there can be no distinction between corporate and other property, and that taxes of all sorts must be levied upon an equality of valuation. That does not mean that all property must be valued at full valuation. The decision is that whatever ratio of valuation is adopted for one sort of property must be allowed to corporate franchises.

That will put an end to the practice of valuing railway property at a high ratio for the purpose of taxation, and at a low ratio for the purpose of regulating rates to customers. Some regulators who were properly shocked at discrimination by public utilities have not been ashamed to discriminate themselves in the application of the law to their victims. Discrimination is a vital sin, and not to be condoned, but it is worst when practiced by regulators and lawmakers. Public utilities have bills to pay, and are entitled to profit if earned. Regulators, taxers, and lawmakers are above such necessities, and are professors of virtue. As such they ought to temper their severity by fair dealing.

Mutual fair play might lead to a better understanding between these natural enemies, with benefits to the general public, which suffers from each of them. State commissions will do well to take notice that the court rejected the plea that no Federal question was involved. The corporations are not helpless against confiscation in the form of taxation and in the name of regulation. If now their managers will deserve the respect which the highest court has shown them, better days will dawn for them.

FAIR WARNING.

The punitive side of the arrest of WALDEMAR VON NOSTITZ of the Cleveland Wächter und Anzeiger is not of much importance. It does not make much difference how much or little his internment as an enemy alien may affect his comfort. The exemplary side of it is of importance. By arresting this seditious writer the Government has served notice on German-language newspaper editors that it does not intend to be permanently complacent and easygoing with those who are trying to spread disaffection among German-born citizens. The pro-German writers in question have gone unmolested so long that, like the anarchists, they have come to have a perfect confidence that the Government will never touch them.

Most of those who offend fancy that they keep within the law when, with a perfunctory lip service to Uncle Sam, they seek to create hostility to this country's allies and to discredit every act the Government takes to make the war effective. But the law is different in time of war from what it is in time of peace. In time of war the law is that Germany must win or the United States must win, and that to say and do things which will help Germany to win and the United States to lose is not permitted.

German-American loyalty is put to a hard strain when, day after day, the German-American who means to be loyal reads in his newspaper nothing but attacks on our allies and sneers at our own Government. These things are intended to impair his loyalty, and the qualifying phrases, "Of course, we stand by the Government," the Government they are seeking in every other phrase to discredit, mean nothing to him and are intended to mean nothing.

In Charleston, S. C., there was another German editor, PAUL WIERSE by name, who was all the more harmful because he edited, not a German-language paper, but one apparently American. It was established after the war began and called itself The Charleston American. Its readers were not on notice that its editor was a German. In this paper he daily spread sedition. It called our soldiers "boys who did not know why they were forced to die in France"; if Secretary LANE made a patriotic speech, it called him "a sort of public apologist and advocate for the Administration war policy"; it discredited the Root mission, it detailed imaginary efforts for peace on behalf of the Entente, it urged Russia to seek a separate peace; it did a hundred similar things, all the time sailing under "American" colors.

Those who read this precious publication under the impression that it really was American must have been astounded the other day when WIERSE was arrested and put under a $10,000 bond for conspiring to sink a German vessel interned in Charleston Harbor. The incident serves to throw light on the real motives and associations of many writers who are posing as loyal Americans and at the same time doing all they can to weaken the loyalty of other Americans, especially those of German birth. The Government has been not merely tolerant, but patient. The arrest of VON NOSTITZ is a warning that it is not blind and that its patience is not eternal.

FOR AIR SUPREMACY.

The nation-wide demand for the concentration of energy on the quick development of our military and naval air service has been stimulated by the reports of the recent outrageous assault by German fliers on helpless noncombatants in London. The allied air service is now supreme on the battle line. British airmen by their superior skill and courage made possible General HAIG's great triumph at Messines. Of course the Germans will make extraordinary efforts to regain supremacy of the air on the battlefront. They are still supreme in the massacre of women and children. All the airships and all the aviators America can provide are needed for the support of our allies. The Sheppard-Hulbert bill, now in the hands of the Senate's Military Committee, provides for the development of American air service on a large scale. Within a year it may be necessary to appropriate $1,000,000,000 for this service. The intention is to call for $500,000,000 without delay and to expend that money in the building of improved airplanes of all types and the training of airmen. Whether or not it is necessary to establish a separate department of aviation is at least open to question. There are too many cooks now. A Secretary of Aviation might be a superfluous ornament. People who are aware of the havoc the existing bureaus are capable of creating will not be disposed to favor the formation of a new war bureau. But the quick and thorough construction of scouting and fighting airplanes and seaplanes and the equipment and the [illegible] are the essentials.

As Mr. HOWARD E. COFFIN, Chairman of the [illegible] Commission of the Council of National Defense, says: "Domination of the air in all probability will prove the deciding factor in the war on sea perhaps as well as on land." We must send soldiers to reinforce our allies, we must have warships ready, we must provide huge quantities of supplies and ammunition, we must send big guns; but, without abating a jot the vigor of our preparations for land and sea warfare, we must get ready quickly to do our part, the largest part, in the air. The plans of the Defense Council, which are approved by the military experts, call for the construction of 100,000 airplanes in the shortest possible time. We can easily build 25,000 of these within a year and soon be sending 1,000 aviators across the Atlantic every month. But we must be about it.

SHIPS WITHOUT DELAY.

Our Government cannot wait a year for the ships it must have if the food and munition wants of our allies are to be satisfied. It was announced on the 11th that the Emergency Fleet Corporation had recently placed contracts for sixteen wooden hulls. But the first of these is not to be delivered until April 1, 1918, and others are to follow at intervals between that date and Sept. 30. Orders had already been given for 80 ships, 30 to be made of wood, 18 of steel, and 32 of both materials. Probably a majority of these will be finished before next April, and it is expected that several of them will be ready for use within seven months. But the latest contracts warrant an inference that orders given hereafter will not be executed in less than a year.

Small additions to the fleet are made every week. Five German ships were allotted to Italy on the 11th, and one to France, making twelve used in this way. Within a short time a dozen more will be available. The forty German vessels seized by Brazil will go into service between South American ports and our own, thus releasing British and other ships for work in the North Atlantic. A few German vessels will increase our small merchant tonnage in the Pacific, but the carriers required there for Russia's supplies have not been obtained. Our commission of engineers now in that country urges the importance of sending to Vladivostok the 10,000 freight cars and 500 locomotives ordered here.

The conclusion cannot be avoided that our Government will find it necessary to take ships which builders are making in our shipyards, ships ordered and owned by foreign and American companies. Power to do this will soon be given to the Shipping Board. General GOETHALS says of his new assistant general manager, appointed in place of one of the two officers who recently resigned or were removed: "He will appraise ships now on the ways, ships which we shall probably take over under legislation now pending." There are nearly 700 of these still to be launched. Many are on the Pacific Coast. Probably the first work of a considerable number will be done for our nation and its war allies. The imperative demand for ships in such service cannot be satisfied by vessels which will not be finished until the middle of next year.

DESERTING GREECE.

Former King CONSTANTINE is "deserting his beloved country" in a British warship, and he begs his beloved country to "accept his decision with calm." Possibly Greece will be able to endure his departure, and it is used to his desertions. He deserted it when he twice violated its Constitution. He deserted it when he treacherously deserted Serbia and broke the Greco-Serbian Treaty, whose validity, in case of a Bulgarian attack on Serbia, was never denied or assailed by even the most rabid anti-Venizelists until August, 1915.

He deserted Greece when, in May, 1916, by a secret covenant, negotiated between Berlin, Athens, and Sofia, Fort Rupel, on SARRAIL's flank, was delivered to the Bulgarians. He deserted it when the Germans and Bulgarians, again by agreement with the King so concerned for his "beloved Greece" and so bent on neutrality, occupied Kavala, and again when they took all Greek Macedonia as far as Florina, when he surrendered a whole Greek division to Germany, when he set the League of Reservists—all expenses paid by the German Legation—to bulldoze and rob in the King's name, to shoot Venizelists, to burn and steal; when, last December, his machine guns shot from ambush the French and British marines.

Still, he is a great humorist, and we shall miss him. Who but a great humorist would officially announce, at a parade of troops in celebration of his birthday, the "fall" of Verdun? No longer will he be "profoundly moved" when an instructed delegation at Athens calls at the Royal Palace to testify its veneration. No longer will he issue solemn denials of notorious facts. No longer will his "old wound" make him take to his bed when the Entente Ambassadors invite him to keep a few of his promises. No longer will Brother NICHOLAS or Brother ANDREW be dispatched to Paris or London to say how deeply eager Brother CONSTANTINE is to aid the Entente.

The faithful STREIT goes with him into exile. Switzerland swarms with Germans of the Baron Schenck type. The former King ought not to be lonely. He is the best of brothers-in-law, a sophist incomparable, and a genuine German.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Do-Nothings Deeply Embarrassed. For a considerable number of men, and for a much larger number of women, the taking of the State's military census has led to the first careful and conscious estimate of what may be called their social value, expressed in terms of what they can do. As this is a country in which a large majority of the men, whether rich or poor, have what they can honestly describe as an "occupation," only a few of them are obliged to confess that they do no work of any kind, and even of those few most are able to assert that they could do one or more useful things in case of need. That enables most men to make on the census blank an appearance not too humiliating.

The case is not quite the same with the women. Of course there always were many, and nowadays there are great multitudes, of women by whom a question as to occupation and capacity can be faced as calmly as by any man. But besides these there are others in no small numbers from whom these inquiries, as presented on the census sheet, elicit answers not pleasant to make. That is due chiefly to the fact that the draftsmen of the blanks were unkind to deny the name of "occupation" to any work not done for "compensation." That makes it wrong to put down either "wife" or "housewife" as a reply to this query.

In the first place, to be a wife is a status, not an occupation, and while the housewife is supposed always to have, and perhaps usually does have, rewards for her daily exertions, they take rarely indeed the form of definite, fixed payment for work done, and that, obviously, is what the word "compensation," as used, means. Naturally, the unmarried woman cannot say that her occupation consists of waiting to be married, and there are cases when nothing else can be said, and the troubled subject of investigation discovers, besides, her inability to assure her inquisitive Government that in time of need she can give it real service of any sort.

It is true, however, that this kind of embarrassment comes to fewer women nowadays than ever before in the world's history, and that the remaining number who cannot make any answer to the question, "What can you do?" is diminishing steadily and rapidly.

Billions Are Really Quite Large. It took this greatest of wars to bring the word "billions" into familiar and practical relation to the affairs of everybody's life. Hitherto, for the great majority of the earth's inhabitants, a billion was merely something mentioned in the arithmetics and of no known use except in the computations of astronomers in measuring the distances of the stars. But the European upheaval has changed all that, and billions are now such a common topic of discussion, in and out of the papers, that we have all come to at least a theoretical realization of their existence.

Indeed, debts and expenditures so often rise into that grade of enumeration that billions have lost a good deal of their past impressiveness as well as of their past vagueness of significance, and mere millions are apt to be treated with something of indifference. Thus, while the Liberty Loan subscriptions were moving along in the third fourth of $2,000,000,000, the remainder to be raised, though it consisted of hundreds of millions, was mentioned almost as if it was small change.

Just the same, $2,000,000,000 is an enormous amount of money, now as always, and anybody will come to believe it who figures out how long it would take him to count that number of dollars at the rate—possible for a little while—of a dollar a second. The completion of his task would require almost seventy years, if he worked at it day and night continuously, not stopping to eat or rest in all that time.

It wasn't so long ago that all the gold in the world wasn't worth $2,000,000,000, and, judged by old standards—the amount of wheat, potatoes, or cotton it will buy—probably it wouldn't be worth that much now.

But the billions we are so glibly mentioning are not exactly tangible dollars, even of paper. They consist largely of that precious and convenient, but unsubstantial, thing, credit—figures set down on the right side of bank ledgers. Those figures are not meaningless, however. They usually mean a debt that somebody must pay, sooner or later, and they have for all of us, at present, a significance that doesn't conduce as much as some other things to sound sleeping o' nights—it doesn't, that is, if one happens to have the habit of keeping a thoughtful eye on the future.

Pleasanter Than Decapitation. That at this particular time the Russians should be gravely discussing whether or not they will let NICHOLAS ROMANOFF, the sometime Czar, vote at the coming election of a Constituent Assembly—that is a fact lamentably characteristic of what is taking up the time and attention of many people in that troubled land.

Of course the problem is not without a certain interest, and strict logic requires its solution when the proposal is up to give a vote to every Russian man and woman. That being the case, as the Czar has not been convicted of crime, or even very definitely charged with it, he really should share a privilege so nearly universal. But the practical importance of the question is so very small, in comparison with innumerable others vehemently demanding instant solution in Russia, that for this one to receive immediate attention is at once discouraging and amusing.

Its consideration goes well, however, with much else that is happening in Russia. NICHOLAS ROMANOFF on a voting list and going to the polls to cast a ballot of no more weight than that of any peasant would be a beautiful spectacle—there's no doubt about that.

Porto Ricans Are Citizens.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Teachers and other persons here are not acquainted with the possessions the United States have outside of the States. If they were acquainted with them, they would not be put in a ridiculous position when registering Porto Rican people at present. They don't seem to be acquainted with the fact that we are already citizens of the United States. This has been the experience of a Porto Rican young lady when registering, and it seems a pity that this should happen with people holding such positions. I think that this is the opportunity for them to learn facts before starting arguments with the people who know what they are talking about.

Bombs on German Crops.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why don't the allied aviators who so gallantly fly over the German lines get to the grain fields and drop fire bombs? It would seem an easy way to help on the food [illegible].

FRENCH CANADIAN VIEWS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article bearing the caption "Peril of Civil Strife Arises Anew in Canada," in a recent issue, is so unfair that I feel sure a paper of the standing of THE TIMES, which doubtless published the article in the best of faith, will afford space for a brief reply from one who claims to know something of the French Canadians and of their real feelings and sentiments.

Why does the writer ignore the fact that thousands of French Canadians have gone to the front and that many of them have laid down their lives, as the casualty lists so eloquently attest? He seems to forget that Quebec showed her loyalty and regard for Great Britain by saving Canada to the British Crown when it was invaded by the Americans in 1776 and again in 1812. What does he mean by "mediaeval"? If he means that the habitants of Quebec are peaceable, quiet, law-abiding, God-fearing, religious, easily contented people, well and good. But if he wishes to infer that the habitants are ignorant, backward, decadent, stupid louts, as the peasants were in the Middle Ages, we take issue with him.

It was the Roman Catholic clergy who literally bore in their hands the ark of French Canadian nationality which they carried in safety through the wilderness of danger and despair that followed the cession. For nearly 400 years they have been the faithful guides, counselors, and shepherds of their people, who for that reason hold them in well-deserved reverence. But to represent the French Canadians as slaves of their priests is an offense both to the clergy and to the people.

As to "keeping out of the English language," French Canadians do not object to learning English. What they do object to is that their children should be deprived of having instruction in their mother tongue, (French,) which, it must be remembered, has been recognized in Canada since the cession and was specifically defined by the Canadian Constitution framed in 1867 as one of the two official languages of the Dominion.

The fact is that the French Canadians are being systematically maligned. A few ignorant, narrow-minded individuals would apparently like to see them deprived of their language and their religion and Anglicized and Protestantized. These people seem to forget that the forefathers of the French Canadians were the discoverers and colonizers of Canada, that the French Canadians themselves, with their fine qualities and virtues, are a most valuable asset to the Dominion, that they have given to Canada some of its greatest men, that they form a bulwark of our national life, and that anything that would injure them would damage the whole fabric of confederation.

JOHN BOYD.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An entirely wrong conception of actual conditions existing in Canada, in particular the Province of Quebec, has been given to the American people by articles appearing from time to time.

The native-born Canadians, English, and French, have always opposed any idea of conscription; first, because it is not a British institution and has never found favor in the constructive ideals of British democracy; second, England herself did not enact conscription at first, but had recourse to the voluntary system. Had England established conscription in the beginning, I have no hesitation in saying that Canada would have done likewise. Under the voluntary system England raised the magnificent "Kitchener Mob," and Canada raised, equipped, trained, and transported a brave little army of 33,000 men to England in eight weeks time! Since the war started Canada has recruited under the voluntary system 383,000 men, and her net wastage at the front is about 1,000 men a week at the present time. Evidently the voluntary system cannot keep up with this wastage and build the expeditionary force to its promised quota of 500,000 men.

The statement that Quebec bears the same relation to the rest of Canada that Ulster does to the rest of Ireland gives a wrong conception. There is no analogy, no likeness in cause or effect. In Ireland we have a great, spirited nation held down by laws restricting its trade, commerce, and industries, and hindering its progress in every way. In Canada no such condition exists—all are free and equal, our trade and commerce is of our own making or undoing. We control our own tariff. Your American readers who follow such things will remember how Canada had the backbone to put a surtax on German-made goods some years before the war. England did her best to have us remove this tax, but we did not until Germany satisfied our demands.

Quebec is not mediaeval, but is intensely modern, educated, and enlightened in every way. As a province and a people, it is deeply religious, and the French Canadian looks to the belfry of his church as the heart centre of his soul. And municipalities vie with each other in building the largest church and the highest belfry. It is not the priests who do it—it is the people.

JAMES ALBERT WHITAKER.

Montreal, June 10, 1917.

[A number of controversial letters about the Canadian conscription question have been received. It has been impossible, of course, to print them in full. The above extracts and several letters in last Sunday's TIMES summarize statements made on the French Canadian side of the controversy.]

SONNY.

Say, just put me down for another,
Though I've subscribed before!
And I'll be clean-out grateful,
If they jack up my tax some more!

As for paying higher prices
For things to eat and wear,
Or giving to units and hut funds—
S-sh! nothing can make me care!

'Cause Ma today got a letter
From Sonny, (the lad's in camp!)
And in it came a picture—
Good looking? Oh, the young scamp!

Why, there he stands in his khaki,
And his regerler army hat,
And him smiling, the cub, at that!

You see, he slipped out and 'listed
With some chums from his college frat—
Spoiled fox-trotters, mommers' darlings,
Auto speeders, useless, flat!

Ma, she named the heir "Llewellyn,"
And she raised him a Fauntleroy,
But, praise God, he's cut loose from the boob set,
And shows up an American boy!

Danger? Well, just let him face it—
If his granddads did, he can!
Uncle Sam may claim all I own, Sir,
For he's made our boy a man!

ITALIAN MISSION IN SOUTH.

Greeted with Enthusiasm at New Orleans—Plans for Welcome Here.

NEW ORLEANS, June 14.—The Italian mission arrived here today on their tour of the South. The visitors were greeted by the Citizens' General Committee, headed by Mayor Behrman. The railway station was jammed with people, and as the visitors walked to their automobiles the station resounded with cheers.

There was a profuse display of Italian and American flags along the route of parade, and bands played Italian and American airs, and shouts of "Viva Italia!" "Viva America!" mingled in an almost continuous uproar. The party was escorted by Louisiana guardsmen.

At the City Hall representatives of the Governor of Louisiana and other State officials welcomed the visitors. Each member of the mission made a brief address. A telegram also was read from Prince Udine, head of the mission, who is ill in Washington, expressing his regret at being unable to be with the party and sending his greetings to his fellow countrymen and the citizens of New Orleans.

When the Italian Mission comes to New York City next week, it will visit the Garibaldi Memorial on Staten Island. The invitation to visit the memorial was extended by the Order of Sons of Italy through Mayor Mitchel and it has been accepted. The trip will be made to Staten Island by steamer on Friday, June 22, the second day of the mission's stay in New York.

Mayor Mitchel has issued an invitation to all Italian societies and organizations and to Italian-American citizens and residents generally to attend the function. A special schedule of ferryboats will be put in effect, beginning at 1 o'clock. George W. Burleigh is Chairman of the committee which will work out the details of the visit.

All arrangements have been completed for the reception of the mission by the Italian marching societies of the city to be held in the Stadium of the College of the City of New York on Saturday, June 23. George McAneny is Chairman of the sub-committee on the Stadium reception. All Italian marching societies have been invited to be present with their flags, but not in uniform.

Arrangements are being made to invite to New York City the special commission sent to the United States by the Provisional Government of Russia, and which is headed by Professor Bakhmetieff. A committee to extend an invitation to the visiting Russians has been formed by representatives of the different Russian organizations here. The committee is giving its attention to the kind of Russian flag to be used at the reception. It was said yesterday that the committee has official information that the old Russian flag used before the war has been temporarily retained by the Provisional Government.

CAR FARES NOT AFFECTED.

Hughes Opinion Refers Only to Gas and Electric Companies.

William L. Ransom, Chief Counsel of the Public Service Commission, said yesterday that the opinion prepared by Charles E. Hughes as referee in the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company rate case, that the commission had no right to increase the statutory rates to be charged by corporations, would greatly aid the commission in interpreting the statutes. He said that the opinion did not refer to surface railroad fares, but only to gas and electric concerns. It was understood that the opinion referred to all corporations over which the commission has jurisdiction, and this understanding continued yesterday.

The railroad companies which are seeking authority to charge 2 cents for transfers have been asked by Mr. Ransom to file briefs on the authority of the commission to authorize an increase of fare, but not one of them has yet submitted anything on the subject. Section 181 of the railroad law provides that "no corporation constructing and operating a railroad shall charge any passenger more than 5 cents for one continuous ride from any point on its road" or on any branch within the limits of any incorporated city or village.

The Second Avenue Railroad Company and the New York & North Shore Traction Company have not asked for permission to charge for transfers, but only to charge a higher rate of fare. When the Queens County Railway Company made its application it contained no specific request. It was said that these instances indicate that the companies are in serious doubt as to the jurisdiction of the commission in granting permission to charge a higher rate either through transfers or by direct increase to 7 cents for each fare.

REAFFIRMS NEUTRALITY.

But Sweden's Foreign Minister Foresees New Privations.

STOCKHOLM, June 14, (via London.)—Foreign Minister Lindman made a statement to Parliament today in which he declared that the Swedish Government intended to continue to observe unequivocal loyal neutrality.

"The war will not end soon," said the Foreign Minister, "and we must be prepared for greater sufferings than we have previously borne, all the more as the Swedish harvest this year will unquestionably be a poor one."

Minister Lindman expressed confidence that the people would not fail to accept the sacrifices and privations necessary.

"It is to our policy of neutrality," he added, "that we owe, among other advantages, the possibility of procuring from the different groups of powers at least the essential commodities of which we have need."

The Minister thought it was not impossible that Sweden would find herself exposed to new restrictions and new difficulties, but said that she was firmly resolved that her population should escape the sufferings which would result from participation in the war.

ADMITS STATE LIQUOR MOVE.

Bonar Law Says Britain Is Considering Purchase of Trade.

LONDON, June 14.—Recent reports that the Government was considering the desirability of purchasing the liquor trade were confirmed in the House of Commons today by Chancellor Bonar Law. He gave assurance that the House would be consulted before the completion of such action. Commissioners have been appointed by the Cabinet to consider the question.

The Chancellor also announced that it had been found impracticable to confer with the allied powers to arrange for the international prohibition of gambling in futures and options.

DEFENDS MAIL DELIVERIES.

Postmaster Patten Denies Board of Trade's Charges.

Postmaster Thomas G. Patten denied yesterday that there was any ground for the charges of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation that mail deliveries were too infrequent in this city; that special delivery letters were badly handled, and that the service was in other respects inadequate. He said:

"These charges evidently have been made without the slightest inquiry. I would be pleased to show how entirely false they are."

TRIBUTES TO ALLIES ON OUR FLAG DAY

PATRIOTS DEFY THE RAIN

All Scheduled Events Take Place Although Some Are Held Indoors—Children in Pageant.

More flags than ever waved in the city before at one time fluttered and flapped yesterday. It was Flag Day, and to the thousands of flags that had been flying ever since the entry of the United States into the war were added numerous others because of the occasion. And the display of the flags of England, France, Italy and the other allies, as well as the many patriotic addresses delivered upon the subject of the war, made the day really an international Flag Day, the first to be celebrated in this country.

The downpour of rain in the afternoon did its Prussian best to mar the celebration of the day, but, like the arrival of the Germans in Paris, it did not come when predicted, and by the time it did arrive, as the Germans didn't, many of the open-air parades, rallies and flag raisings planned had taken place. The ceremonies arranged for the afternoon were held indoors instead of out, enthusiasm losing nothing by the transfers.

On the whole, it was a patriotic, enthusiastic Flag Day. School children all over the city, in their school buildings, in parks and playgrounds, took part in the exercises. The greatest single gathering was in the Bushwick section of Brooklyn, where 30,000 children from twenty schools, under the leadership of Miss Grace Strachan, the District Superintendent, marched through Bushwick Avenue and adjacent streets. The children were dressed as Paul Reveres, Liberty Boys and Girls Red Cross nurses, farmers, and cooks, and presented a brilliant pageant as they wound along.

Patriotic Organizations Active.

Other children attended exercises in Mount Morris Park, at which also were members of the G. A. R., the Women's Relief Corps, and various organizations. Mrs. Laura B. Prisk, who arranged the exercises, delivered an address on loyalty. The West 130th Street Neighborhood Association held a celebration in West 130th Street, between Fifth and Lenox Avenues, where Borough President Marcus M. Marks and Public Service Commissioner Henry W. Hodge reviewed Boy Scouts and pupils from various schools. There were similar exercises in Thomas Jefferson and West 145th Street Parks.

The Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York had planned ambitiously, intending to march up Broad Street in the afternoon from Fraunces's Tavern, at Broad and Pearl Streets, their headquarters, to the Sub-Treasury, where there were to be speeches and music. But at 3 o'clock, when the march was to begin, Broad Street was a river that was rising every minute, so the ceremonies were held in the Tavern. Colonel Robert Olyphant, President of the Sons of the Revolution in the State of New York, presided. The Right Rev. David H. Greer, Chaplain of the society, spoke the invocation, and Frederic R. Coudert delivered the address of the day.

Mr. Coudert first told of his recent trip through the Middle West as a speaker for the National Security League, and said that he had found a splendid spirit everywhere. The only question the people asked, he said, was, "What's the right thing to do?" When the international situation was explained to them, he continued, they were clamorous for America's defense of the right.

Verdun, Greatest of Conflicts.

The speaker told how "the men-machines who dominate Wilhelmstrasse" had misread American history and misjudged Americans, thinking them only "sordid lovers of money," and incapable of going to war for a principle.

Reviewing, somewhat, European history, Mr. Coudert said:

"For the third time in history it fell to the lot of France to stem the barbarian tide. Once before upon the Marne, Aetius, with a Gallic army, stopped the Hun under Attila. Three hundred years later Charles Martel at Tours saved Europe from becoming Saracen, just as in September, 1914, more than eleven centuries later, General Joffre, with the citizen soldiery of France upon that same Marne, saved Europe from the heel of the Prussianized Teuton, the reign of brute force and the religion of the Moloch State. These were among the world's 'check battles.' Yet the flood of barbarism was only checked at the Marne, not broken, and again the flood rose and pressed on to be stopped again at Verdun—the gateway of France—the greatest of human conflicts yet seen.

"In France the traveler passing along the roads to the northeast leading to Lorraine may see at every crossroad a great index finger pointing to the single word Verdun. To many thousands, nay, hundreds of thousands of men passing over these roads in the five fateful months of critical battle, these six letters spelled mutilation or death, yet the word was an inspiration to heroism in every home of France, and from every corner of the land men followed that great index finger pointing, as it did indeed to the modern Calvary.

"To France," the Watchword.

"Today at every crossroad must we here in America set up a great index hand with the words "to France!" To France, land of suffering humanity, in whose devastated fields again must be saved the principles for which Americans fought at Bunker Hill, at Saratoga, at Yorktown, at Gettysburg, and in the Wilderness; to France, where the fate of the world is still pending; to France, which has again checked the Huns of the modern world as it did those of the ancient; to France, the manhood of this nation must be now directed to save the heritage of the American Revolution and the civil war.

"To France the honor of checking, to Britain the burden of containing by land and sea, to America the task of finally overthrowing the common enemy of democratic institutions and ordered liberty, the foe whose morality knows no ruth, whose philosophy admits no check upon the 'will to power.'"

The Colonial Dames of the State of New York held a Flag Day celebration in Van Cortlandt Park at which they presented to the city the gateway and steps leading to the park garden. It was planned to have the exercises out-of-doors, but the rain was as bad in the Bronx as downtown, so the people gathered in the Museum. Thomas W. Whittle, Park Commissioner of the Bronx, received for the city the gateway and steps.

In hundreds of places throughout the city there were gatherings yesterday afternoon and last night. Every Elks lodge in the city and on Long Island had patriotic rallies, as did many other clubs and lodges. Neighborhood and settlement societies were also conspicuous in the evening's activities.

Says Germany Seeks Despotism.

"It is better for the United States to fight Germany now alongside of the Entente Allies than to fight her single-handed later on when she may have conquered England and France." This was the warning given to 250 members of the Rotary Club by Mgr. John P. Chidwick, formerly Chaplain of the U. S. S. Maine and now President of Dunwoodie Seminary, at the monthly luncheon of the club, held yesterday at the McAlpin Hotel.

Mgr. Chidwick asserted that Germany sought a military despotism never dreamed of before, and predicted that if she obtained control of Europe she would look across the Atlantic to the United States as her only rival.

Recalling that the club was celebrating Flag Day, Mgr. Chidwick said that the newest nation possessed the oldest flag—the "Stars and Stripes." "This flag," he added, "is now the arbiter of civilization and the custodian of the future hopes of all humanity."

Among the Flag Day observances was the presentation of a silk American flag 16 feet by 12 feet to William G. Besler, President of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, at the Jersey City terminal of the road last night. Every one of the 13,450 employes of the company contributed, and the subscription was limited to one cent from each.

LAST DAY FOR INCOME TAXES

Penalties Will Be Exacted from Those Failing to Settle.

Collectors of Internal Revenue in this city completed arrangements yesterday for handling the rush to pay individual and corporation income taxes due today, the last on which payments may be made without penalties, except in cases exempted by law. Collector William H. Edwards of the Second, or downtown, District said a misapprehension had been caused through the publication of a statement given out at his office on Wednesday to the effect that ten days' grace would be given to taxpayers.

As a matter of fact, the statement was intended to apply to the 5,000 income taxpayers who had complained that they had not received their assessment notices. An investigation disclosed that many had sent their returns to wrong districts, while the returns of others contained slight discrepancies that caused delay. It was emphasized yesterday in all districts that under the terms of the income tax law all taxpayers who have received their bills must pay before the close of business today. As to these no extensions whatever will be allowed.

Late yesterday afternoon telegrams were received at the local Internal Revenue offices in Greater New York from William H. Osborn, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with headquarters in Washington, forbidding Collectors here to make public the amount of income taxes collected in their respective districts today, covering the Government's fiscal year ending on June 30.

Residents of Brooklyn and Queens, including Staten Island and parts of Long Island, pay their income taxes at the office of the First District, located in the Federal Building, Brooklyn, of which Henry P. Keith is collector, while the returns of Manhattan taxpayers are receivable at the office of the Second District in the Custom House, or at 1,150 Broadway, the headquarters of the Third District, of which Mark Eisner is collector.

HOTEL ASTOR LOSES.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 14.—Mrs. Sadie Disbrow Hurd, wife of Robert C. Hurd, a real estate dealer at Pawling, received a verdict of $2,500 in the Supreme Court here tonight in her suit for $20,000 damages against the Astor Hotel Company of New York. The action was tried before Justice Platt and a jury, and was brought as the result of treatment Mrs. Hurd received from the hotel management after embracing her husband at the door of her room on the evening of Aug. 17 last.

Mrs. Hurd was stopping at the hotel with a woman friend. Her husband had arrived unknown to her, and, coming upon him unexpectedly as she opened the door of her room, she threw her arms about his neck and kissed him. He stepped inside the room for a minute, and then they came out and walked down the corridor, where they were approached by David Mitchell Pepper, assistant manager of the hotel.

Mrs. Hurd and her husband both testified Pepper said to Hurd: "It was reported to me this woman took you into her room, also that she has followed you down the corridor." When Hurd expostulated, according to the wife's testimony, Pepper said: "Well, if you are Mrs. Hurd and he is Mr. Hurd, that puts a different face on the matter."

Pepper and the other witnesses for the hotel maintained that their investigation was conducted in a courteous manner, and denied that any reflection was cast upon either Mr. or Mrs. Hurd.

Announcement was also made that more corporations had declared Red Cross dividends and that Colonel William B. Thompson, the copper financier, had made a cash contribution of $250,000.

Will Raise Total to $12,698,705.

In addition it was reported yesterday that three well-known financiers already had decided to make individual contributions of $1,000,000 each, thereby raising the total of dividends and contributions, announced and actually in sight, to $12,698,705—and the actual Red Cross War Fund campaign will not start until next Monday.

The Central Trust Company of New York, it was announced yesterday, had been appointed Assistant Treasurer of the $100,000,000 Red Cross War Fund, of which William G. McAdoo, the Secretary of the Treasury, is the Treasurer. The trust company has agreed to handle the funds without charge.

The announcement, telling of the action of the twenty-six firms that have agreed to contribute half of their next week's commissions and of the nationwide campaign to be conducted by brokers and Stock Exchange firms, and asking for support of the movement, was made by the Association of Stock Exchange Firms to its members yesterday, signed by John W. Prentiss, President.

After quoting resolutions passed by the Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange on Wednesday, calling for donations, the announcement concludes:

"As President of the Association of Partners of Stock Exchange Firms I wish that you would lay this plan before your local exchange or association of brokers, and I sincerely hope that you personally will actively co-operate by getting the brokers in your city to do the same thing which the brokers in New York are doing."

The special Red Cross dividend of the Kennecott Copper Corporation was on a basis of 20 cents a share, payable July 25 to holders of record July 14. The others were based on 1 per cent. of the common stock. In declaring the dividend the Kennecott company prepared forms to be sent to stockholders to be filled out by them, if they so desire, authorizing the company to pay their dividends to the Red Cross.

Davison Issues Statement.

Although it is not believed that the stockholder in any corporation will consider that he is under any compulsion to assign his special dividend, Henry R. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co., General Chairman of the War Council, made the following announcement to stockholders yesterday:

"The Red Cross War Council appointed by President Wilson is informed that a number of corporations are now favorably considering the advisability of declaring an extra dividend, to be called a Red Cross dividend, and that if such dividend is declared, shareholders are to be requested to consent that the corporation turn over their respective shares in the said dividend to the Red Cross War Fund.

"I am directed to say to you that such proposed action is considered by the War Council as of the utmost importance, and to express the gratification of the council that it is being considered.

"While nothing is more important to the work of the Red Cross than the financial support which might come to it through such means, nothing could be more unfortunate than that the Red Cross should receive from any direction moneys that are grudgingly given, or worse still, given under any suggestion of coercion. We feel that we should emphasize this, as we fear that very ill effects might attend even a successful financial campaign were it not made clear that all stockholders who are to receive a special dividend should thoroughly understand this proposition of the Red Cross with regard to contributions of this nature.

"It is the desire of the Red Cross that corporations assenting to the plan should inclose to their stockholders a copy of this letter."

The contribution made yesterday by Colonel Thompson is the largest, next to that of Mr. Dodge, thus far announced. He is Captain of one of the thirty Red Cross teams which will begin the campaign next week, and he accompanied his gift with the following statement:

"Never in history has there been a job so big as that which now faces the Red Cross. I feel a great obligation to give and believe it is the duty of everyone to give all he can and do all he can for the Red Cross. Mr. Davison is doing the greatest work in the world. He needs the support of every one. No job before the American people comes up to this."

"If a million American soldiers go to spend their life's blood at the front, we who are left behind must spend our money in order that the best of care may be taken of them. The American Red Cross is the organization which is charged with the task of caring for these men."

Colonel Thompson emphasizes the necessity of co-operating with Russia. He has made several notable contributions to war charity. When Mr. Hoover came here to make an appeal for Belgium he personally contributed $100,000 and was instrumental in raising several hundred thousand dollars for the relief of Belgium. He organized the Hoover fund of the Rocky Mountain Club for Belgian relief.

A committee of prominent women formed by Henry P. Davison and Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., is arranging a dinner for the benefit of the American Red Cross which will be held on Thursday evening, June 21 in the Japanese Garden of the Ritz-Carlton. Invitations to speak have been extended to Lord Northcliffe, Colonel Roosevelt, Governor Whitman, Mayor Mitchel, Major Gen. Bell, and Andre Tardieu. The tickets are $5 each, and may be obtained from the Chairman, Mrs. Philip Lydig at her home, 14 Washington Square North or at the Ritz-Carlton.

PUBLISHER HOLTZ FOUND.

Max Holtz, the publisher of this city who has been missing since June 8 from his apartment at the Hotel Biltmore, is in St. Joseph's Hospital in Yonkers suffering from amnesia, which, according to Dr. Michael Colucci, was induced by a nervous breakdown. Hatless and coatless, Mr. Holtz was found beside Tuckahoe Road near Central Avenue yesterday afternoon by a policeman. He was unable to answer questions. At the police station a card revealed his identity.

Louis S. Posner of 15 Broad Street, attorney for Mr. Holtz and his family, said last night that Mr. Holtz would probably remain at St. Joseph's Hospital for two or three days and then return to his home in the Biltmore.

SAYS GERMANS ARE UNITED.

Must Fight People as Well as Government, Says Yale Professor.

If we want this war brought to an end we must fight the German people as well as the German Government, Professor Alexander Petrunkevitch of Yale University told the members of the Women's City Club at a meeting in the Park Avenue Hotel last evening. The Russian people must also be made to understand that the war is being fought by the German people, and not by the Government alone, he said, and they will come out firmly on the right side.

Other speakers were Pierre de Lanux, speaking of "Democracy in France;" Herbert B. Swope, telling of conditions in Germany, and Mrs. Beatrice Robertson Hale, speaking for England and America.

"The Russian working man and the Russian soldier are now at the top in Russia," said Professor Petrunkevitch. "They believe that the war was started by Emperors and capitalists, and argue that no workingman or soldier could have started it. They must be made to understand that the German Government and the German people are one. It was the German people who went into Belgium, and, against all law and honor, committed all manner of atrocities. If we could persuade the Russian people that there is the same danger for them they would become the finest kind of citizens."

Mr. Swope said that from his knowledge of conditions in Germany he did not think it was possible to end the war in less than two years, and it might continue for twenty. "Starvation is non-existant in Germany," he said. "The people do not have all they wish to eat, but they have all they need."

BISHOP McFAUL SINKING

TRENTON, N. J., June 14.—The Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, Bishop of the Diocese of Trenton, is critically ill at the episcopal residence on North Warren Street. He was reported to be sinking rapidly. Bishop McFaul has been in ill health for a year past, but it was not until recently that he became seriously ill.

The Bishop's only public appearance in a long time was at the patriotic demonstration several months ago on the occasion of the visit of former Ambassador Gerard to this city.

The fortieth anniversary of the Bishop's ordination to the priesthood occurred about two weeks ago, but his health would not permit his participation in the exercises.

Notable achievements in Bishop McFaul's career have been the reunion of the two opposing factions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the formation of the American Federation of Catholic Societies, which extends throughout the United States.

PUBLISHERS TAKE UP NEW PAPER PLAN

UNITED ACTION SOUGHT

Association's Committee, According to Indications Here, Is Likely to Report Favorably.

A special meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association will be held in Washington probably within ten days to consider the recommendations of the Federal Trade Commission calling for Federal control of the manufacture and distribution of newsprint paper, as well as to consider the problems affecting second-class mail matter. Hopewell Rogers of Chicago, President of the association, is expected to send out a call for the meeting within the next two days. The purpose of the meeting will be to have all the publishers of the country present a united front on war problems.

Emil M. Scholz, publisher of The New York Evening Post, a member of the Publishers' Association Committee on Paper, said yesterday that a majority of the newspapers of the country would support the plan of the Federal Trade Commission for the Federal manufacture and distribution of newsprint paper during the war. Mr. Scholz was in communication yesterday with F. P. Glass of Birmingham, Chairman of the Paper Committee, and an early meeting of the members will be arranged in time to prepare a report for the emergency convention. It was said yesterday that there was every indication that the report would be favorable to the Trade Commission program, which provided, in effect, that all the mills should be pooled, operated on Government account, and a fair price fixed for the product, which would be distributed by the Government.

Mr. Scholz also explained the other matters that would be considered at the meeting of the publishers. He referred to the opposition to the proposed plan for the increase of postal rates on second-class matter and said that the great number of suggestions reaching the Government from individual publishers made it wise that the publishers should unite on some recommendation to the Government. Regarding the proposal to tax newspaper and periodical advertisement receipts, Mr. Scholz said that, while a great number of publishers were against this move by the Government, some had indicated that they favored it as preferable to war taxes in the form of additional postal rates.

L. B. Palmer, New York manager for the Publishers' Association, and an ex-officio member of the Paper Committee, said yesterday that he would not express an opinion on the Trade Commission recommendation until after the committee or the association had acted.

Philip T. Dodge, President of the International Paper Company, said that he did not wish to comment at length upon the plan of the Federal Trade Commission until he had read it in full, but he indicated that he didn't think much of it as outlined in the commission's letter to Congress asking for powers to put its recommendations into effect. He didn't see how the plan fitted in as a war measure.

"The adoption of such a plan," he said, "would mean simply that no more capital would be put into the business. If the Government wants to ruin the newsprint manufacturing business, it is on a fair way to do it. That's all I have to say about the Federal Trade Commission's proposals now."

The will of Philip J. Dwyer, turfman, was filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday afternoon soon after Philip J. Britt, the decedent's attorney and one of the executors named in the will, had taken it from a safe deposit box in the People's Trust Company under an order of Surrogate Fowler, authorizing him to open the box. The will makes no public bequests, but gives the estate, estimated at $1,000,000, to relatives and friends.

The chief legatees are the children of Mr. Dwyer's deceased brother and business partner, Michael Dwyer. They are Camille Dwyer and Mrs. Lulu Dwyer Norton, and Charles F. Dwyer, who receive a trust fund of $150,000 and also divide the residuary estate. Mrs. Miriam McGarry Collins, also a niece, gets the income of a trust fund of $100,000 until she is thirty, when she receives the principal. Two cousins, Thomas Donohue and Bernard Donohue, receive $10,000 and $5,000, respectively.

Mr. Dwyer, who made his will in 1908, gave legacies of $2,000 each in memory of his wife to her friends, as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Homan, Mrs. Charles Gage, and Misses Louise Downs and Emma Baldwin. Patrick Gallagher, described in the will as "Brock the coachman," who drove Mr. Dwyer about the city in his cab for many years, got $1,000.

RUTH LAW NEAR DEATH.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, June 14.—Ruth Law had a narrow escape from death early this evening when her gasoline tank exploded and enveloped her airplane in flames, 2,000 feet in the air above Lexington, Ill., while en route from St. Louis to Chicago. She saved her life only by consummate coolness and quickness of wit.

Without a moment's hesitation she pointed the nose of her machine straight down and descended with such velocity that the wind blew out the blaze. When a few hundred feet from the ground she straightened the machine out and made a safe landing on the outskirts of Lexington. She was uninjured, save for burns about her face.

She decided to spend the night at Lexington and to continue her voyage to Chicago in the morning, if repairs to her biplane were completed in time.

The accident was witnessed by large crowds assembled at Lexington. Scores of automobiles raced to the spot where she landed with offers of assistance.

Earlier in the afternoon Miss Law had performed an audacious feat by flying at a very low altitude over the skyscrapers of downtown St. Louis.

MUSICIANS GATHER AT CARRENO'S BIER

The funeral of Teresa Carreno, the famous pianist, who in private life was Mrs. Arturo Tagliapietra, was held yesterday from her late home in the Della Robbia Apartments, at West End Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street. Her husband, who had been with her in this country, was present, and the honorary pallbearers were Ignace Jan Paderewski, Ernest Hutcheson, Walter Damrosch, Walter Rothwell, Josef Stransky, Mischa Elman, Franz Kneisel, Albert Spalding, and Charles Steinway.

Among others at the funeral were Emma Thursby, who made her opera debut with Carreno, as well as Mrs. Edward MacDowell, whose late husband was Mme. Carreno's greatest pupil. Emilie F. Bauer and Mrs. Delphine Marsh gave the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and the aria, "O Rest in the Lord," and Dr. Louis K. Anspacher of Columbia read a service for the dead.

Dr. Anspacher remarked on the great span of years of Mme. Carreno's public career. Though 63 at her death, she had been half a century on the concert platform, and she played in the White House to Abraham Lincoln, and again last year to President Wilson. Ernest Urchs cabled to the composer, Sinding, in Norway, in an effort to notify Mme. Carreno's son and four daughters of her death.

Mme. Carreno's daughters are all married and living in Europe, the last of them Hertha d'Albert, having written her mother of her wedding last April, after Mme. Carreno was stricken with paralysis. Giovanni Tagliapietra, the pianist's son, is an opera singer, and was arrested as a foreigner in Berlin at the outbreak of the war, but later released. The eldest daughter, Teresita Carreno, is now giving concerts in London.

Following the funeral yesterday the body was taken to Union Hill, N. J., for cremation, and will be held until after the war for burial in Berlin. Mme. Carreno, though long resident abroad, counted herself an American.

PLEA FOR JEWISH CHARITY.

Brooklyn Federation Reported in Need of Funds.

Edward Lazansky, ex-Secretary of State and present head of the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities, said last night at a meeting of the Directors of the federation at the Unity Club, in Brooklyn, that Jewish charities in that borough were in great need of money and that the curtailment of some of their activities would be necessary, unless larger subscriptions were immediately made.

Mr. Lazansky said that $20,000 was still needed in order to make up the deficit which the Brooklyn Federation faced at the end of last year. This deficit totaled $50,000, of which $30,000 has since been raised.

A. K. MACOMBER'S CHESTNUT COLT TRACKSEND WINS KEENE MEMORIAL

TRACKSEND SHOWS WAY TO THE WIRE

LUCULLITE LENGTHS BEHIND

When Tracksend splashed his way to victory yesterday in the Keene Memorial Stakes at Belmont Park the racegoers were ready to welcome a new two-year-old champion in the son of Uncle-Planutes which carried the colors of A. K. Macomber in such impressive manner. For the time being August Belmont's Lucullite, which had flashed into ascendency by winning the Colorado Stakes at Jamaica and the Juvenile at Belmont, was partially eclipsed, but not entirely dimmed.

Lucullite was conceding twelve pounds to Tracksend, and though the latter won with four lengths to spare from the star of the Belmont Stable it is possible that the unusual conditions may have affected Lucillite adversely. Until beaten at even weights Lucullite is still entitled to retain his laurels and it may be late in the season before the two-year-old crown is awarded to any one of the brilliant youngsters now racing.

With the exception of Harry Payne Whitney all the prominent owners of two-year-olds in the East were represented in the Keene Memorial, August Belmont and A. K. Macomber each sending two to the post. Nearly all the contenders had obtained winning brackets and a great race was looked forward to until the unwelcome thunderstorm flooded the track and the heavy clouds shrouded the park with gloom, through which it was difficult to observe the racers in their speedy flight through the five and a half furlong stretch.

That the distance was covered in fast time was entirely probable by the way in which Lucullite was left behind by the whirlwind from the Macomber stable. There is no official record of the performance of Tracksend from a time standpoint, however, because it was so dark that Timer Allen was unable to see the flag drop at the start and no figures were credited to the winner.

Lucullite Is Favorite.

Following the victory of Boots in the Suburban Handicap last Saturday, the success of Tracksend is proof that the Macomber stable, the largest in point of class and numbers in the country, has at last struck its stride and will be hard to beat in the big turf events of the future. The sympathies of the public naturally were with Lucullite, which had proved his quality in two stake events and which was conceding from twelve to fifteen pounds to all the other starters. But, if the favorite had to suffer defeat, there was no horse which the crowd would rather see win than one of those owned by the Californian, who has continued racing on a large scale in spite of disappointments that would have crushed a less sturdy sportsman.

The track had been fast for the early races, but the clouds broke before the horses went to the post for the third race, and when the eight smart young thoroughbreds responded to the bugle call for the Keene Memorial the storm was nearing its height. It was so dark that the lightning flashes were welcome to read the names of the riders on the jockey board. The roar of thunder drowned the comments of the crowd as Lucullite stepped proudly in the van of the parade.

Drastic, added at the last minute as a stable companion to Lucullite, had a place in the rear. The Macomber pair followed Bughouse, the queerly named candidate of Gifford A. Cochran. It was noticed that War Machine wore the regular Macomber colors and that Tracksend was distinguished by a red cap instead of the usual white one. This was taken as an indication that War Machine was considered the better of the pair, both of which, by the way, are sons of Uncle. The Wickliffe Stable's Royal Ensign, an imported colt named Jusqu' au Bout, owned by J. E. Widener, and L. S. Thompson's Debadou were the other starters. The last named was an added starter, so that, with only one withdrawal from the overnight list, there were eight to go to the post.

Only the Macomber pair and Royal Ensign were supported with any idea of defeating the Belmont crack. Even the adherents of these could not shake the confidence in the son of Trap Rock, and because of the performance of Lucullite the Belmont entry was a 15 to 20 favorite at the start.

Darkness Shrouds Track.

The clouds hung so low over the track that long before they reached the starting point the horses appeared like ghosts of animals in the distance. As they lined up awaiting the word, they made just one more blur on the horizon, and then in a few moments the misty mass was seen to spring into action. Reports received later stated that Lucullite broke in front, but in a few strides was collared by Tracksend, with War Machine in close attendance.

Meantime the outlines of the horses grew clearer to the thousands in the stand, and as they suddenly rushed into full view when approaching the eighth pole, it appeared that Lucullite was holding his own. Only for a moment were the supporters of the favorite flattered with the prospect of victory. The mud could not dim the red and white stripes of Mr. Macomber, and these showed up more and more distinctly as the chestnut son of Uncle left Lucullite behind at every stride.

Just past the eighth pole Tracksend had a clean lead of a length over Lucullite, which was well clear of the rest of the field. Butwell drew his whip and urged the Belmont champion to the utmost, but there was no chance to overtake the flying leader, which seemed to skim along on the surface of the mud. Loftus took no chances, but never had to resort to the whip as Tracksend swept along swiftly to the goal. Lucullite, though all out at the finish, was five lengths in front of Bughouse, which squeezed in third by half a length from Drastic. War Machine was next, and the others finished in close order.

That the Macomber two-year-olds were in form was shown in the first race when Motor Cop, another son of Uncle, upset an odds on favorite in M. L. Schwartz's Enfilade. Motor Cop galloped home eight lengths in front of T. P. Thorne's Sycamoor, with Harry Payne Whitney's Happy Go Lucky third.

The storm caused many scratches and spoiled the interest in the other races. It was also a bad day for the favorites, J. J. Lillis being the only first choice to win.

GROOM RESTRAINS RED SOX.

Allows Only Three Hits to Champions and Browns Win 3 to 0.

BOSTON, June 14.—St. Louis shut out Boston, 3 to 0, today. Groom allowed Boston only three hits, and only one man was able to reach second. On the other hand, St. Louis hit Leonard's offerings at will, getting ten hits for three runs.

The first score was made in the second inning on Severeid's single, Marsans's sacrifice, and Pratt's single. In the sixth Severeid tripled, and, after two were out, Johnson was passed and stole second. Groom's two-bagger to centre field scored Severeid and Johnson. Not one of the St. Louis outfielders had a put out.

PERRITT PRESENTS ZEROS TO PIRATES

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 14.—Pol Perritt was in excellent form today, and, backed up by great fielding on the part of Art Fletcher, not to omit a magnificent catch by Bennie Kauff, whitewashed the Pirates by a score of 2 to 0. In only one inning was the home team dangerous, the fourth, when the bases were filled with two out. However, Fletcher ran in and scooped up a slow roller from Ward's bat, and his throw beat the runner to first. The victory put the Giants at the top of the ladder again.

In the first three innings only nine men faced Elmer Jacobs, his wide curve being too good for the Giants to do any business with. But in the fourth George Burns decided to take the full count, and received four wide balls, which put him on first base. After repeated efforts by Jacobs to catch him napping, he was sent to second by Umpire Rigler on a balk, and scored easily when Zimmerman sent a screaming single past Pitler.

Heinie tried to go to second on the throw home, but Jacobs intercepted the throw and the runner was trapped between the bases. However, he eluded the whole Pirate infield, and finally got to third on Pitler's wild throw to Ward. He was left there, however, as the next man could not deliver and there were two out at the time.

Perritt opened the sixth with a strikeout, and Ward threw out Burns at first, but Buck Herzog picked out a straight one and sent it to right centre. Carey made a hard try to get the ball, which tipped his fingers and rolled on to the fence. Before Schulte could recover the sphere and get it to the infield Herzog was over the plate and was credited with a homer.

This was all the Giants could do in the scoring line, but it was enough, as the defensive work of the men behind Perritt was sufficient to hold the Buccaneers down. In the fourth inning, with two men gone, Brief singled to right and stole second. Hinchman waited for a base on balls, and was rewarded, and so was W. Wagner. Ward hit a slow roller toward second base, and Fletcher came tearing in and scooped the ball on the run, just beating Ward to the bag with his throw. This undoubtedly saved one run, and perhaps more.

In the sixth inning, with two men gone, Brief singled to centre, and when Kauff messed up the hit the Pirate batsman ran to second. Hinchman gave Kauff a chance to retrieve himself for his error, which he did nobly, racing in and grabbing the ball out of the grass when it was ticketed for three bases. In each of the last three innings the Pirates got a man on, two by safe hits and one on a base on balls, but Perritt always tightened up when in danger and got the side out without any damage having resulted.

Robertson picked out a slow ball in the fifth inning and smashed it to centre for a safety, but a remarkably fast double play by Ward and Brief cleaned off the base paths. Again in the ninth the McGrawless McGrawites tried to tally when Heinie Zimmerman, who has recovered his batting eye here, poled out a triple to the right-field fence, but there were two out at the time and the next man could not punch out the necessary hit. Manager John McGraw said today that he would pay the $500 fine imposed upon him under protest, and would ask for a thorough investigation of the trouble with Umpire Byron when he gets back to New York.

ROBINS LOSE TO CARDINALS.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, June 14.—A lucky stab by Hornsby, after a great stop of Cutshaw's hot drive over second, deflecting the ball to Miller on the bag, and forcing Wheat, broke up a Brooklyn rally this afternoon. St. Louis eventually won a game featured by three home runs and a triple steal. The score was 5 to 4.

Pfeffer's own failure to cover the plate after a triple steal and a wild pitch in the fifth inning, on which Miller and Cruise scored, cost him the ball game.

Brooklyn looked like a winner when Pfeffer broke into the big league hitting column for the first time this year with a single in the third, and Hickman drove the ball over Jack Smith's head to the centre field fence for a home run.

The way the Cardinals failed to score runs with men on made this two-run lead look good until the fifth. Then singles by Packard, Gonzales, and Miller, and Hornsby's sacrifice fly scored two runs for St. Louis in this round. With Miller on third and Cruise on first after a hit, Pfeffer passed Long, filling the bases. The triple steal was worked, Miller scoring cleanly as Pfeffer made a wild pitch, Cruise coming all the way in on the toss when Pfeffer failed to cover the plate.

Pfeffer struck out Gonzales, Miller, and Long in the seventh, but Hornsby's home run, which bounded away from Hickman, was sandwiched in, giving the Cardinals the winning run.

CINCINNATI, June 14.—A single by Kopf and a double by Roush scored a run in the ninth inning and enabled Cincinnati to win a seesaw game from Philadelphia here today, 6 to 5. Both Mayer and Toney were hit at opportune times, while the fielding was of the ragged variety.

SHAWNEE GOLFERS REACH SEMI-FINALS

Special to The New York Times.

SHAWNEE-ON-THE-DELAWARE, Penn., June 14.—If a comparison of cards counts for anything, there will be little to choose when Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow of Merion and Miss Elaine Rosenthal of Ravisloe meet in the semifinal of the women's golf tournament at the Shawnee Country Club tomorrow. In winning their matches today both traveled better than a ninety pace, Mrs. Barlow defeating Miss Ethel Campbell of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, 6 up and 5 to play, and Miss Rosenthal disposing of Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, the Philadelphia champion from Huntingdon Valley, 3 and 2. Both of the other survivors, Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck of the Philadelphia Cricket and Mrs. G. H. Stetson of Huntingdon Valley, won their matches by 3 and 2 margins. Mrs. Vanderbeck, playing with more of her old-time confidence, proved a trifle too steady for Mrs. W. J. Peck, the Merion woman, who before long will take up her residence in the metropolitan district.

There was quite a match in the second eight between Mrs. L. C. Stockton, the Raritan Valley woman, and Mrs. G. K. Morrow of Great Neck. When she stood 3 down early in the round, Mrs. Morrow thought she was in for a good trimming, but suddenly the tide turned so that at a later stage she had not only overcome the other's lead, but actually stood 3 up herself. Mrs. Stockton had the match square at the home hole only to lose it at the nineteenth, which Mrs. Morrow won with a five.

The summary:

FIRST EIGHT.—First Round—Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck, Philadelphia Cricket Club, beat Mrs. W. J. Peck, Merion, 3 and 2; Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, Huntingdon Valley, beat Miss Mildred Caverly, Philadelphia Cricket, 3 and 2; Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, Merion, beat Miss Ethel Campbell, Philadelphia Cricket, 6 and 5; Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Ravisloe, beat Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, Huntingdon Valley, 3 and 2.

SECOND EIGHT.—First Round—Mrs. A. K. Billstein, Bala, beat Miss Eleanor Chandler, Huntingdon Valley, 2 and 1; Mrs. G. K. Morrow, Great Neck, beat Mrs. L. C. Stockton, Raritan Valley, 1 up, (19 holes;) Miss May Bell, Philadelphia Cricket, beat Mrs. E. H. Fitler, Merion, 2 and 1; Miss Florence McNeely, Merion, beat Mrs. Florian Krug, Shawnee, 10 and 8.

THIRD EIGHT.—First Round—Mrs. J. W. Turnbull, Whitemarsh, beat Mrs. W. H. Cane, Hackensack, 5 and 4; Mrs. Robert Pennington, Wilmington, beat Mrs. A. F. Shoemaker, Lansdowne, 2 up; Mrs. G. P. Fuller, Plainfield, beat Mrs. H. C. Smith, North Hills, 6 and 4; Mrs. J. S. Irving, Englewood, beat Mrs. G. D. Boschen, Spring Lake, 7 and 6.

FOURTH EIGHT.—First Round—Mrs. Ira Hill, Great Neck, beat Mrs. E. H. Vare, Whitemarsh, 5 and 3; Mrs. C. B. Lawrence, Jr., Plainfield, beat Miss Sarah Meehan, North Hills, 6 and 4; Miss K. Thompson, Whitemarsh, beat Mrs. C. H. Marshall, Whitemarsh, 9 and 7; Mrs. T. S. Neilson, Hackensack, beat Mrs. Walter Clothier, Merion, 4 and 3.

SATURDAY'S REGATTA OFF.

Larchmont Y. C. Finds Too Few Craft in Commission.

Through Howell C. Perrin, Chairman of the Regatta Committee, the Larchmont Yacht Club has announced that owing to the small number of yachts in commission the Spring regatta scheduled for tomorrow has been canceled. The next regatta scheduled by the club is its annual, which will be sailed on Wednesday, July 4, as announced. It is expected that by that time the new sloops of the O class which some of the club members are building will be overboard and ready for racing.

YACHT RACE TOMORROW.

Contest Over Course of About 100 Miles to Start from Fort McHenry.

BALTIMORE, June 14.—Saturday will bring about the first real yacht race of the year between sailing craft. It is a thoroughly sporting event for which the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Racing Association is sponsor, and a handsome trophy presented by A. G. Thompson, President of the association, is the prize. The race will be run from Fort McHenry to Sharp's Island and return, a distance of approximately 100 nautical miles. It will probably take from fifteen to twenty-five hours to make the run, which will begin Saturday morning and end some time on Sunday, depending on the wind.

Amoret, the Class P yacht owned by Commodore Alfred I. du Pont of the Baltimore Corinthian Club, which last year won the race in the record time of thirteen hours for the course—a craft formerly owned by R. B. Budd of this city—will be the scratch boat and will allow up to nearly five hours to two of the contestants, the Q sloops Naomi and Eleanor, a stiff handicap which will test the seamanship of G. Porter Houston and Stuart Stevens Scott, who will handle the Amoret. It took Mary, the winning sloop in 1915, about twenty-two hours to cover the course.

RAIN HALTS YANKEE FRAYS.

Yesterday's thunderstorm spoiled the Yankees' double header picnic at the Polo Grounds, and both games had to be called off on account of the rain. The clubs had played two innings of the first game when the crash came. The rival pitchers were Caldwell and Danforth.

Caldwell got a warm reception in the first inning when Leibold tripled against the right field wall and scored on Eddie Collins's single. There were about 10,000 persons there and more were coming in fast when the storm spoiled the afternoon. The umpires waited for more than half an hour to see if there would be any let-up in the downpour. The folks waited patiently, but the field became so flooded that there was no chance of playing.

BALL GAME ON SUNDAY.

Yanks and Browns to Play at Polo Grounds to Aid First Engineers.

The First Reserve Engineer Regiment, 1,170 strong, which is now training at Fort Totten, will attend the patriotic band concert and ball game which will be held at the Polo Grounds on Sunday afternoon. This will be the first of a series of concerts and ball games which will be held to create a fund for the benefit of the engineer regiments soon to go to France. The plan was suggested by Messrs. Ruppert and Huston, owners of the Yankees, and has been indorsed by the American League.

The engineers will come from Fort Totten on Sunday by steamer to 157th Street, and will march to the Polo Grounds. They will hold a parade at the baseball park, led by the regimental band. Colonel McKinstry, commanding officer of the regiment, and Colonel Jacob Ruppert completed the plans for the visit of the soldiers yesterday. The Military Committee of the United Engineering Societies of New York, of which J. Waldo Smith is Chairman, and Major W. H. Wiley is Treasurer, will have charge of the fund, which will be donated to this regiment.

The concert will be given by Frank's Band of 100 pieces, during which Harry Ellis will sing George M. Cohan's new war song, "Over There." After the concert the St. Louis and Yankee players will give a military drill.

BRITTON AND LEWIS HAVE CLOSE BATTLE

Jack Britton of Chicago, recognized world's welterweight champion, and Ted Kid Lewis, the English boxer, meeting in the ring last night for the twelfth time, furnished a fair-sized crowd of enthusiasts at the St. Nicholas A. C. with an interesting ten-round draw. The willing aggressiveness of the English boxer and heavy blows to the head which he landed with telling force on Britton in many of the rounds, earned him an even break in the honors for the bout. Britton, while his style was not as spectacular or interesting, nevertheless managed to land the cleaner blows in the latter rounds of the bout.

In fact after the first few rounds Britton settled down to his task, and taking the lead away from Lewis, forced him with a punishing attack to the stomach. The Chicagoan, incidentally, directed his efforts almost solely to Lewis's stomach, and the effects of this hammering was plainly noticeable as the contest progressed, and Lewis slowed perceptibly. Lewis earned the second, third, and fourth rounds; Britton got the fifth, sixth, and ninth, and the remainder were even.

In the early stages of the bout Britton was unsteady and wild and landed few effective blows. Lewis, carrying the fighting, aimed blows for the jaw, but the majority went wide or were taken easily by Britton, who "rode" with them. Quite a few blows were landed in the second, third and fourth rounds by Lewis, however, which shook up the title holder and made him wary, but Lewis, while his dashing style attracted the eye of the spectator, was unable to get past Britton's close guard with a clean, really damaging blow.

Lewis was evidently somewhat tired from his efforts in the first four rounds and in the fifth Britton took the lead. The Chicagoan found his rival a comparatively easy target for heavy blows to the stomach, and Britton sent these home with both hands, making little or no attempt to reach Lewis's face except with an occasional left hand jab. In the sixth session the title holder followed the same style of boxing. His cleverness and more effective hitting, coupled with his coolness in the face of Lewis's spasmodic rallies, earned him his share of the honors. Britton weighed 146½ pounds and Lewis 144¼ pounds.

Boxing Bouts Tonight.

Freeport S. C., Long Island—Eddie Casey vs. Jack Hanlon. Ten rounds.

Cochran Wins Two More.

Welker Cochran, the Chicago professional billiardist, defeated William Gershel, the winner of the Poggenburg Memorial Tournament, and James Brown, in 18-2 balk line exhibition matches, played yesterday afternoon and evening at Daly's Billiard Academy.

the "Hyatt Roller"

See "The Hyatt Roller"—the 1909 Buick that holds the world's long distance record, 261,800 miles. It is now traveling from coast to coast and back again.

It is in town today—equipped with its original set of Hyatt Bearings just as the factory installed them 'way back in 1909.

Yet their record, while remarkable, is only typical of what you may expect from Hyatt Bearings in your car.

Every day, automobile owners in every corner of the country are realizing the satisfaction Hyatt Bearings give.

Buick Motor Co., 55th Street at Broadway

Stocks Lose Ground in a Less Active Session — Watching Money Rates.

The Liberty Loan almost monopolized the attention of the markets yesterday, which were left largely to the mercies of professional traders. Stocks were irregular throughout the session, showing some fairly good advances in the early part of the day, but closing with most issues at their low. There was an average decline in the most active rails and industrials of about a point, with a few striking exceptions among inactive industrials.

With the success of the loan assured by the receipt of a flood of subscriptions both large and small, traders began to discuss yesterday the probable effect upon the market of the financing operations incident to the closing up of the loan. The initial payment due today is but 2 per cent., but another 18 per cent. is called for on June 28, at which time it is expected that a large proportion of the bonds will be paid for in full. It is expected that approximately all of the $918,000,000 of United States certificates of indebtedness which were sold by the Treasury Department in anticipation of the receipts from the Liberty Loan will be turned in for the higher interest-bearing bonds. The Government has already advanced $732,500,000 to the foreign Governments out of the proceeds from the sales of certificates and will soon be in a position to increase these advances as money comes in for the bonds. With the usual heavy demand for funds around the middle of the year, coming on the heels of the big payment for bonds at the end of June, it is quite probable that money rates will strengthen as this month nears its close. There have been evidences of a desire on the part of banks to discourage overspeculation in stocks in order to keep the market from absorbing too much cash on the eve of the big demands for other purposes. The Federal Reserve Banks are counted upon to extend a large measure of help to the member institutions in connection with their payments, although they will be governed in this respect by recognition of other requirements to be made upon them. Money loaned yesterday at 4½ per cent. on call throughout the day, with time money a little easier.

Wall Street has very wisely frowned upon any efforts to stimulate the stock market to broader activity and has bent every effort toward getting investors for Government bonds, even at the cost of commissions. The movement to influence both individuals and corporations to give freely to the Red Cross has gained momentum very rapidly. More of the copper companies declared Red Cross dividends yesterday, and strong pressure is being brought to bear upon stockholders to have them indicate their willingness to have other companies appropriate part of their earnings for this cause. The stock market has been left to take care of itself while men who ordinarily play an active part in its movements have given their services in unselfish promotion of the Government and Red Cross financing. Sales yesterday showed a sharp contraction from Wednesday's dealings, the total falling a little short of 900,000 shares.

LONDON MARKET IS QUIET.

Interest Is Confined to the Miscellaneous Sections.

LONDON, June 14.—The stock market was generally quiet today, with most interest confined to the miscellaneous sections. Shell and oil shares were active and firm and there was a good demand for shipping stocks. Industrials were well supported. Gilt-edged securities showed a tendency to droop owing to lack of support. Russians were neglected on the depreciation of the ruble.

American issues were marked a fraction higher on small business. Money in better supply. Discount rates quiet. Petrograd exchange continues unfavorable.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, June 14.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 61 francs for cash; exchange on London, 27 francs 18 centimes; 5 per cent. loan, 88 francs 10 centimes.

"Discounting" Success of the Loan.

When the market began to sell off in the last hour yesterday, there were traders who said that the success of the Liberty Loan had been discounted. Their expressed theory was that the buoyancy imparted to stocks in the early stages of the Loan campaign had been well sustained until the $2,000,000,000 was in sight and then stocks had begun to react. The Street was practically convinced when business opened that the Loan would be oversubscribed, and dispatches from Washington later purported to show that the Treasury officials were confident of the result. The Washington telegrams were printed shortly before stocks began to slip, and the coincidence supported the theory of the market critics. It could hardly be said, however, that the idea appealed to everybody in the commission houses. Traders unblessed with imagination thought professional bears helped the reaction by trying out several issues in succession to see if soft spots could not be developed by short selling, irrespective of favorable or unfavorable news developments.

Strength which had marked United Cigar Stores common and Tobacco Products for several days was suddenly imparted to United Cigar Stores preferred, with a gain of 6 points, to 119. The advance in these issues, which represent both the retail and manufacturing end of the tobacco trade, has been accompanied by information to the effect that prices are to be raised shortly. The assumption is that greater profits are to ensue to the concerns, but, as the Cigar Stores preferred is limited to 7 per cent. dividends, it would seem as though other factors might have impelled the rise. The small amount of the stock outstanding, about $4,500,000, and the possibility of retirement have apparently been a sustaining influence behind the price for a long time. Under the provisions of its issue the company was obliged to pay $140 a share after Jan. 1, 1916, in case it was decided to call the preferred in. The mental effect of such a possibility on investors would naturally work to keep the stock in strong boxes and deplete the floating supply, paving the way for quick upturns when bids appear.

The Motor Stock Jigsaw.

The motor stocks continue to supply a puzzle to investors and speculators alike. General Motors yesterday moved from 109¼ to 114⅝ and then reacted to 112, and Studebaker displayed a show of strength at one time, only to turn listless and leave off unchanged for the day. Saxon sold down a point and Maxwell Motors gained a half point. One may hear in brokerage circles that the motor industry is doing exceedingly well and one may also hear that business is steadily declining. There are stories of dealers who cannot see many more sales in sight this Summer and counter-reports of orders pressing upon the agents of leading companies in a volume as great as a year ago. There has not yet been gossip about dividend reductions, although several stocks have long been selling at levels which ordinarily would forecast such a development.

Fabricated Steel Orders.

Orders for fabricated structural steel in May were equal to 56½ per cent. of the country's shop capacity, according to figures prepared by the Bridge Builders' Society, compared with orders equivalent to 80 per cent. of capacity in May last year. In April orders amounted to 61 per cent. of the possible maximum manufacturing. Superficially it would seem as though the slackening of operations in certain building lines because of high prices or other influences might be the primary factor behind the decline of orders, but in the steel trade it is said that this is not the case. The inability of the mills to get deliveries of sufficient quantity of material for working up is described as the most important obstacle to expansion.

Andrew Carnegie and his colleagues of the early days of America's modern steel industry may have dreamed of $100 steel, but it is doubtful if they thought they would ever see it, save in case of special products. Yet this week they have seen that price and even more, and applied, too, not to specialties, but to major products. The average quotation for eight products—Bessemer rails and billets, steel bars, shapes, plates, wire nails and tin plate and pig iron—has reached $100.64 a ton, based on quotations in The Iron Age. And business still shows no sign of being repelled by extraordinary prices.

Copper Capital Disbursements.

The porphyry copper companies a few days ago declared quarterly dividends and also dividends representing "capital distribution." "The action is based upon perfectly well recognized principles," said Charles Hayden, Vice President of the Uttah Copper Company, yesterday, "as it is well known that all mining companies are really liquidating propositions, and in a technical sense all the earnings of a mining company might be said to be merely a return of principal. This action is clearly along the line of conservatism, and it is understood that as the companies may from time to time in the future take similar action, the amount which is thus disbursed on the basis of a return of capital will always be confined to the amount which is properly allowable as a depletion of the mine during any year's operations. It should be understood that this method of procedure will not in any way affect the amount available for the distribution to the shareholders at any time." The method of dividing the copper dividends into a return to shareholders from profits and from principal is interesting to the Street because of the as yet unknown attitude which the Treasury will assume toward it when excess profits taxes are figured out.

DROP BANK CONVENTION.

The American Institute of Banking, with a membership of 23,000, announced yesterday that its Executive Committee had decided to do away with the annual convention which was to have been held in Denver this year. This action was made necessary by the absence of a large number of bank employes who have enlisted, and it is expected to assist in conserving the working forces of the banks and trust companies. President E. G. McWilliam said yesterday:

"War conditions have placed upon the banks an extraordinary amount of work, the details of which necessarily must be performed largely by members of the institute. The number already in the service of the army and navy and the greater number that will be called to service in the near future promise to create emergency conditions in the operation of most banks."

In place of the regular gathering a one-day session will be held in Chicago on Sept. 12, to be attended by one delegate from each of the seventy-five chapters.

LOSES $2,954,000 IN SUBWAY CONTRACTS

Year's Earnings Decrease $166,495—Increased Income Likely from Investments and Fuller Co.

The United States Realty and Improvement Company frankly informs stockholders in the report for the year ended April 30 that a big loss will be suffered on contracts for construction work on the new subways. Allowance for a loss amounting to $2,954,000 is made in the accounts, being charged to surplus. The year's earnings totaled $2,432,348, compared with $2,600,838 the year before. Deduction of expenses and interest brought the net income down to $1,089,892, and the balance, after debenture bond interest was paid, was $493,392, against $600,849 in 1916.

"Due principally to the unforeseen abnormal increase in the cost of labor and supplies," said the annual report yesterday, "and other conditions over which the company had no control, the company is now faced with the fact that it will suffer an ultimate loss upon the contracts into which it entered with the City of New York for the construction of three sections of the rapid transit subway lines. While the company's resources have been severely taxed by the unfortunate conditions in connection with the contracts with the City of New York, it is confidently believed that there will be a considerable increased income for the coming year from its productive investments and from the George A. Fuller Company, which has large and profitable contracts."

The Fuller Company, an important subsidiary, entered into fifty-four contracts during the year, the report showed, aggregating $24,799,715, and executed work amounting to $16,624,235. At the end of the fiscal year there was $24,385,277 of unfinished work on hand, an increase of $8,175,480 over the total twelve months before.

The report stated that a revaluation of certain realty holdings had been found necessary during the year, as a depreciation from their book value had occurred. The difference between the old book value and the current, as shown in the balance sheet, was set at $9,556,097. The deduction resulted in a marking down of total assets from $32,462,136 to $22,906,039, making a deficit at the end of the year of $9,214,886.

PACIFIC GAS EARNINGS.

Lighting Company Reports Gross Operating Revenue of $18,615,000.

The eleventh annual report of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company for the year 1916 shows gross operating revenue of $18,615,000, an increase of $85,000 over 1915. In that year, however, the company received $391,000 under its contract with the Panama Pacific International Exhibition, against $10,889 in 1916. The net income for the year was $8,316,000, a decrease of $42,000, and the balance to surplus after the payment of $3,844,000 in bond and other interest, $4,298,000. There remained $1,269,000 after the payment of preferred and common dividends.

In addition to the direct loss from the closing of the exposition the company states that there was a further loss, which extended well into 1916, due to a gradual recession in many lines of business in which unusual activity had been induced by the exposition. In the first six months of 1916 the net addition of customers was only 3,370. In the last half year the net addition was 14,879.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Values in the wheat market developed weakness, and at the close were 6c. to 7½c net lower. The decline was based on the weakness in coarse grains and also on more favorable weather for the new crop. Trading was of very small volume, and operators at large were not particularly hopeful of any immediate withdrawal of existing restrictions. Total shipments from domestic ports were 1,832,000 bushels, and it was thought that liberal shipments were being made from Canada.

CORN.

The corn market was easy during the early operations and turned weak toward the close, with final prices 8⅛c to 5c lower. The appearance of very much improved weather over practically the entire corn belt, with prospects of rising temperatures, caused general unloading by longs. Exporters were again in the market and sales were estimated at 200,000 bushels. The Illinois State report indicated an increase of 15 per cent. in acreage, and the Kansas Crop Bulletin said that during the last week corn made the best growth of any week since it was planted. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $1.82½, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market felt the influence of the decline in corn and the better weather, closing 1⅛c to 1¼c net lower. Crop advices were highly satisfactory. Exporters were in the market and sales were reported of 300,000 bushels. In the local cash market prices were easy; standard quoted at 73½c to 74c; No. 2 white, 74½c; No. 3 white, 73c to 73½c; No. 4 white, 72½c to 73c; fancy clipped white, 74½c to 76c; ordinary clipped white, 73c to 74c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

An easier tone prevailed in the market for hog products, with longs disposed to liquidate, while the demand was slack. The decline in corn also exerted more or less influence, and sentiment appeared to lean more to the bear side. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 16,000; estimated for Friday, 14,000; Kansas City received 5,000 and Omaha 8,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was unsettled and nervous, with prices easier. The decline in lard in the West caused considerable pressure here, and the market also felt the influence of the break in cotton. Range of prices:

The coffee market was very quiet again yesterday and prices fluctuated within a very narrow range. Sales were reported of only 19,000 bags, and the close was [illegible] points net lower. The local spot market was dull and unchanged at 10c for Rio 7s and 10¼c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

It was another inactive day in sugar futures, the market being influenced by the dull conditions in raw and refined sugar. The opening was 2 to 6 points lower on bids and the close showing net declines of 1 to 3 points, with total sales 9,100 tons. The Exchange will be closed Saturdays for trading in sugar until further notice. The raw and refined offices will also be closed Saturdays during the Summer months.

There was no change in refined sugar prices, which were listed at 7.50 for fine granulated by all refiners. Trading was again light and of hand-to-mouth character. Raw sugar was dull and without business, and also without fresh developments in the general situation. Cuban holders offer only moderately and buyers show no inclination to make purchases at asked prices, showing a moderate interest, however, at 4⅝c for June-July shipment Cubas. Holders asked ⅛c advance for the June position and ½c higher for July. Europe continues to take large quantities of Cuban raw sugar, which helps sustain prices here. Spot quotations follow: Centrifugal, 5.89c; molasses, 5.01c; cost and freight, 4⅝c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 9,128 packages. Western advices decidedly weaker, current offerings quite largely in excess of present needs and with not much speculative support, prices further declined with an unsettled feeling at the close. EGGS.—Receipts yesterday 24,090 cases. The tone of the market was firmer under the influence of some speculative support from out-of-town points. Local trading is also a little more active on the basis of Wednesday's reduced quotations. Offerings were lighter and a considerable part of the receipts are going directly to the warehouses, in which space is becoming more difficult to secure. There has been no evidence as yet of a willingness to pay higher prices than prevailed. In fact, some business was reported in the afternoon slightly under morning sales. THE COTTON MARKET

Trading Less Active and Nervous—General List Closes at Net Decline of 27-48 Points.

The cotton market was less active yesterday, but was nervous and unsettled, with prices lower under realizing and continued reports of Southern selling here against probable deliveries on July contracts. Favorable weather advices were a factor, but local brokers most generally attributed the decline to a subsidence of trade demand, and indications that the higher prices had brought out freer spot offerings. October contracts broke from 24.80c to 24.30c, closing at 24.35c, with the general market closing irregular at a net decline of 27 to 48 points.

The market opened steady with July unchanged, but with other months 5 to 11 points higher on relatively firm cables and the large domestic consumption figures. July was held back by further Southern selling, and later months eased off right after the call under profit taking, which came partly from Western and Wall Street sources. After showing a net loss of 18 or 20 points, the market firmed up on covering, but trade buying was much less in evidence than recently and prices soon eased again under renewed selling. Perhaps the offerings were stimulated by the favorable detailed weather reports, and for a time during the early afternoon prices moved downward rapidly. July sold down to 24.65c and December to 24.45c, making a net decline of 30 to 43 points on the general list. Later fluctuations were very irregular, although closing prices were within 3 or 4 points of the lowest on most positions.

The Census report showed domestic mill consumption aggregating 697,580 bales, including linters, comparing with 649,160 for the same month last year. Mill stocks of lint and linters at the end of May amounted to 2,027,090 bales, which would be equal to about three months' requirements at the rate of last month. These figures seemed to attract comparatively little attention, the trade showing more interest in the slackening of demand and the reports of increased offerings in the South.

Private cables attributed the advance in Liverpool to buying by English spinners. Perhaps the local disposition to take profits and prepare for reactions was increased by reiterated reports that the Government had purchased almost enough cotton goods to meet requirements for the next twelve months.

Exports for the day were 16,384 bales, making 4,999,515 so far this season.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—After a stubborn fight over the proposal to permit country banks to make charges for the collection of checks and drafts, the House today adopted the conference report on the Glass bill amending the currency law to permit a greater concentration of reserve balances in Federal Reserve Banks. An effort to recommit the conference report because of a modification of the check charge provision failed, 166 to 150.

Chairman Glass of the Banking and Currency Committee estimated that the bill would add about $350,000,000 to the workable reserves of the Federal Reserve Banks by reducing the statutory reserves of member banks. During the period of the war, he said, it was essential to increase the gold holdings of the Federal Reserve System, whereas the reserve requirements of member banks might be safely reduced to meet present conditions.

There was practically no discussion of any part of the conference report except that relating to the Hardwick amendment, authorizing the collection of charges on checks. In conference the amendment was modified to provide that the Federal Reserve Board should pass upon the reasonableness of the collection charges and regulate the collection of checks by member and nonmember banks. An added proviso declares that the charges imposed shall not apply to checks sent for collection by the Federal Reserve Banks.

It was alleged by Representatives Harrison of Mississippi and McFadden of Pennsylvania, who led the fight to recommit the conference report, that the conferees had deliberately destroyed the effectiveness of the Hardwick amendment, because the Federal Reserve Board was known to be inimical to collection charges. Until Chairman Glass bitterly assailed the plan to give the country banks a free hand to assess commerce by exchange charges, presenting protests meanwhile from the National Grange and dozens of commercial organizations, sentiment in the House seemed decidedly in favor of the motion to recommit.

The bill provides that if not in a reserve or central reserve city a member bank shall maintain with the reserve bank of its district an actual net balance equal to not less than 7 per cent. of the aggregate amount of its demand deposits and 3 per cent. of its time deposits. If in a reserve city the balance of the member bank shall be 10 per cent. and 3 per cent., respectively, as to deposits. If in a central reserve city the balance maintained shall be 13 per cent. of demand deposits and 3 per cent. of time deposits.

Another amendment broadens the scope of the reserve system by providing that non-member State banks and trust companies, although too small to become members of the Reserve System, may avail themselves of the clearing and collection facilities of the system provided they keep a compensating balance with the Federal Reserve Banks.

CUMMINS GETS BON AIR.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 14.—William J. Cummins of New York was the highest bidder in Chancery this afternoon in the sale of the Bon Air Coal and Iron property, aggregating 170,000 acres of valuable coal and iron deposits, and with the confirmation of the sale tomorrow the purchaser will be successful over old-time rivals in Nashville financial circles.

For a month Mr. Cummins has been engaged in a contest with a committee of bondholders that was headed by James E. Caldwell, President of the Fourth and First, a bank that Cummins controlled at one time in his residence here. Cummins got into the bidding last month. J. Varnum Mott of New York opened a new bid on the offering of Caldwell of $1,400,000. Since then the contest has been strenuous.

Mr. Cummins, as a security for the final bid, deposited $200,000 with local banks and offered a note of John McE. Bowman, amounting to $365,000. He withholds the names of his New York associates until the confirmation of the sale.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Irregularity marked the movement of prices on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Following an early degree of uncertainty, the market strengthened after midday, with trading sentiment favorably stimulated by reports that the belated subscriptions to the Liberty Loan were coming in in overwhelming volume. Softness, however, developed before the close, the advance having invited profit taking in some volume. United States Steel common was the leader in respect to activity, with more than 47,000 shares dealt in.

TAX ON WHISKY IS AGAIN PUT UP

TICKET SPECULATORS GAIN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The Senate Finance Committee adopted today an amendment offered to the War Revenue bill by Senator Gore to increase the prohibitive tax upon whisky from that tentatively agreed upon last week. Instead of the tax of $20 on each bushel of grain weighing fifty-six pounds used in the manufacture of distilled spirits, the committee decided to levy a tax of $60 on each 100 pounds of grain. The levy substituted today is two and one-half times greater than that agreed upon last week.

Levi Cooke, counsel for the national distillers, said tonight that the tax fixed today, if passed by Congress, would mean that whisky could not be put on the retail market at less than $20 a gallon. A quart of whisky now selling at $1 to the consumer, he said, allowing for the profit of the middleman and the retailer, would cost at least $6.25 a quart. That, he estimated, would leave the retailer so slight a margin of profit that it probably would not be profitable to handle.

Mr. Cooke estimated that the tax on materials entering into the production of whisky, including the proposed $60 per 100 pounds of grain and the $5 a gallon tax on syrups, would amount to from $12 to $15 a gallon. There is, besides, a tax of $2.20 on each gallon of whisky withdrawn from bond, fixed by the House and accepted by the Senate, making a total war tax of from $14.20 to $15.20, according to the grade of whisky. With the advanced cost of grain and the charges for handling, he said, the cost of a gallon of whisky would run from $20 to $25.

"The drink of whisky that now costs 15 cents at a bar," said Mr. Cooke, "would under the new tax cost at least 50 cents. No distiller would take the risk of making whisky under the new tax. The distillation of whisky, once the new rate goes into effect, will cease."

The Finance Committee decided not to make any change in the tax on beer of $2.20 a gallon fixed by the House. It eliminated the proposed levy on grapes entering into the manufacture of wines.

The tax on theatre tickets sold by speculators was changed to graduated scale, running from 5 per cent. on any excess above the box office scale not exceeding 50 cents. The tax tentatively agreed upon before was 50 per cent. of any excess above the box office charge. The amendment changing the tax reads as follows:

"Upon tickets of admission to theatres, operas, and other places of amusement sold at news stands, hotels, and places other than the ticket offices of such theatres, operas, or places of amusement a tax of 5 per centum of the amount for which such tickets are sold at not to exceed 50 cents in excess of the established prices therefor at such ticket offices, and an additional tax of 30 per centum upon such tickets sold for more than 50 cents in excess of such established prices.

"There shall also be levied, assessed, collected, and paid a tax equivalent to 30 per cent. of the amount for which the proprietors, managers, or employes of any opera house, theatre, or other place of amusement shall sell or dispose of tickets or cards of admission in excess of the regular or established price of charge therefor."

Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee, explained that the tax on theatre managers for tickets sold by speculators was put in as an extra safeguard to the public. The tax tentatively agreed upon for tickets sold by speculators, he said, was regarded as too high on tickets yielding up to 50 cents above the box-office price. The new rate, the committee believes, would impose a more equitable tax.

The committee definitely decided to levy no tax on lyceums, Chautauqua, and other performances run by local organizations.

Only a few more war tax items remain to be approved by the committee. Among these are the determination of the rate to be imposed on excess corporation profits, which will probably be 16 per cent., and the tax on newspapers and periodicals. These will be disposed of this week. Senator Hoke Smith, a member of the committee, said tonight the bill probably would not be ready for the Senate until early next week.

Representative John J. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the House, said yesterday that of the additional funds needed to finance the war, at least $2,000,000,000 should be raised by Congress through taxation. He was opposed, he said, to any material reduction of the amount of the Revenue bill, now pending in the Senate, although he thought it a mistake to impose a retroactive tax on incomes.

"I believe the war should be financed, as far as possible, by taxation," he said. "In Great Britain they have raised $1,000,000,000 by taxing incomes, whereas, under existing laws, we raise about $220,000,000 by taxing incomes. And our wealth is three times as great as that of Great Britain."

Mr. Fitzgerald said if the Senate trimmed the Revenue bill down to any extent, the adoption of the measure would be opposed by the House.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

The C. O. D. Habit.

The general manager of a local department store was lamenting the habit some women have of ordering goods for "the fun of it." He reached out for a bundle of correspondence on his desk and extracted a number of sales slips. There were six of them, calling for a nightgown, a chemise, a pair of gloves, another pair of gloves, a waist, and a pair of stockings. All of these articles had been sent C. O. D. to a woman customer, who rejected them all. The driver's notation, short and to the point, was, "She never takes anything."

Tailors Hit Again.

All is not smooth sailing with the tailor to the trade houses in the men's wear trade. This branch of the clothing industry is dependent largely on a large variety of styles in fine goods. The mills for the most part are trying to cut down wherever possible on their lines of fancies, because of the difficulty of getting special yarns and their high prices. The importation of special fabrics has also been seriously hampered by the shortage of ships, and prices, when such goods are obtainable, are almost prohibitive.

No Corset Style Change.

Corset manufacturers find themselves up against more or less of a stone wall in trying to put into effect any style changes. The trade feels that something new is needed to spur up the demand, which has been lagging for some time past. The inflexible position of the present styles was outlined by one member of the trade yesterday. "While the war is on," he said, "I do not believe there will be much in the way of style changes. A large number of women have enlisted for the war work of one sort or another, and the corset styles now in vogue permit them the freedom of movement they desire."

Millinery That Is Selling.

Manufacturers in the New York market, according to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America, report action on a number of articles. They include white Milan hemps in sport goods, real hair hats, Neapolitans, for the fine trade, and sport hats of split and white Milan straw. White felt hats with colored brims of felt or velvet in small and medium shapes are selling well, and the same report is made of ribbon sport hats of narrow grosgrain ribbon with tassels or rosettes, and a contrasting velvet or silk facing. Georgette hats in white, flower trimmed, with transparent brims in smaller shapes, are also mentioned as doing well.

In the many varieties of stripes, which are the most popular of the fine linen tablecloths at present, there is one with fine stripes and a vase border which is of the Adams and Sheraton style and is used with furniture of that period. In large and effective designs is a beautiful thistle pattern from Scotland and a laurel pattern with the berries from Ireland. A wild carrot or Queen Anne lace design, Scotch, is beautiful, and an Irish linen has a Du Barry figure design—cupids. Most expensive linens come in the plain damask, napkins and tablecloths from $75 to $150 and $200.

New Collapsible Umbrella.

The man who travels "light" has a grip umbrella these days. There has long been the suitcase umbrella with the handle which folds over. The grip umbrella is one-third shorter, and not only does the handle fold over, but the umbrella part proper collapses, the cover pulling out into a ruffle-like fold which is drawn into place again when the umbrella is pulled out and raised. There is a short three-cornered case in which the collapsed umbrella is carried.

The amount of expense and trouble to which a store is put in delivering merchandise is aggravated by the large number of shoppers who willfully or unintentionally give incorrect names and addresses. A large local store last week had 664 C. O. D. packages returned with the note made that the customers could not be found at the addresses given. As some of the stores figure their delivery expenses at times as high as 50 cents a package, the item of these returns reaches an important amount in the course of time.

Gray Goods Grow Quieter.

After the flurried buying of the day before, gray goods were not so actively traded in yesterday. The sales figures fell below those of Wednesday, but at the same time the day's business was considered fair. Transactions occurred on 64-60s, 38½-inch, for June and July delivery, at 10½ cents, and there were sales of 68-72s, 39-inch, at 11½ cents and 60-48s, at 9 cents for the same shipment. The supply of 39-inch 80 squares seemed to be exhausted after the withdrawal of the 40,000 pieces bought by a foreign Government on Wednesday. Fourteen and a quarter cents were offered for them for June delivery, and the bidder's wants went unsatisfied. Following is the list of prices for the day:

Not Much Waste of Material.

Although the Government's effort to reduce the use of surplus material in clothing manufacture may result in some saving the amount will not reach any considerable proportions, according to a factor in the industry. The trade, he said, has been doing all in its power to check waste for the last two years, owing to the conditions forced on the industry by the war. He instanced the use of sample swatches by the clothiers instead of blankets, and the constant tendency to cut down the weight of goods so that they might prove a less costly item. "We may save a little through the elimination of trouser cuffs, patch pockets and other trivial style details," he said, "but clothing manufacturing just now, to my way of thinking, is on about as efficient basis as any business in the country. The Government won't have to force us to eliminate waste. We have had that problem on our hands for many months."

RENT FOR FREIGHT CARS CUT

Fairfax Harrison, President of the Southern Railway and Chairman of the Railroads' War Board, has notified all carriers that in future the per diem rate, or the daily rental which one railroad pays another for the use of a freight car, shall be 60 cents, comparing with the rate of 75 cents instituted Dec. 15 last. The lower rate will be in force until Sept. 30, when the matter will be taken up again.

The per diem rate was formerly 45 cents, but was increased to 75 cents to force carriers to return each other's cars. Under the car service rules now in force more latitude is permitted in the use of freight equipment.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

With the sale of the Verona apartment house on Madison Avenue, and also the residence of the late General Lloyd S. Bryce on Fifth Avenue, the realty market yesterday resumed its former activity.

The Verona deal, representing an investment of about $800,000, involved the sale of the ten-story apartment house of that name on the southeast corner of Madison Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street, 100.5 on the avenue by 132.6 on the street. It was sold by the estate of Colonel Francis S. Leland through the United States Trust Company as trustee. N. A. Berwin & Co. were the brokers.

Clarence Payne, the California investor who figured over a year ago in the purchase of the new Postal Life Building, at the southeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, and who has purchased other high-class properties, was the buyer. The heirs have been holding the property at $800,000. Former Justice Charles E. Hughes rented a large apartment in the building last Fall. The house is well rented, and although erected several years ago it has continued to rank as one of the most desirable apartment structures in the choice east side section.

Gen. Bryce's Fifth Avenue Home Sold.

Fifth Avenue, which has been unusually active in fine residence sales this season, contributed another important transaction to the number in the sale of the former home of General Lloyd S. Bryce, at 1,025 Fifth Avenue, adjoining the northeast corner of Eighty-third Street. The house is a marble-front English basement dwelling, erected about nine years ago by the late General Bryce. It covers a plot fronting 40 feet by 100 feet deep, adjoining the William Salomon home, on the Eighty-third Street corner.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. were the brokers in the sale. The buyer, it was said, is a New Yorker, who will occupy the residence. The holding price was $500,000. The property is assessed by the city at $360,000, of which $220,000 is land value.

Protective Purchase for Apartment.

As a protection to the thirteen-story apartment house at the northeast corner of West End Avenue and Ninety-third Street the two four-story dwellings at 272 and 274 West Ninety-fourth Street, abutting the property in the rear, have been purchased from Mrs. Catherine O'Hara. Each has a frontage of 15 feet. They were bought by Anthony Campagna and Vito Cerabone, owners of the new apartment building, and title will be taken in the name of the West Ninety-fourth Street Corporation.

Private Dwelling Buyers.

A client of Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown & Co. has purchased the residence of the late Supreme Court Justice Joseph Daly at 19 East Sixty-second Street. The property consists of a four-story and basement structure on a lot 20.6 by 100.5, located 88 feet west of Madison Avenue.

Leonard W. Simmons has resold to Oscar L. Richard, President of the State Bank, the four-story dwelling at 44 East Seventy-second Street, on a lot 20 by 102.2. The seller acquired the property earlier in the week from John Moller. Both sales were negotiated by A. H. Levy. The new owner owns the adjoining house, No. 46, and now controls a plot 40 by 102.2.

Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum, operators, purchased from Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson, representing the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, 323 West Eighty-seventh Street, a four-story dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100, near West End Avenue. H. L. Lewis negotiated the sale.

Columbia University has added to its holdings on 117th Street, between Morningside Drive and Amsterdam Avenue, by the purchase of the five-story dwelling No. 433 from James R. Wheeler. Columbia now holds title to Nos. 407, 411, 415, 419, 421, 429, and 431, similar structures.

Tenement Sales.

John A. Brown, Jr., has purchased from Addie R. Altman 376 Columbus Avenue, a five-story flat, with stores, on a lot 25.8 by 106.8, located on the southwest corner of Seventy-eighth Street.

William N. Bavier has purchased from R. Falkenberg 321 and 323 East Seventy-seventh Street, two four-story tenements, each on a lot 25 by 102.2.

Bronx Sales.

The dwelling at 223 West 178th Street, 22 by 96, was sold for Mrs. Harriett Strecker by H. Hornstein. In part payment she took two lots on a plot 54 by 172, at Elmsford, Westechester County.

The Wilson Bryant Company sold to Yetta Horowitz 1,081 Simpson Street, a five-story flat, on plot 38 by 100.

Brooklyn.

The two-story store building at 649 Degraw Street, 20 by 100, has been sold by the John Pullman Real Estate Company for John H. Delock to George Welardi.

Joseph Metzger has sold the plot on the southeast corner of Berry and North First Streets, 181 by 146.0, for Wolzer & Rosenblum to a builder for improvement with a garage.

Long Island.

The McNight Realty Company sold at Great Neck Estates to Dr. A. E. Axtell of Great Neck a large residential plot, corner of Bayview Avenue and Ash Drive. This plot fronts the Great Neck Golf Club links, and will be immediately improved by a residence to cost about $15,000.

Thomas Healy has purchased the former residence of Ralph Polk Buell on Edgewater Place, Bayside Park, overlooking Little Neck Bay. The plot is about an acre. The sale was made through Fred C. Pearson.

Staten Island Acreage Deal.

The thirty-four-acre tract at Princes Bay, recently sold by Percival G. Ullman, Jr., to R. Wood and resold by the latter to M. Rowell, has again been resold by Mr. Ullman to an investor.

Important John Street Lease.

Madero Brothers have increased their commercial space in the downtown section by renting the four upper floors in the building at 98 John Street, extending to 17 Platt Street. The Charles F. Noyes Company were the brokers. They recently leased to the same firm the adjoining building at 100 John Street, going through to Platt Street. The recent lease is for five years. The firm has extensive Mexican business relations.

The same brokers leased the store and basement at 98 John Street to the Mallinckrodt Chemical Works. These two properties are now tenanted at rentals aggregating about $15,000 per annum, the most important John Street lease east of William Street negotiated this season.

Commercial Leases.

Frederick Fox & Co. have leased the store at 1,146 Broadway to the Frankel Display Fixture Company, the store at 866 Sixth Avenue to the King Manufacturing Company, and the store at 56 East Thirteenth Street to W. H. Flattau & Son.

The Nehring Company has leased for a term of years showroom space at 1,050 and 1,052 St. Nicholas Avenue, in the St. Nicholas Building, to the Indian Motor Cycle Agency of Washington Heights, and also a store in the same building to the B. B. Tailors.

The Kaufman-Morris Company, who recently leased the entire northeast corner of Broadway and Fifty-seventh Street, have leased their former showroom, 1,800 Broadway, to Meridian Motors, Inc., and V. Vivaudou for a term of years. William J. Smith was the broker in the transaction.

Pease & Elliman leased for A. D. Tiefenthal the store 81 New Street, northwest corner of Beaver Street, to the Gem Fountain Company for a term of years.

Realty Notes.

Justice Greenbaum has appointed Charles S. Lyons of 158 Broadway receiver of the rents of the eleven-story building at 44½ to 46 Maiden Lane and 37-39 Liberty Street pending the suit brought by the Lawyers Title and Trust Company against the Liberty Street Holding Corporation and others to foreclose a mortgage of $800,000.

A building loan of $650,000 has been made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company to the 21 East Fortieth Street Company for the erection of a twenty-one-story commercial building on the plot 51.9 by 91.6 at the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Fortieth Street.

The Monroe Building, a nine-story structure running through from Rose to Vandewater Streets, will be sold at auction today in the Vesey Street Salesroom by Joseph P. Day.

Miss Honora May O'Brien took more than three hours in the Queens County Supreme Court at Long Island City yesterday before Justice Cropsey and a jury to tell why she thinks she ought to get a verdict of $1,000,000 from John B. Manning, a Wall Street banker and broker, for his failure to marry her. Miss O'Brien is 28 years old, and, according to her testimony, is now living at 2,933 Silver Street, in the Ridgewood district of Queens, and is employed as secretary to the manager of The Tribune Graphic. Mr. Manning is 84 years old and lives at 81 Riverside Drive in this city. On Dec. 14, according to Miss O'Brien's testimony, Mr. Manning, following a dinner in his home, made an offer of marriage to her. After considering the matter and referring it to her brother, James O'Brien of 65 Calendar Avenue, Newport, R. I., who happened to be at the Manning home on this occasion, she said that she accepted the proposal.

On Dec. 15 Mr. Manning and Miss O'Brien went to the Marriage License Bureau in the City Hall and obtained a license to marry. They then went to the home of Cardinal John Farley, and there made arrangements for the wedding to take place in the Mother Mary Chapel in St. Patrick's Cathedral on Tuesday, Dec. 19. Cardinal Farley agreed at first to perform the ceremony. On the day previous to that on which the ceremony was to be performed Mr. Manning canceled the arrangement.

Mr. Manning, according to the testimony of Miss O'Brien, is reported to be worth from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000, and is one of the most distinguished Catholic laymen in America, having been made a Knight of St. Gregory by the Pope, the highest honor that can be conferred by the Catholic Church upon a layman.

Miss O'Brien is attractive. She appeared entirely self-possessed while she was on the witness stand. She spoke in a well-modulated voice, with the accent of one born in Ireland. She wore a dark navy blue dress, a fox fur boa, white gloves, and a red straw hat.

She was attended in court by her brother James and his wife, and by Mrs. Isabelle Harper of 54 West Ninety-sixth Street.

Mr. Manning came into court with the members of his family, his sons, Dr. John Manning, Joseph Manning, his daughters, Mrs. Agnes McKeon, Mrs. Katherine Brannon, and Miss Mary Manning, and several household servants who will be witnesses. He appeared feeble and had to be helped by his secretary.

Less than an hour and a half was consumed in obtaining a jury. All but two of the jurors are young men.

Miss Manning in her testimony said that she was born in Skibbereen, County Cork, Ireland. As a child she was sent to the school at Abbey Lies, Queen's County, Ireland, where she remained eight years. From there she was sent to the Convent of Dans, nine miles from Ghent, Belgium. In 1907 she came to America with some nuns of the order of St. Joseph, who were going to Minnesota to organize a convent. Her brother, she said, had agreed to send her money to come to America, but she started ten days earlier than she had planned because she could go with the nuns. On the way over the nuns told her that they were going to be the guests in New York City of an Irishman who had made millions here, who was a good friend of the church. Mr. Manning, the man referred to by the nuns, met them at the pier. Mr. Manning, she said, took an interest in her. She told him that the only friend she had in America besides her brother was Mrs. Cohalan, the wife of Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, who was her cousin. She remained on the steamship until the following day, when Justice Cohalan and Mrs. Cohalan met her and the Justice paid the expenses of her voyage to the sisters, who had advanced it. Later the money which her brother had sent to Ireland was returned to him and this money reimbursed Justice Cohalan.

The plaintiff said that she was a frequent visitor at the Manning home for five years. Miss Mary Manning organized a French class, which she taught. Later, Miss O'Brien said that she was a governess, and then, learning stenography, she became secretary to a manufacturer. She then went to a Fifth Avenue fashion publication as secretary and French translator. She was engaged at this work, she said, when in November, 1916, Mr. Manning obtained her address from Mrs. Cohalan. After getting this address Mr. Manning, she said, began calling her on the telephone, calling her "My May" and "My love." Finally, on Dec. 13, 1916, she said, she accepted an invitation to dine at his home. After dinner Mr. Manning made the proposal of marriage.

"I told him I was honored by being asked to marry him," testified Miss O'Brien. "I told him money was not everything, and that I wanted to live quietly and happily. He said that he knew he was asking a great deal and that I would never love him as I would a young man. He said that I would be well provided for and that his family would also be well provided for."

Miss O'Brien testified that when the party went to the City Hall to get the marriage license, it consisted of Mr. Manning, Miss O'Brien, her brother James, and John Manning, Jr. Mrs. McKeon, the daughter, met the party downtown. She then received her first information of the impending marriage, and she began to make objections. Continuing, the plaintiff said that the party went to Cardinal Farley's residence. The Cardinal saw there was a disagreement, the plaintiff said, and advised that a money settlement be arranged. On the next visit of Mr. Manning and Miss O'Brien, when the Cardinal found that the settlement had not been made, he asked ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, who was present, to try to have Manning make the settlement.

A statement was made to the court that Cardinal Farley had undergone an operation and his physicians had agreed that it would endanger his life to come to court. A statement by the Cardinal then was read, supporting Miss O'Brien's testimony. At the close of the statement the Cardinal said:

"In regard to the attitude of the young woman I will say that when I proposed that there should be a settlement in order that all trouble should be avoided she agreed with the suggestion as she said that she did not want to defraud any of his children out of what belonged to them. Also that when a postponement of the marriage was suggested on the grounds that the newspapers were making such a time over it she was not willing to agree to this proposition, as she said that it was not a good and sufficient reason."

At the outset of his cross-examination Mr. Littleton brought out that so far as the proposed marriage was concerned on Miss O'Brien's part it was without love.

Q.—Did you ever love Mr. Manning? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever tell him that you loved him? A.—No, but I had a great respect and liking for him.

Q.—Then you have no broken affections? A.—No.

Q.—Then the tears that you have shed here are not those of disappointed or broken affection. A.—No.

Q.—You knew that he was a palsied, shaken old man? A.—Yes.

Q.—What attraction was there in him to you in that he had made a million? A.—The fact that he had brains sufficient to be so successful in business.

Q.—Did you ever tell him that you did not love him? A.—The question of love was never discussed between us.

Q.—Then what disappointments do you claim you have suffered? A.—I have had the mortification of having my name dragged through the papers and being pointed out, as the result of his refusal to marry me.

The trial will be resumed this morning by Justice Cropsey.

FOUR DEAD IN FIRE AT SUGAR REFINERY

Two or Three of the Thirteen Injured May Die—All Workmen Accounted For.

DAMAGE PASSES MILLION

Four persons lost their lives on Wednesday night in the explosion and fire which destroyed the nine-story building of the American Sugar Refinery Company at South Third Street and Kent Avenue, Williamsburg. The bodies of three were not found until late yesterday afternoon. Two or three of the thirteen in the Eastern District and Williamsburg Hospitals may die. All the employes have now been accounted for.

While the damage done by the fire will pass the million mark, it will not appreciably affect the sugar supply, according to officials of the company. While admitting that the number of fires destroying sugar has been exceptional and that the cause of the present fire is unknown, officials of the company are unwilling to believe that incendiaries could have caused it. Earl D. Babst, President of the company, said yesterday:

"The loss of life and the severe injuries to workmen in the fire last night at the Brooklyn refinery are matters of great regret to the company. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss to property is covered by insurance.

"Until our engineers complete their survey, we shall be unable to state how much interference there will be with our business in Brooklyn. The fire partially destroyed one block of the seven city blocks covered by the plant. However, we are operating five other refineries, including the refinery at Philadelphia held in reserve to meet just such emergencies. By coincidence this reserve refinery resumed operations on Monday of this week.

"There will be plenty of sugar and there should be no disturbance or alarm in the trade or among consumers, for in spite of unparalleled difficulties sugar supplies are ample and continue to be sold cheaper in the United States than elsewhere in the world.

"While there has been a series of events, such as outside labor agitation, strikes, sensational shortage stories, and sugar ship fires, yet the officers of the company are loath to credit any wrongful connection between them. The morale of the organization itself was shown by more than half of the company's total employes purchasing Liberty bonds under the company's plan within the last three days."

Deputy Fire Chief Lally ordered the firemen to discontinue their search of the ruins yesterday afternoon. Two hundred men employed by the sugar company then began to dig in the ruins and found the bodies of Henry Kneisen assistant night foreman of the plant; Charles Fisher, and Charles Landelius. William Miller, 45 years old, of 71 North First Street died earlier in the day in the Williamsburg Hospital.

Fire Marshal Brophy said the blaze was probably caused by spontaneous combustion. The company, he said, had twenty-five uniformed employes on guard outside of the buildings on Wednesday night and that no one without a yellow ticket showing that he was an employe was allowed near the refinery.
